Here is an article for farmers' wives which might be read to their husbands with profit. It is a story told by a woman in the Boston Cultivator, and many can no doubt testify from their own experience that it is sadly true: "She has four little girls-the eldest six years and the youngest three months. Her husband keeps six cows, and cultivates a farm of a hundred acres, employing two hired men to help him. Three meals must be cooked daily for a family of seven, not counting the baby; four children dressed and cared for; the milk of six cows attended to, and butter made;

while the weekly washing and ironing while the weekly washing and ironing must be accomplished in some way. From four o'clock in the morning till ten and sometimes eleven at night, one pair of hands and one pair of feet perform this labor, and now the tired body rebels and and says: 'This cannot be endured.'

"Let me tell you of another case: The farmer and his wife have three children, all under eight years. He employs two hired men, boarding them, and keeps eleven cows. A woman comes in to do the washing and ironing, but that is all none can doubt. the assistance the wife receives, except the few steps her children save her. She must rise at four o'clock and prepare breakfast, so that her husband and the hands can be in the mowing field by five. Every other day, however, one of the hir ed men remains to do the churning for men remains to do the churning for MRS. MILLER, her; but this favor was not allowed her until she had threatened to call in the doctor to declare to her husband her inability to do such hard work. Then it was reluctantly conceded, although two forty. pound firkins of butter were packed each week; for our farmer prides himself on his herd of cows-pure blood Alderneysand sells his butter at the highest rates, carefully depositing its proceeds in the bank and rarely giving his wife so much as a five-dollar bill of it. His last injunction to the 'hand', as he departs to the field, is: 'John, come just as quick as you can. Don't let Mrs. M. keep you for anything else. Hay can't wait for woman's work.' There are dishes to wash, milk to skim, pans to scald, beds to make, children to dress, baby to nurse, rooms to sweep, and dinner to cook over the boiling hot stove; and one woman to do it all !"

Farm Wagons,

A writer in a Canada paper makes some goods points in favor of broad wheels for farm wagons. He says:

I can say a good word for broad wheels as we used them on our farm in England. To the best of my recollection the tires were five or six inches wide, and the iron was put on, not in bent rims, but streaks nailed on with large square headed nails. This was also a saving whenever we had to travel on the turnpike road, as the toll is much less on broad than narrow wheels. In carting out manure on plowed ground, for instance, for potatoes, the wheels would CONSUMPTION not sink so deep as the horses did. Such wheels might not last so long, as driving so many large nails tends to weaken the felloes. A four inch tire would be wide enough for this country, and if the hubs, felloes, and spokes of the wheels were boiled in oil before they are put together, the wood would never shrink; so tires coughs, would last without resetting until they are worn out. This would cause an additional expense of two dollars for the four wheels of a wagon; but then the expense wheels of a wagon; but then the expense of resetting would be saved, besides avoiding the risk of the tire coming off on the road, and probable break down. But it is difficult to persuade the generality of is difficult to persuade the generality of farmers that a little judicious expenditure at the beginning is best economy in the end. A wagon maker in my neighborhood tells me that he could make better and stronger work than he does, but farmers will not pay the increased expense.

Bruising Horses.

The following sensible advice is from the New England Farmer:

"A man who will habitually take a horse through a narrow door knows very little of what a horse remembers, or what is fair treatment to the animal. One single blow on the hip against the sharp corner of a doorway is sometimes sufficient | 330 North Sixth Street, Philadelphia to ruin a valuable horse. But when the blow has been several times repeated he becomes valueless, because he has become a highly dangerous animal. We have seen a horse whose hips were never healed after striking two or three times in passing through a narrow way. Another dangerous practice is the leading of horses of hay, grain etc. A slight blow upon the hip will sometimes so excite a highspirted horse that the person leading loses control over him and he escapes upon a jump, banging his shoulders and hips as he proceeds, leaving patches of skin and hair as evidence that he has got through.

Twas sorry annead with one of the loss discovery since of all diseases Pruritus or Prurityo, or more commonly known as Itching Pites. The itching at times was almost intolerable, increased by scratching, and not unfrequently become quite sore. I bought a box of "Snayne's Ointment," its Many a valuable horse has been ruined in this way, and many a valuable one can be saved by never leading them through a ment' at once. I had tried prescriptions almost ment' at once. narrow space."
