A correspondent of the Ohio Farmer who is a farmer himself, writes as fol-

"A farmer in good circumstances, residing in a neighboring township, purchased a thoroughbred Short-Horn bull, well built, of good pedigree, and what rendered him still more valuable in this dairy region, he descended from a family of superior milkers. One would suppose that the money was invested to excellent advantage, but aside from the improvement of the owner's stock he never half paid for the food he ate. The owner charged the enormous sum of $3 to insure, and though I have known many of his grades to sell GAINED FIFTEEN POUNDS OF for more at one year of age than three year old natives would bring, yet the year old natives would bring, yet the neighboring farmers would not pay three dollars for a calf. The trifling amount to be invested would have doubled the value of their cattle at one year of age, all have gained fifteen pounds of fiesh. There are several others in this place taking the Yearmer, and have taken hundreds of dollars worth of medicine without obtaining any relief. In September 1sst I commenced taking Yearmers, since which time my health has steadily improved. My food digests well, and I have gained fifteen pounds of fiesh. In September 1st I commenced they remove the part of medicine without and yet they growl about "hard times," 'low prices of stock,' etc. Their stock ought to be low. I can find an abundance of native yearling steers throughout the country that would hardly make a backload for a good strong man. The large, mellow, meaty grades which drovers so delight to handle are not to be found here, but in their place (or in the place that should be occupied by such), are to be seen little skinny scrubs which at three years old average eight or nine hundred weight. Every native steer that is brought to maturity on our farms is raised at a dead loss of the amount which it costs to keep him for one year, which at a low estimate may be set at twenty-five dollars. Talk about hard times being caused by middlemen, when in the case under consideration, an outlay of three dollars would have yielded more than seven hundred per cent. interest. And I can point to examples where a similar outlay in the improvement of different flocks of sheep would have returned a proportionate profit upon the investment.

"And these very prejudiced, one-sided envious men, who would not pay three dollars for a calf from a thorough-bred bull or half a dollar for a lamb from a Cotswold buck, are the men who are continually snivelling about high taxes, exorbitant tariffs and like nonsense. Hard times, indeed! You deserve to be made to squeal when you pinch yourselves, pinch each other and try to pinch those who would delight in seeing a better class of stock upon every farm in the country. You ought not complain, if you don't get more than forty-five cents for your wool when your neighbors all about you are selling for fifty-five cents or two doltars per head, while others can sell readily at twice that amount. You may have the consolation of knowing that the middleman makes the most on that he has paid the most for. Let it be hard times for such men. They are a damage in any community where those who would like to see progress and improvement are in the minority. Of arse they do not see it in the light that others see it, and they never will-and why? For the simple reason that they stand just where their fathers left them. They never read agricultural journals or books because they cost a few cents to ONLY American Organs ever awarded any medal in Europe, or which present such extraordinary excellence as to command a wide sale there. pay the subscription price, and if anybody is so silly as to advise them to try some other plan, they believe nothing in it, and are ready to tell you so. How to Manage Young Pigs.

Until young pigs are a week old, we expect the sow to furnish all the food the pigs require, for unless she can do so she is not fit to be a breeder. And here I would say something about the selection of a good breeding sow. First select the best, as far as can be judged from outward appearances, with a good sound constitution. When the sow has the first litter, if the throws good pigs, sound and lively, and can furnish a good flow of milk, then she should be kept as a breeder; if she can not suckle her young properly, cannot supply enough milk to keep the young porkers in good, healthy condition, for has just opened up a large and varied assortmen the first week at least, then she should be BOOTS discarded. If this were generally observed we would have much better swine than we now have.

We first give skim milk, after which sour or thick milk is given. The trough should be kept well supplied, so the pigs can have as much and as often as they wish. This is the true way to feed a pig, and the sooner begun the more

As to the age to wean pigs, many breeders differ, some saying not until eight weeks, while others wean them at four weeks. We have weaned them at four weeks with no bad results, but think six weeks is better .- Live Stock Journal.

How to Have Good Eggs .- There is a vast difference in the flavor of eggs. Hens feed on clear, sound grain and kept en a clean grass run, give much finer flavored eggs than hens that have access to stable and manure heaps and eat all kinds of filthy food. Hens feeding on fish and onions flavor their eggs accordingly, the same as cows eating onions or cabbage, or drinking offensive water, imparts a bad taste to the milk and butter. The richer the food the higher the color of the eggs. Wheat and corn give the eggs the best them colorless, rendering them unfit for COME TO THE JOURNAL OFFICE some confectionery purposes .- Moore's Rural New Yorker.

PARSLEY AND BUTTER.-Melt one ounce of butter, and add to it a desertspoonful of flour, salt, and white pepper to taste; stir on the fire for a couple of minutes, add a little more than a tumblerful of boiling water by degrees, and a small quantity of parsley, blanched and finely chopped; stir five minutes, but FOR FINEAND FANCY PRINTING do not let the sauce boil.

WHAT I KNOW ABOUT VEGE- HENRY & CO. C. MUNSON,

Dear Sir—I have had considerable experience with the egerine. For dyspepsia, debility and impure blood, the Egerine. For dyspepsia, debility and impure blood, the Egerine is superior to anything which I have ever used, commenced taking Vegerine about the middle of last winter, and, after using a few bottles, it entirely cured me of dyspepsia, and my blood never was in so good a condition as at the present time. It will afford me pleasure to give any further particulars relative to what know of this good medicine to any one who will call o address me at my residence, 386 Athens street.

Very respectfully,

MONROE PARKER, South Boston, May 9, 1370.

SYMPTOMS—Want of appetite, rising of food and wind from the stomach, acidity of the stomach, heartburn, dryness and whiteness of the tongue in the morning, sense of distension in the stomach and bowels, sometimes running and pain; costiveness, which is occasionally interrupted by diarrhea; placeness of the urine.
