Capabilities of an Acre.

J. M. Smith, a market-gardener, of Green Bay, furnishes the Horticulturist some interesting statements of experiments in high culture. He has found the rule invariable, not a single exception to it, that the more he has spent in cultivating and manuring, the greater has been the net profits per acre. Last season he cultivated tourteen acres, and began with a more thorough and expensive cultivation than ever before. The result was, that although there was a "terrific drouth" -one of the dryest seasons ever known in that region -after spending $3986, or $3334 per acre, he had a better balance than at any previous year. He appeared to regard constant cultivation especially, through drouth, in connection with copious manuring, as all important. Stable manure is the standard; with such use of superphosphates, plaster, lime, ashes and manures, as experience and good sense points out. "After you have learned to spend money to the best advantage," he remarked, "a larger profit may be made by laying out $300 per acre than with less. After the second year if your land does not pay all its expenses, taxes, and ten per cent. on $1,000 per acre, there is something wrong but for a number of years past, have not failed to pay ten per cen. on at least $2, 000 per acre. I expect my whole garden to do more than that in a short time." He adds that he is now aiming at 1,000 bushels of onions per acre, then a crop of carrots or turnips, or 500 bushels of early potatoes; or if trawberries, 12,800 quarts, or 400 bushels per acre. This amount of strawberries is not wholly impossible, as we have known, under our own observa tion, this rate on two thirds of an acre.

The Journal of Chemistry says there is an enormous difference in the value of the difference is mainly due to the varying amounts of water and nitrogeneous substances they contain. Take the difference in the manurial value, for illustration, between two kinds of oil producing seeds, linseed and cotton seed, after the expression of the oil. The worth of the manure from a ton of linseed cake is about $17.50 in the New England markets; that from a ton cotton seed cake is worth nearly $54.

Value of Cattle Food.

This value is based upon its use when fed to fattening animals. If fed to working oxen and milch cows, it falls about half this value. The amount of labor and milk obtained will be in proportion to the relative manurial value of the experiment. relative manurial value of the experiment.

All foods that hold a large amount of water, like roots, potatoes, apples, etc., have comparatively a small value as fattenhave comparatively a small value as fatten- eral si ning or working foods. The percentage of nitrogeneous and phosphatic substances is so small that large quantities must be consumed to produce desirable results. The percentage of water in several of our most ordinary foods is as follows: Meadow and clover hay...... 14.3 to 15 per cent

Dry grains of cereals etc...... 14.3

Cattle food should be selected with reference to the ends desired in their use, and the relative costs of the same. The Journal says food for work, for milk, for fattening, should be better understood among ing, should be better understood among and thinks the time will come

Sand for Cattle Bedding

Sand if not the best, is one of the best articles in use for bedding cattle. It is a good deodorizer, and keeps the stable sweet. As the cattle work it back into the manure, and thus divides it and makes it more suitable for the use of plants. If the distance to haul is not too far, its very cheapness ought to recommend its use. In JAUNDICE, NAUSEA, JOEN HEADACHE, COLIC, CONSTITUTION and BILLIOUSNESS. barns that have no cellars, were it used freely, it would absorb a large amount of urine that is now wasted. Soil and muck are dirty things to use in the stable, and sand is clean. Then, too, it is a nice thing to use under hen roosts, to receive the droppings, which can be easily raked off and kept in barrels, and in spring mix with fine cow manure-one part of the being shoveled over, thoroughly two or three times, makes a mass of rich manure. WHEN a cow's milk suddenly dries up and becomes clotted in the udder it is probably due to garget or inflammation of the udder from some one of many causes. The udder is then hard or lumpy, and hot. A remedy is to give the cow at once 8 or 12 ounces of Epsom salts, with half an ounce of saltpetre, repeating the latter in six hours. If the milk is difficult to draw. a solution of one ounce of carbonate of soda in a pint of water should be injected in the teats with a syringe, and then milked out. This will bring away the curded milk which, if left in, will make matters very much worse. If the cow is feverish. the saltpetre may be repeated for a day or two. To bathe the udder in cold water. rubbing and squeezing it gently for a considerable time, is useful. TOOTH WASH .- Dissolve two ounces TOOTH WASH.—Dissolve two ounces of borax in three pounds of boiling water, and before it is cold add one tablespoonful of snivits of campher, and bottle for use.
