

MAKING MATTER ON EVERY PAGE.

W. L. FOULK,

Agent of the Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia Press Association.

Is the only person in Putnam authorized to receive advertisements for the Journal. He has best rates.

Laws Relating to Newspaper Subscriptions and Arrangements.

The following is the law relating to newspapers and subscribers.

- 1. Any person who does not give express notice to the contrary, are considered bound to continue their subscription.
- 2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their periodicals, the publishers may continue to send them until all arrears are paid.
- 3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their periodicals, the publishers are authorized to send them to the person responsible for their subscription, and order their discontinuance.
- 4. If subscribers order their papers to be sent without informing the publishers, and the papers are sent to the former address, they are held to be sent to that address.
- 5. The courts have decided that "refusal to take" falls far below the duty of removing and giving notice. It is called for, in prima facie evidence of intention of refusal, and it is not sufficient to make use of it, whether he has ordered it or not, is held in law to be a withdrawal.
- 6. If subscribers pay in advance, they are bound to give notice to the publisher at the end of their time, if they do not wish to continue taking it; otherwise the publisher is authorized to send it, and the subscriber will be responsible until an express notice, with payment of all arrears, is sent to the publisher.

HUNTINGDON POST OFFICE.

Mails are carried and closing of the Mails.

Mails are carried as follows:

- From the Post at 7:20 a.m. to 8:40 p.m.
- From West at 8:20 a.m., 9:20 a.m., 4:10 p.m. (closed mail from Altoona and Peterborough), and 10:20 p.m.
- To South (Huntingdon and Broad Top R.R.) 6:25 p.m., and closed mail from Broad Top at 8:20 a.m.
- To South and West at 7:20 a.m., (Wednesdays and Saturdays) at 12:20 p.m., (Wednesdays and Saturdays) at 4:10 p.m., (Wednesdays and Saturdays) at 8:40 p.m.

Close as follows:

- For the Post at 9:10 a.m., 8:10 p.m.
- West at 11:40 a.m., (closed mail to Peterborough) 5:10 p.m., 9:10 p.m.
- South at 7:20 a.m., 8:20 a.m., and closed mail to Broad Top at 7:40 p.m.
- To South and West at 7:20 a.m., (Wednesdays and Saturdays) at 12:20 p.m., (Wednesdays and Saturdays) at 4:10 p.m., (Wednesdays and Saturdays) at 8:40 p.m.

Office open from 6:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m., except Sundays and legal holidays, when it will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

J. HALL MESSER, Postmaster.

REDUCTION!

Until further notice, we propose to insert notices, or to receive notices, at a reduced rate.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

Grief Mention—Home-made and Stolen.

The wolves are slaughtering the sheep in Clearfield county.

M. D. Bandollar, esq., of Everett, spent a day in town last week.

The mild weather of last week brought the base ballists to the fore.

Adam Schmeunard, of this place, fell one day last week, and dislocated his shoulder.

An old lady in this place says that her sons are "going to the Continental next summer."

The Auditor has been in session for the last week. Mr. Henry W. Miller is clerking for them.

The Rockhill Iron and Coal Company have a pay-roll of almost 700 hands. A small army.

B. F. Ripple, esq., of Oriskany, was in town on Tuesday, and speaks very hopefully of Oriskany.

The panic has subsided and people are down to business again. Hope it may come again no more.

The college boys who were all home during the winter vacation have returned to annoy their tutors.

No other remedy has proved so effective in relieving Coughs and Colds as Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

A watch-house has been placed near Henry's crossing for the comfort of the watchman at that point.

The gentleman who went to Lewistown to meet his wife to give her a surprise says it was a failure.

Wilbur F. Cunningham, esq., is the clerk in the Prothonotary's office. He will make a very clever clerk.

There are 76 inmates of the Almshouse and about 400 out door paupers. Mapleton has the largest representation.

Howard Barrick, son of Jacob Barrick, of this place, fell, on Tuesday last, and broke his left arm below the elbow.

Cambria county's sportsmen are about organizing a Game Association. Huntingdon's sportsmen should do likewise.

Our young friend, B. F. Lamberson has quit the tobacco business having disposed of his establishment to his brother.

E. M. Latz, esq., of Shirley township, purchased the "Shaver Farm" from the Samuel Latz estate on the 20th ult., for $4,500.

The harder the times the more numerous are the announcements of marriages. Weddings and hard times appear to go together.

There are a few men who propose to do without a newspaper during the Centennial year. There are not very many of this class.

Henry W. Miller, esq., has accepted the position of clerk in the Treasurer's office. We commend Mr. Ashman Miller's good judgment.

A. W. Preston, esq., is renovating his residence on the corner of 11th and Washington. It will be a very neat home when completed.

The Exchange Hotel property was offered at Orphan's Court Sale, last week without a bidder. Truly, real estate is not very much in demand.

Henry Holminger, formerly editor of the "Family Companion," has been stopping in town for several days. He talks of looking in Chicago.

David Caldwell, esq., assures us that on the 4th inst. he ate Maple Syrup made from drippings gathered on New Year's day of this year. Who can best this?

