At one time there were four furnaceslocated in the head of Stone valley, but either on account of poor construction, or the want of capital and energy, all but one, the Greenwood Furnace, have been allow-ed to remain out of blast for years and are now only hope, therefore, which can be entertained for the developement of the fossil-ore of Stone valley, is that they may be introduced in the general market. To do this it is necessary that rail road onnection should be had with the Pennsylvania R. R., the greatest tronsportation route in the country. A branch rail road could be built, from country. A branch rail road could be built, from Huntingdon to some point in the head of the val-ley, at a cost of not more than $20,000 per mile. This would stimulate every branch of industry, develope the iron and lumber interests, and bene-fit the valley in every way. Though the amount of traffic on this road would doubtless pay good interest on the capital invested, cerpitalists will not table do good a pariet when the scene interest on the capital invested, crpitalists will not take hold of such a project unless the people of the valley make the first move. If the farmers and other residents will wake up to a realization of the great benefit a railroad will be to them, and will have the route surveyed by a good engineer, estimates of cost made, &c., and in every way call the attention of the moneyed men to this locality, which is in some ways so highly favored, there is no doubt but that in a few years they might have a paying road and a well established traffic in the iron-ore, agricultural and other products of the yalley.
