while; they are out of the way through school drink, they ere in vision; they stumble in judgment." Again: "Woe unto him that giveth his neighbor strong drink." You will see from the above quotations that we have no encouragement for even moderate drinking in the Bible. The on-it refers would seem to be total abstinence. The man who walks on the railroad track by keeping a lookout each way may think he is safe still how many loose their lives in this way. Would it not be much safer to walk clear outside of the rack? I am now through and it is not possible to do justice to this great question in the space I have occupied. My friend, the Editor of the Glube, may be a temperance man; we may merely differ in our views on Bible temperance, he has occupied as much or more space in presenting his views on this question, than your correspondent. Our arguments are now before the reader and we have him to indee of their marity.

Rom. 14th, 21st: "It is good neither to eat flesh nor to drink wine nor anything whereby thy brother stumbleth or is offended or is made weak." Again in his first epistle to the Cor. 8th chapter: "Wherefore if meat make my brother to offend I will eat no flesh while the world standeth least I make my brother to offend." We think Paul's teachings here are clear and conclusive on this subject. He would have us understand that while his moderate use of wine and meat would be advisable and right, still if his using them would Here Paul sets an example. We should feel as he did that we are our brother's keeper and that we should not say or do anything that may cause a weak brother to offend. The more we look at this temperance question the more danger we see in trifling with intoxicating drinks. How can the little with the same of the same ter & ton ground