Advertise your business if you want customers, but if you want to sit and suck your fingers don't let the people know where you are or what you have for sale.

Miss Maggie Schmeunard bought the late residence of Dr. F. S. Felix, a few days ago, for $2000 cash. This is one of the best sales that has been made for some time.

The high winds of Sunday night caused havoc with fences, shutters, etc., and caused considerable wakefulness on the part of our nervous population. The wind was terrific.

A countryman's horse attached to a spring wagon went up Millin street at a 2.40 pace on Saturday last, and finally came to a halt after the wagon had made into kindling wood.

The members of the colored A. M. E. Zion Church will give a grand Centennial Entertainment in the Opera House soon. The proceeds to be applied to the erection of a new church.

Some married men are talking about having the Legislature pass an act to prevent married women from running about after nine o'clock p.m. It would no doubt be a wise provision.

April weather in January for ten days. It was a little heavy underfoot, but nevertheless we liked the calmness of the atmosphere.

We don't like winter—give us summer, and plenty of it.

Judge Hartley, Esquire Langenheller and Joseph Atty of Bedford, spent last Saturday night at the latter house. We regret our absence when they called. They were on their way to Philadelphia.

The Herald has sold out his paper store to G. T. Simonson of the place. We are sorry to see him leave as a neighbor, but since it must be as we are pleased that Taylor's Store is the successor.

We are informed that the lock-up is lonely. One man, we learn, was put to bed for drinking beer, came out covered with vermin. This is a disgrace to the town, and those in authority should see to it that it does not recur.

The weather, on Sunday afternoon, was very annoying to the young ladies about "Sweet Sixties." They would to walk with their "sisters." We heard one say so, and she was not when she said so.

We are informed that the new Furnace at Oriskany, is doing much better than was expected. She will not reach her full capacity for several weeks yet. This speculation is very much pleased with its success.

An Axe Factory is being erected in Huntingdon, Pa., by Messrs. Oriskany & Co., of which Rev. J. F. McKelvey, a workman at Mann's axe factory, in this county, is to be the superintendent.—Lewistown Democrat.

Rev. Hammond, the revivalist, who has been so successful at Harrisburg, in awakening sinners, is going to try his hand on all around's hard shells, having secured the Opera House, in that city, for twenty-one nights.

It is said that the man who made the great advance over his losses during the late panic is an individual who had sold out of the unfortunate three weeks of trouble, and failed to secure payment. We deeply sympathize with the poor fellow.

Our brethren of the North have had a safe delivery. We congratulate them. Professions of love for Libel have been entirely too frequently invoked for the last few years. Such verdicts, with all deference to the prosecutor, will have a good effect.

During the prevalence of the high wind, on Monday night, the gable end of J. Chalmers Jackson's brick residence, on Church street, between Sixth and Seventh, was blown in, damaging the building to such an extent that its vacation will be necessary.

The revival in the M. E. Church is still in progress, and up to the time of our last report we had had a large number of converts. The revival has not only been successful in converting sinners, but it has also been successful in raising money for the church. We are glad to see that the church is prospering.

The postal clerks, on the "Limited Mail," want new spectacles. Twice within a week they pitched off Philadelphia papers belonging to parties west of us and carried ours through. Once in a while this thing may do, but too often, and it becomes a bore.

Martin Geist, of Warriorsmark, who was convicted last April, and sentenced to the penitentiary two years, for larceny, will be pardoned on the 25th of April, 1876, the Board of Pardoners having so recommended at the late meeting in Harrisburg.

There are two routes to the residence of Mr. Wesley W. Gary, in West Huntingdon. One is a good road, and the other is a bad one. We are glad to see that the good road is being improved, and that the bad one is being abandoned.

The Republican County Committee was met on Monday. George B. Orsady, esq., was recommended for Senatorial Delegate to the State Convention with power to select his Conferees and John W. Mattern and Wm. B. Gilliland were appointed Representative Delegates.

Isaac Wilson, of Shirley township, has caught thirty-six raccoons this season, making over three hundred pounds of meat for the market. Isaac thinks he is hard to beat on acoon hunt. He is nearly as good as Davy Crockett. When they find it Isaac they just give it up and come down.

When ladies are beaten a game or two in playing any social game they get disgusted and quit, but when gentlemen are beaten they stick to it until the hired man comes in to make up the fires the morning and then they dig out promiscuously. They go on the principle of "stick, Stanton, stick."

Mud, mud as deep as the hub, every-where. The man, woman or child who attempted to cross a street at any other point than the crossings found themselves in it to the elbows. We want an ordinance against mud. It ought to be banished. Hence we repeat the above.

"Old Dears" has gone and done it. We present to our readers this week the advertisement of Mr. Nathan Davis, late of Philadelphia, successor of March Brothers, and hope our readers will study their interests and give Mr. Davis a call. He comes among us a stranger and succeeds an old house.

We wish him success in his new field.

The Globe establishment is advertised by the Sheriff for sale, at 10 o'clock to-day. Whether Prof. Guss will be able to save his property we do not know, but it looks very much as if he would not. The Globe has been the principal cause of his financial distress, and he ought to get rid of it at any sacrifice.

