CIDER.—The apple produces cider, a beverage which ought to be far more commonly used and more cheaply obtained than it is. Good cider used to be as common in the hair to grow where it has fallen off or become thin. Northern Atlantic States, and particularly in New England and in New Jersey, as good milk-almost as good water. It was drank daily, ing it is the most perfect the world has ever proand generally three times a day, not only by the rural population, duced. The hair is renovated and strengthened, but by those in the towns. It was and natural color restored without the application cheap, so cheap that the poorest people drank it. Now good cider search for. It is almost unfindable; and when found, it is very dear, costing about three times as much as wine does in the countries of Eular on bald heads of its original growth and color.

Since the introduction of this truly valuable preparation into this country, it has been the wonder and admiration of all classes, as it has proved to be the only article that will absolutely, without deception, restore gray hair to its original color, health, softness, lustre and beauty, and produce of the countries of Eular on bald heads of its original growth and color.

The Attention of this truly valuable save money these panic times, see what our prices are, then come and see the goods for yourselves and be convinced that we mean to do what we say. rope. This ought not to be. Cider has qualities which make it, in moderation a most desirable beverage for us, and it has virtues which give it a very great and a specific value in one the most painful and disstressing diseases to which the male sex is subject. But the cider that is generally offered is not fit for any one to drink. It is made without care, or refuse apples, the decay in which is plainly to be tasted in their juice even after fermentation. It is neglected, and becomes sour and offensive. The consequence is that there is a prospect of its disappearance in the wake of perry, a beverage made from pear juice, of which most of our readers probably heard, and which probably none of them ever tasted. Journal of Health: To cure fever and ague take twelve grains of quinine at one dose, about an hour before the chill is expected. Just one week from that hour take another twelve grains of quinine.--The disease will seldom return. This is a dose for an adult. Children should take smaller doses according to age. The reason that decided doses of quinine cure fever and ague seems to be that the dis ease receives a shock which breaks it. Small doses of quinine only hold in check during the time the medicine is being taken; as soon as it is suspended the disease usually returns. Hence the popular notion that the quinine only "feeds" the disease. The fault is not with the medicine, but in the manner of ad- CONSUMPTION! ministering it. While we do not

When the grains are tender, have ready two ounces of sweet butter, mixed smooth with one table-spoonful of flour. Stir the butter into the soup, and let it boil ten minutes longer. Just before taking out of the pot, beat up an egg and stir into it, with salt and pepper to your taste.

GREEN-CORN FRITTERS.—Take a dozen well-filled ears of corn, grate pulp off well, and add two eggs and a little salt. Mix well, and fry like small pan-cakes, taking care to have them thoroughly done.
