From morn till eve the little maid Is busy at her labor-She sweeps and dusts the old farm hous And helps a poorer neighbor; No gossip will she listen to-A merit rare I owe to you-So lives the farmer's daughter.

On baking day her tiny hands Are busy at the making; No bread more light and sweet than hers Was ever made by baking. She churns the butter golden, sweet, And keeps the dairy white and neat-The farmer's useful daughter.

Her garden is an Eden fair, Abloom with pinks and roses-She knows the name of every flower, And makes some gorgeous poses— Grows peas, and radishes, and cress, And corn, and squash, and herbs to press-The farmer's happy daughter.

Long may she bravely smile on us-Our darling household fairy, The queen of garden, house and lot, And princess of the dairy—
To teach us by her pleasant way,
To love the things of every day— God bless the farmer's daughter. Colic in Horses.

The Prairie Farmer says relief may be obtained from this dose: Linseed oil, raw, one pound; oil of turpentine, two ounces; hartshorn, one ounce; mix. The following tincture may be kept in readiness: In two pounds of whisky digest for eight days three ounces of ginger, three ounces of cloves, and then add four ounces of sweet spirits of nitre. Half a pint of this tineture is a dose, in a quart of warm water. The abdomen should be rubbed, the horse walked slowly about (never ridden,)

July 22d, 1871.—Dr. Swayne & Son: Last winter while in Trenton, N. J., I procured six bottles "London Hair Color Restorer," which I like very much, in fact better than anything I have used in the last nine years. If you please, send me one dozen bottles C. O. D., care of W. S. Fogler & Son, Draggiets N. 723 Tranport street Baston. and supplied with a good bed, and with room to roll about without risk of injuring himself. If there is no relief in half an hour, a second dose my be given, and ere long, if still required, a third. Farm horses that have keen appetites, and devour their food greedily, and when they have been long in harness, are most apt to be afflicted by this disease; wherefore care should be exercised in feeding and watering immediately after hard work.

A Cow That Gives Butter,

Mr. F. W. Green, Secretary Ohio Centennial Board, recently received a letter from A. Lyons, of High Hill, Muskingum county, Ohio, describing a cow in his possession whose milk produces butter instead of cream. We copy from the letter as follows, leaving our readers to comment for

"This cow has had her second calf, and her milk produces butter without churning. When set in common pans for twelve CONSUMPTION! or twenty-four hours, butter rises on the milk instead of cream, and all we had to do is to take the ladle and throw it into the butter bowl; with two or three minutes' working it is ready for the table, and it is superior butter at that. The quantity produced is fifteen to twenty pounds per week when she is fresh. She is a full bred Durham, and a very peculiar looking animal." -- Ohio Farmer.

Food for Young Chickens.

They want no food for many hours after they are hatched, as they are then digesting the yoke of the egg, which constitutes their first food, and acquiring strength to run about. When they begin to pick they should be fed with soft food and very small grain. Unquestionably the best soft food is an egg beaten up with a tablespoonful of milk, and heated with an oven or by the side of a fire until it sets into a soft custard. Chickens fed or partially fed on this make wonderful progress. If they are to make large fowls, they must be fed before daylight; if, as is often the case, they are left hungry three hours in the morning, they are often stunted in their growth. They must be feed the first thing, and, while they are young, every two or three hours during the day.

Manuring Trees.

A writer in the Indiana Farmer says that strong, fresh manure is not usually so good for fruit trees as good clean cultivation without it; and that peaches and apples grown with manure are less sound and have a poorer flavor. When the same degree of vigor can be imparted to the trees with cultivation alone, the fruit is better for it. This statement reminds us of the remark made many years ago by W. A. Underhill, brother of Dr. Underhill, of Croton Point, (widely known to grape growers,) that in his own vineyard he used no manure, but cultivated once a week till the grapes had formed; and that these grapes were better ripened and sweeter than those in the doctor's vineyard where manure was used and less cultivation given .- Country Gentleman.

Tansy and Peaches.

I have a farm of 110 acres near Goderich, Canada. At Clinton, 12 miles back from the lake, a gentleman who has succeeded in raising fine peaches, gives the credit of his success largely to the growing of tansy over the roots of the peach trees. Query-if the tansy exerts the beneficial influence attributed to it, or is it as a protector in the same way that grass or sod sometimes protects, or it is partly owing to the strong odor driving away the borer? R. H. [We have often heard of tansy as a repellant of the insect which lays the SWAYNE'S PANACEA. eggs of the peach grub, but have no experience with it in this way, as it is much easier to clear out the grubs with the point of a knife, than to plant tansy at the foot of each tree, which would not favor clean cultivation.]—Country Gentleman.

The first volume of St. Nicholas was a surprise even to the public that heartily welcomed it, number by number. Newspaper critics expressed enthusiastic approval; children and parents were alike delighted, and congratulatory letters from distinguished men and women poured in upon the sublishers and editors, CHARLES DUDLEY WARNER wrote: "I do not see how it can be made any better, and if children den't like it, it is time to change the kind of children in this country;" WHITTIER, our great poet, wrote: "It is little to say of this magazine that it is the best child's periodical in the world;" and words of hearty commendation came across the ocean from such earnest workers and popular favorites of the young as GEO. BROOKS,
Giving the adventures of a party of boys on their long journey across the plains, with a vivid portraiture of their LIFE IN CALIFORNIA DURING THE DAYS OF THE GOLD-FEVER. Mr. Brooks brings to this work, in addition to his well-known literary gifts, a therough familiarity with the features of that wild country and the people them flocking toward it. What he has to say of them is pervaded with a subtle and intense savor of reality that enables the reader to follow the characters in their adventures with a positive sense of companionship. The contagion of the "gold-fever;" the great difficulties and perils which beleaguered their journey across the plains and mountains, and finally the adventurous, half-civilized, and yet, in a certain rude way, poetic life in the mines of California, are all described with wonderful truthfulness and skill. Add to this the elevated tone pervading the work, and the irresistible attraction wnich such a narrative possesses for boys, the value of this stirring, healthy