The members of the First Baptist Church, and the neighbors of the Rev. Hunter, surprised him and his family, on Tuesday evening last, with one of the largest donations that has been accorded any minister here for years. It simply covered everything necessary in conducting house keeping. Mr. Hunter is highly appreciated by his members and the community.

The season for public sales is at hand, and we would remind our readers that we are prepared to print illustrated sale bills in short notice and at prices to suit the buyer. Our assortment of display type, borders, cuts, etc., is large and varied, and we can get up a sale bill that will "knock the spots" off any other establishment in the county—or out of it, either.

Ladies, now is the time to buy your patterns of Winter styles at the Journal store. We are selling large numbers daily. The Domestic Patterns are universally admitted to be the best in the market. We refer with pleasure to Mrs. Libkicker, Miss Mary Bumbargh, Mrs. Madara, Miss Sade Searcher or any other Dress-maker in town. Any pattern not on hand promptly ordered.

If the Post Office Department would delay the McLeary's Post mail, leaving Petersburg every day about twenty five minutes in advance of the "Jointed Mail," until after that train passes up, it would enable the Greenwood Furnace people to get our papers and other mail matter several days earlier than they now do. At least so we learn from the Postmaster at the Furnace.

Miss Myriam Rumberger, of Warriorsmark, died very suddenly on Tuesday evening of last week, of what is generally supposed to have been heart disease. Her father, John G. Rumberger, has been a nervous cripple for over twenty years, and at that evening the daughter had put him to bed about nine o'clock, and retired herself, shortly thereafter she gave a slight scream and the father called for assistance and in a few minutes she expired.

A party of expert hunters were after rabbits the other day. While the gun of one of the mighty Nimrods was empty a rabbit sprung up in his path only a few rods away. He down with his gun, reached for his powder flask and in the act of charging her up, when his attention was called to several of the party who were calling for "Fish's Horn Pipe," a few rods away. He discovered the cause of their merriment. He was merely emptying the wrong flask into his weapon.

We noticed last week, that one of Rev. Frail's daughters had been locked up for misconduct, but at the time we were not aware that two or three brothers, wearing the semblance of humanity, were permitted to escape, though a thousand times guiltier than the poor, frail creature who was made the scape-goat for their acts of blackguardism and brutality.

While she was incarcerated in a filthy lock-up, these moral lepers were on the street corners boasting of their beastly behavior.

An ordinance is now being enforced in New York city, which provides that the death penalty shall be administered to any animal whose barking, growling, or other offensive noise shall be annoying or disagreeable to the residents of the neighborhood in which such dog may be located. We have no doubt, that the ordinance will be enforced, and that four legs—on reading this ordinance would see the propriety of keeping his mouth shut, and would at the same time suggest that a similar ordinance be passed in some smaller places that we could name, not a hundred miles from here.

We understand that the Town Council, on Friday night last, passed a resolution having for its object the dispersing of the crowds of loafers that congregate on the corners and sidewalks, and demand of the Police that they arrest all violators of the law in this particular. They should have included the crowds of half-grown blackguard boys, who nightly prowl about the streets singing obscene songs and insulting females who may have occasion to pass them. The favorite stamping ground of these rowdies is on Fifth street, and the police can gobble them almost any night in the week.

Everybody knows Radolph Brennan.—Radolph is a character—sharp as a steel trap. He is said to be worth at least a cool 50,000. The man who beats Radolph gets up early.—Sometimes ago Radolph sold one of our merchants a hild, and during the panic the merchant closed up. Radolph, hearing the get came to town and sore and frightful were his lamentations over the failure of his friend. A wag, who understood the matter, ventured the assertion that the merchant could say "what no other man in Central Pennsylvania, or at least in Huntington county could say, and that was that he had taken the hide off of Radolph without paying for it."

ONE OF THE GREATEST DISCOVERIES OF THE LAST CENTURY.—MAGNETIC FORCE PRODUCED BY PERMANENT MAGNETS TO SUPERSEDE STEAM AND ALL OTHER MOTORS.—Mr. Gary's Great Invention.—From time to time, for several years, we have incidentally alluded, in the columns of the Journal, to the invention or rather discovery of Mr. Wesley W. Gary, of this place, but Mr. Gary invariably restrained us, and urged us not to give publicity to his labors until such time as he would indicate. That time has at length arrived. He has just returned from Washington where he has made several applications to cover his discoveries or inventions, and we are now at liberty, for the first time, to give the result of Mr. Gary's labors to the public.

Mr. Gary is the patentee, we believe, of several useful and ingenious inventions, and can therefore be classed as a professional inventor and experimenter. Many years ago his attention was directed to the great power of magnetic or attractive force—the force which he has determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the result he contemplated. He became, in a measure, a recluse. He shut out the world, and with no companion but his estimable and accomplished lady, magnets became his constant study. From early morn till late at night, for months and years, they were his constant solace.

He made experiments innumerable. He learned so thoroughly that he became satisfied that his inventions were of great practical importance, and he determined to investigate until he was satisfied that it was not within the power of man to produce the