Farm and Household.

WATERING TREES .- Sometimes it s necessary to water fruit and other rees, which were set this or last season, to save them in a severe drouth. Once a week is often enough to water them; but it must then be done copiously. I usually apply 10 gallons to half a barrel of water to each tree when pretty large. take a 10 gallon keg, and a butter firkin to pump the water into, set the keg on a wheelbarrow, fill from the firkin, and place it by the side of the keg, then fill a large waterpot, set that on also; thus I carry about 20 gallons at a time, with a piece of carpet over the whole, to keep the water from slopping out. In this way a large number of trees can be watered in a short time. The nose of the water pot should have holes that will let the water out rapidly. August is generally the severest month we have on trees, and it pays to attend to them.

TICKS ON SHEEP .- No good farmer who keeps sheep will allow them to become covered wit ticks and make no effort to de troy them. Here is the way a successful wool grower manages his sheep: "Seven years ago, two weeks after shearing, I immersed my lambs in tobacco water, being careful to keep their eyes and noses out. As soon as they were dry. I commenced book of the kind extant. as they were dry, I commenced feeding sulphur to my sheep with their salt, being careful to feed soon after a storm, in order that the sheep might not get wet while the pores of the skin were open from the action of the sulphur. During the past seven years I have avoided driving my sheep into a sheep wash until the yard has been empty at least twenty-four hours. I have seen but seven ticks on my flock of 100 during these seven years, and they were introduced by the purchase of rams."

ARTIFICIAL INCUBATION. - Some fowl breeders are restless under the ordinary way of hatching chickens, and are looking around for an artificial incubator to hatch out 500 or 1,000 at a time. To such men I would say, don't look any further, as it is entirely useless to think that you can succeed with such a "machine." There are several artificial incubators now advertised for sale in the United States; but none of them will give satisfaction when we have changes in the weather suddenly of from 30 to 50 degrees, as we often do. The fact that such incubators have been in the market from time to time, for 40 years, without any one having been able to succeed permanently with them, ought to show that they are more interested in theory than in practice.

Keep your money and use hens. GARGET OR SWOLLEN BAG. - When a cow has a swollen bag, or udder, it is called garget. The udder should be bathed frequently with cold water. Give the cow, in a bran mash, 7 or 8 drops of tincture of aconite once a day for three or four days. "Scoke root" fed in the mash will also generally abate the inflamation in a few days. Another of the secretive organs, allays inflammation, cures ulceration and regulates the bowels. remedy is as follows: Give a dose of epsom salts morning and night until its action is perceived. Three-quarters of a pound is not an excessive quantity. Dissolve this in a bottle filled with warm water, then remedy is as follows: Give a dose pour it down the animal's throat.

In fact, VZGETINE is the best remedy yet discovered for the above diseases, and is the only reliable Blood Purified yet placed before the public. cough she assuredly will.

A CHEAP WOODLAND FENCE .-Take unsharpened rails, make the fence three rails high, as follows: Let one end of each rail rest on the ground, raising the other ends as high as you want the fence. The first rail is secured in its place by two stakes driven in the form of an The next rail is placed some feet behind the one staked, so that when two stakes are driven into the ground, and resting on the rail already in position, they will support the second rail at the proper height, and thus the fence is continued, the the stakes supporting the upper rail, and also holding the next under one firmly down under the cross.

THE WAY TO APPLY LIME.—Lime should always be slaked before applying it to land. It ought to be Packing Butter.—Stone jars are the best vessels to pack small quantities of butter in. Tubs should always be made to hold brine and of wood that imparts no bad flavor. The butter should be well worked to get out all the butter-milk, then in packing press it down firmly, so as to exclude the air, cover with brine till you can fill the firkin, then cover with a cloth over which a layer of fine salt is to be laid, covering the entire surface, and your butter will keep well till sold.

ORANGE PUDDING.—Wash the salt out of half a pound of butter, mix MARBLE MANTLES, MONUMENTS. it with the same quantity of powdered sugar and wine-glass of brandy, grate the rind of three large oranges, and squeeze out their juice; beat six fresh eggs, stir them into the butter and sugar, then add the prepared orange; lay a puff paste around the pudding-dish, and bake from half to three-quarters of an hour; eat cold with sugar. Lemons may be used in the same way.

Molasses Cake.—Two cups of Porto Rico molasses, one cup of lard, three-quarters of a cup of water, tablespoonful of ginger, three teaspoonfuls of saleratus, dissolved; for Restorer is used very extensively among my patients and friends, as well as by myself.
