Strange Substances in a Horse's Stomach.

Somewhat over a year ago Mr. Henry Bennethum, stove dealer, of Reading, was compelled to kill a horse, which had been under medical treatment for some time, suffering with unknown disease. A post-tomortem examination was made, and there were found in the stomach and intestines of the animal a number of stones of different shape, of a calcarious nature, and exceedingly hard, which had been worn smooth and become highly polished by constant attrition. How the stones came there was a subject of much conjecture. By many, it was supposed that they had been mixed with the hay or feed and swall-lowed by the animal accidently. The composition of the stones, however, explosing the the composition of the stones, however, explosing the the composition of the stones, however, explosing the composition of the stones, however, explosing the composition of the stones, however, explosing the composition of the matter remained so their its remained the world, and in all countries where it is known, has been justly eight and the matter remained shifted price for the world and in all countries where it is known, has been justly eight and the matter remained shifted price for the world and in all countries where it is known, has been justly eight and the matter remained shifted price for the most and efficient price in the efficient properties. The loop in the following caution to all the trusting people of this county, and to enury eyes of the truth loving: It having come eyes of the truth loving: It having come to our knowledge that a certain class of shop-keepers in this town considered themselves the fruits of his extensive properties ompelled to kill a horse, which had been ded that theory and the matter remained as much of a mystery as ever.

More recently about a peck of stones, of the size of turnips, bearing a close resemblance to that vegetable, were found in the intestines of a horse by Mr. Daniel Levan, eity scavenger, of Reading. These were supposed by some to have been petrified CONSUMPTION! turnips, although a subsequent examination of them showed that they must have formed inside of the stomach in small lumps which gradually increased, hardened, and finally found their way into the intestines causing death. To show that these phenomena are not the only ones of the kind that have been discovered in this Pa ountry, we produce the following taken from the Troy (N. Y.) Press.

John Brown, superintendent of the Troy and Lansingburg horse railroad, has in his possession two specimens of natural phenomena which our scientists would do well to examine, and, if possible, render some lucid explanation of. One is a large round stone having the appearance of a highly polished piece of marble mottled in appearance and beautiful in color. It is as hard as flint, and exceedingly difficult to scratch or mar, in any way, and weighs one and one-half pounds. This was taken from the intestines of a horse that died some time ago, and is probably formed from secretions of dirt and dust that had gathered in the stomach of the animal and which by the process of time had become formed and hardened into this beautiful semblance of polished marble. It has passed from the stomach, and in its passage through the intestinal channels had lodged A Good Family Medicine. and caused the animal's death. Another more singular still in its shape and formation, was taken from the intestines of a horse that died at Cohoes last week. This curiosity is as large as a man's clenched fist, and has the appearance of a calcarious substance. In size, shape, and general appearance it resembles a petrified sponge. This also caused the animal's death in the same manner as the preceding. The only theory advanced thus far in the explanation of this stone is, that at some time the horse had swallowed a piece of sponge, and in time had petrified. Questions and Answers.

Clover furnishes a popular means. Ferility grows by covering this kind of land with a thick sod and filling the soil with What are the leading characteristics of the box alder? It is easily grown, of quick growth, is hardy, indigenous, and is equally good for wind breaks and for timber. Can refuse hair from tanneries be utilized with profit on a farm? Yes, it is a valuable fertilizer. The pair is usually mixed with lime; when spread broadcast this produces an immediate effect, though the action of the hair is slow, The best results are obtained from this refuse when it is poured in or mixed with the soil. It greatly increases the fertility of dairy farms, is said to be preferable to barnyard manure for turnips, and is an excellent fertilizer for cabbage. Can fowls be assisted in the process of changing the feathers? The moulting season is really a most trying one to them. During the moulting period the blood is drawn from for the materials which compose the feathers, and this drain is often so great as to weaken the fowl; the remedy is to give as feed elements which will most quickly replace the exhausted blood. Fish, refuse ground bone and powdered oyster shells are recommended for feed; and for drink, water supplied with rusty iron; also a little milk each day is good for them. CHEWING THE CUD. - Moore's Rural New-Yorker thinks that all ruminant animals would be in a bad predicament if they were liable to lose their cud every time somebody gave them a kick, chased them down hill, or when they happened to cough suddenly from getting a little hay seed or dust down their throats! ADAMSTOWN, Lancaster Co., Pa.

Dr. Swayne & Son. Gentlemen:—About two years ago my wife was suffering from consumption, her cough at times was very distressing, and during her sickness had the best medical attendance in this and adjoining counties. Her case was pronounced hopeless by all of them. I was induced through the recommendation of your agent, Dr. Isaac H. Miller, of West Brecknock, Berks county, Pa., and who can verify these facts, to try Dr. Swayne's Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry. After using it for some time, she was entirely cured, and is now as well as ever, and fully able to perform her usual labor. I am so fully satisfied that it is to your preparation that I am indebted for her restoration to health, that I grant you full liberty to give her case publicity, in the hope that others now suffering may derive benefit from her experience.

Yours, respectfully, HENEY G. MOHN.

ITCHING PILES

Is generally preceded by a moisture, like perspiration, distressing itching, as though pin worms were crawling in and about the rectum, particularly at night when undressing, or in bed after getting warm. It appears in summer as well as winter, and is not confined to males only, but it is quite as frequent that females are sorely sufficted, particularly in times of pregnancy, extending into the vagina, proving distressing almost beyond the powers of endurance. Cases of long standing, pronounced incurable, have been permanently cured by simply applying

But they seem to have forgotten, if they ever knew it, that the straight path is the best, and instead they choose to follow the path of crookedness, with its natural consequences of falsehood, and blindness to all that common sense dictates. We are astonished to hear a man talk of shoddy trash who advertises one of Dr. Swayne's Compound Syrup the necessities of life, namely calico, one of the commonest trashes (to use his refined expression) the universe can boast of. It has been remarked to us that a man who offers the best Madder prints, an article which would be easily mistaken for a poor imitation of cob-web, must be either a knave, or a fool, or both. He either imagines he can fool his enlightened fellow-citizens with SOFTWORDS and bland smiles, or thinks they are not able to tell the difference, which would bring him under the humbugs. Having probably been living in the city for a short time and listening to the harrangue of street peddlers, now tries to imitate their style and tricks on an enlightened public, by advertising an article, which he either never kept, or never intends to sell at the advertised price. As they have posted in

"BEWARE OF PICKPOCKETS!" we are to post up in front of such people's houses, BEWARE OF HUMBUGS! and would do a lasting favor to all our fellow citizens.
