The Salted Poet

- We can read of men of merit,
- But when comes a salted port, We wonder what's in a name. We've read his bauble o'er and o'er, But couldn't see the fun,
- For the little vessel stayed near shore, And didn't have much of a rur
- He's taken salt for a basis, Oh! what an excellent theme For a man in nursery traces, And drifting down the stream There are nobler subjects by the score
- Of which he might have written-We move he take the days of yore, Next time that he is smitten, And write of how "ye heroes" did,
- 'Twould surely do no harm,
 To say while 'way from George they slid
 The women run the farm. But if he nothing else can do
- Than write about the G's, Our advice to him is, quit that, too, And go to selling trees; And try in an honest calling
- To prove himself a man; So stop that childish brawling, But try an available plan By which to get in office, And thus employ his will; If that will only suffice
- To keep the ninny still. Go get inaugurated
 In a rural debating clan;
 And then on things much hated
- Pronounce your patriot ban ;
- And thus by native genius win A place among the exalted; But don't come out in a poem again, By one so badly salted. But if that promised leaf you turn, And run the thing henceforth; Your singing-school you'll likely spurn, And fling poetry south and north;

But just lay by your poetry, P.
We're not much scared by your threat,
Since father Adam fell, you see,
A man for bread must sweat. Note.—"That very clever satire" is a little too thin." The Grangers are not in the "scooping" usiness. That the little game set up by a certain arty at the late election failed, was not the fault of the Grangers; but the tax-payers—simply this and nothing more. The Grange still lives and prospers, the editor of the Journal and his poet to the contrary notwithstanding. No. 375.

[The editor of the JOURNAL appreciates a clever ing even if it should be at his own expense, and he was unfortunate in measuring other people's orn with his measure. Prompt Reinforcement.

When the physical energies are overtasked flag through weekness and disease, they eed prompt reinforcement. Renewed vigor is most speedily supplied through the medium of a tonic stimulant, and among medicinal resources of that class. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters assuredly deserve a prominent place.
Weakness, whether constitutional or arising from disease of over-fatigue, cannot be better compensated for than by a resort to this prime central Transportation. stregthening cordial. The enfeebled invalid, the convalescent and the aged and infirm find that is an unfailing source of vigor and comfort. Its combined tonic and alterative properties also constitute it an invaluable remedy for indigestion, weakness of the organs o urination constipation, torpidity of the liver, and many other irregularities and disabilities and render it an invaluable protection against malaria, as well as disorders of the stomach and bowels. [mh-3-1m. A SINGULAR FREAK OF LIGHTNING. On Monday morning last, a week ago, it will be remembered there were vivid flashes of lightning and heavy peals of thunder. A party of five persons had remained up during the night, at the residence of Aaron Hollingshead, in Barree township, waking with a deceased member of the family. While the persons in question were sitting around a table the lightning struck the chimney and run down the stove pipe and passed through the floor, doing but little damage save severely shocking the party around the table. A FACT WORTH KNOWING .- Are you the Throat and Lungs? If so go to your Resolved, That in the death of Frank A. Steele, this school has suffered the loss of one of its most zealous and promising members.
