Farm and Household.

About Manure.

One thing the farmer can rely upon, and that is manure—and haply the main thing in farming—not when he buries it deep down in the soil and leaves it there, but when he applies it to the surface and spreads it evenly, and finely, and closely on the ground. If he applies much, he may expect much; if but little, little. A close calculating farmer can estimate the amount of grain in his manure; he can estimate the crop pretty accurately if he understands his land well. Worn-out land that has never had much manure is calculated for this. Here manure takes hold at once and gives you what it has, if not in one year then in more than one. It is the profit on manure that the farmer must ever consider, giving you so much for so much; hence the cheaper the manure is obtained the more profit.

Manure is our grain, our wool, our beef, etc. The more we can use the greater the profit, unless, like some commercial manures, the cost is greater than the product. It will thus be seen that the farmer is a speculator; and he must see that he gets his manure cheap. The dung urine of the animals, and the refuse of the crops, are not only cheap but also applicable to all crops, as they are the debris of all. But still a cheaper, and the cheapest of all, is to grow heavy crops, especially clover and the pea, turn down. This may be done with some of the forage plants—a first cutting secured and the second turned down. And, remember, a clover crop, however heavy, is not exhaustive to the soil; it tills it with roots long, and thick, and close and though a crop, say of three tons, be taken, the second crop of equal or nearly equal amount, may be turned down.

This crop with the roots, and mellowness of the soil, (caused by the expansion of the roots,) will be one of the preparations, but particularly for wheat. You thus manure your land richly and get a good crop while doing it, no drawing, no composting, no scraping, no saving. The reason is you get it from a free source—or the grain gets it for you—from the atmosphere. This is all known, yet farmers are not growing clover as much as they should, particularly as heavy as they should, preparing the land, sowing thick, and using plaster always, and sometimes manure, as top dressing, to give a start There is little danger of an excessive growth of straw at the expense of the berry with the clover manure as it readily rots, and the roots make a good distribution through the land making "old" manure (rooted) or soil, ready for plant-food, the land being greatly benefitted mechanically.—American Farm Journal

About Calves.

In this part of the country I think that calves should come in the two months beginning with the middle of March and ending with the middle of May. My reasons for saying this are these. They seem stronger and thrive better than they do if they come much earlier or much later. If the calf seems weak and does not get up soon, it is well to draw a little of its mother's milk, and then, after putting two fingers in its mouth, pour two or three spoonfuls in between the fingers very slowly, and in nine cases out of ten it will make an effort to get up. Stand by and steady it if it goes to fall down, and you will be surprised to see what a difference a little milk will make.

A calf should run with the cow until her milk is good for about four days.—Then it should be taken away, and, if the weather is stormy and cold, it must be put in a stable; but if it is pleasant it may be put in a lot where it can have a good bite of grass. If it is in a stable it should have a little prime, early-cut hay. In either case it should have new milk for a few days, when it may be gradually changed for skim-milk. I think that five gallons of skim-milk is worth as much as four gallons of new milk to make a calf grow. A calf ought to have milk for six months, if possible, and during this time it should have good pasture and a little meal composed of bran, oil meal, and corn meal, in equal parts, and in the fall it will be enough better that common calves to pay the extra time, trouble and expense.—American Stock Journal.

Hints from Practical Farmers.

I have found coal tar the best covering for stumps of large limbs or spots where the trunk is barked by whiffle-trees. Having used it a few years since, I found the wounds healed over finely.

If you have a field of wheat harrow it, but as an experiment, suppose you leave a strip of a rod or so, and then when the crop is harvested, see if there is not a decided advantage in harrowing.

An old and unusually successful farmer, of Norfolk, Mass., says he has tried orchard grass for a dry upland pasture, and with very satisfactory results, and he feels like recommending it to his brother farmers as worthy of trial.

In preparing nests for setting hens, plenty of sulphur should be sprinkled in the nest, and occasionally more added until the chickens appear. If a good sulphur and ashes dust bath is provided, there need not be much fear of trouble with the chicks.

We can give an instance of corn saved by simply putting in a layer of coarse brush between the layers of corn. A friend claims that his corn dried out and was saved by this method, while that of his neighbor molded.

H. Ives, of Batavia, N. Y., writes that having raised orchard grass for several years, he would recommend it for light dry land. He finds one bushel of seed to the acre sufficient if well put in, as it will thin itself and grow in hassocks any way.

THE CABBAGE WORM.—This last importation of the worm family is reported to be very destructive in some localities, and of course, like the potato beetle, unless precautions are taken, will infest every garden. The usual nostrums of buckwheat flour, bran, &c., are useless. It is confidently asserted that flour of sulphur dusted over the leaves, is a preventive of its ravages. The trial of it is simple, cheap and easy.

LIFE, GROWTH, BEAUTY.
LONDON HAIR COLOR RESTORER.
LONDON HAIR COLOR RESTORER.

Not a Dye; makes harsh hair soft and silky; cleanses the scalp from all impurities, causing the hair to grow where it has fallen off or become thin.

Can be applied by the hand as it does not stain the skin or soil the finest linen. As a Hair Dressing it is the most perfect the world has ever produced. The hair is renovated and strengthened, and natural color restored without the application of mineral substances.

Since the introduction of this truly valuable preparation into this country, it has been the wonder and admiration of all classes, as it has proved to be the only article that will absolutely, without deception, restore gray hair to its original color, health, softness, lustre and beauty, and produce hair on bald heads of its original growth and color.

This beautiful and fragrantly perfumed article is complete within itself, no washing or preparation before or after its use, or accompaniment of any kind being required to obtain these desirable results.

OF ITS SUPERIOR EXCELLENCE.

Read this Home Certificate, testified to by Edward B. Garrigues one of the most competent Druggists and Chemists of Philadelphia, a man whose veracity none can doubt.

I am happy to add my testimony to the great value of the "London Hair Color Restorer," which restored my hair to its original Color, and the hue appears to be permanent. I am satisfied that this preparation is nothing like a dye but operates upon the secretions. It is also a beautiful hair dressing and promotes the growth. I purchased the first bottle from Edward B. Garrigues, druggist, Tenth and Coates street, who can also testify my hair was quite gray when I commenced its use.
MRS. MILLER,
No. 730 North Ninth street, Phila.

Dr. Swayne & Son, Respected friends:—I have the pleasure to inform you that a lady of my acquaintance, Mrs. Miller, is delighted with the success of your "London Hair Color Restorer." Her hair was falling rapidly, and quite gray. The color has been restored, the falling off entirely stopped, and a new growth of hair is the result.

Druggist, cor. Tenth and Coates, Phila.

BOSTON TESTIMONY.

July 22d, 1871.—Dr. Swayne & Son: Last winter while in Trenton, N. J., I procured six bottles "London Hair Color Restorer," which I like very much, in fact better than anything I have used in the last nine years. If you please, send me one dozen bottles C. O. D., care of W. S. Fogler & Son, Druggists, No. 723 Tremont street, Boston.

SWAYNE'S OINTMENT.
HOME TESTIMONY.

I was sorely afflicted with one of the most distressing of all diseases Pruritus or Prurigo, or more commonly known as Itching Piles. The itching at times was almost intolerable, increased by scratching, and not unfrequently become quite sore. I bought a box of "Swayne's Ointment," its use gave quick relief, and in a short time made a perfect cure. I can now sleep undisturbed, and I would advise all who are suffering from this distressing complaint to procure "Swayne's Ointment" at once. I had tried prescriptions almost innumerable, without finding any permanent relief. JOSEPH W. CHRIST,
