How far will Bees go for Honey?

The above question, we believe, has nev- QUADRILLE NOTES, ONION PAer been satisfactorily answered. A beekeeper once tried the experiment of dusting his bees with flour as they left the hive, then rode to a hearth seven miles Twenty kinds of COMMERCIAL and away, where he discovered his white bees busily engaged in collecting honey. This experiment, however, can not be relied on for the simple reason that pollen, with LETTER and CAP Paper in large quanwhich bees are frequently completely tities. PACKET NOTE, LETTER, SERcovered, bears close resemblance to flour, and might readily be taken for it when the bees are on the wing. It is our belief that they seldom venture more than three miles from home, for we have known them to be in a starving condition when another apiary only four miles away was flourishing and gathering stores rapidly. It has in recent years been proved by Italian hybrids that queens have met with drones which were known to be at least three miles away, but this will scarcely apply to worker bees flitting about from flower to flower; they must become weary before they are four or seven miles from home.-Rural New Yorker.

Waste of Land.

If a farm of 160 acres is divided by fences into fields of 10 acres each, there are 5 miles of fence. If each fence now is one rod wide, no less than 10 acres of land are occupied by them. This is equal | Examine this stock, it cannot be surpassed in the to 61 per cent on the whole value of the farm. But nearly every fence row in the country is made a nursery for weeds, which stock the whole farm, and make an im mense amount of labor necessary to keep them from smothering the crops. Much damage always results to the crop from these weeds, and of these expenses are add ed to the first one, the whole will easily sum up to 20 per cent, or a tax of onetenth of the value of the farm. To LEDGERS, DAY BOOKS, CASH BOOKS, MINremedy this we would have fewer by fences, or we would clean and sow down the sense tows to grass or clover, and mow them twice a year. Ten acres of clover or timethy would at least supply a farm with timothy would at least supply a farm with seed and a rew tons of hay every year. We would in short consider the fence rows as a valuable part of the farm, and use them as such .- American Agriculturist.

OLD WOOD OF THE GRAPE AND PEACH. -It was not long ago, that Mr. Wright pointed out most clearly how much the vig. or of a grape vine was kept in check by its old knotty spars, the hardened, contracted tissue preventing the quick flow of sap-precisely that prompt and ready action which a brisk growth demands, and [ must have, in order to sustain it in full that one to have the bandsomest vigor, and enable it to bring the crop to maturity. Just so it is with the peach and nectarine. When the main branches become dark-bound the action of the sap is so sluggish that the branches cannot put by the dozen, large and small size. Handsome forth shoots of sufficient force to produce fine fruit. Cut back the whole of these branches to within a foot or two of the bole. See that roots are in a suitable medium, and in two or three seasons you have that take up the time of the little folks. Acrobate a tree re-invigorated, the growth young, that take up the time of the truth that never tire.

The world like to mention everything to our readers that we have on hand, but it is an endless job. Come and see us and ask for what you want. If it is anything in our line it will be forth coming.

The first volume of St. Nicholas was a surprise even to the public that heartily welcomed it, number by number. ST. NICHOLAS for 1874 and 1875, 4 Vols.

What he has to say of reality that enables the reader to follow the characters in their adventures with a positive sense of companionship. The contagion of the "gold-fever;" the great difficulties and perils which beleaguered their journey across the plains and mountains, and finally the adventurous, half-civilized, and yet, in a certain rude way, poetic life in the mines of California, are all desertbed with wonderful truthfulness and skill.
