"Thus we see that exempting church property from taxation violates the spirit of our political institutions and the letter of the Constitutions of the United States and Pennsylva-nia. The Constitution of the United States declares that "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof," and the Constitution of Pennsylvania says "all men have a natural and indefeasible right to worship Almighty God according to the dictates of his own conscience; no man can of right be compelled to attend, ERECT OR SUPPORT ANY PLACE of worship, or to maintain any ministry against his consent; no human authority can, in any case whatever, control or interfere with the rights of conscience, and no preference shall ever be given by law to any religious estab-lishments or modes of worship." Yet the law exempting church properties from taxation does give a preference to religious establish-ments, not over each other, it is true, but over other properties, and thus aids and fosters them through moneys extorted from unwilling hands, and it compels tax payers to aid in erecting and supporting places of worship, and, indirectly, to maintain religious ministries against their consent. This fact is too plain to admit of dispute or doubt.

"The taxes are really paid in the main by the poor—the working, producing classes. The rich property holder adds his taxes to the rents of his houses and his poor tenants pay them, and in this and other ways the bulk of taxation falls upon the laboring classes. If the church properties in this city would yield $1,000,000 per annum of revenue to the city $1,000,000 per annum of revenue to the city their exemption leaves the workingmen the chief of that amount to pay. Now, it is these very people who derive the least benefit from the churches, which are mostly built for and occupied by the rich. In the first place, there are not half enough churches or church build ings to accommodate the people, even if all our citizens could afford the luxury of religious worship in the costly edifices and under our citizens could afford the luxury of reng-ious worship in the costly edifices and under the expensive ministry of this city. Yet those who are compelled, as well as those who pre-fer, to stay at home have to pay money to support these churches and their ministers. Of course, it is out of the question for the produ cing classes—the workingmen of our city—to attend churches in which pew rent would be as great as their house rent, to say nothing of other expenses incident to worship in our modern churches. Nor would they feel at home in such fine edifices and among such fine people, who would not give them a warm wel-Social distinctions are superior now to Christian duty, and Dives has the highest seat in the modern synagogue. There is no chance for Lazarus nor for even those who are not wretchedly indigent in churches that cost hundreds of thousands and whose ministers are paid thousands per annum; in which the pew doors bear silver labels denoting their owners, and velvet cushions, velvet stools to kneel upon and gilded hymn and prayer books prevail. Yet these excluded people have to pay the principal part of a million dollars a year toward sustaining these magnificent temples of religion—these modest tabernacles dedicated to the worship of the "Divine Car penter of Nazareth"-the meek and lowly Je-

The church properties belong to the rich, and they should be taxed as other properties are. Those who enjoy their benefits should pay for what they enjoy; and each religious sect should pay for energy; and each religious sect should pay for erecting its own churches and for sustaining them. And pretended and partial institutions of charity and cemeteries that are "held for profit" and every sort of property, except such public property as the tax-payers own, should be taxed according to its true value. The Legislature should take this in hand at once."

It is claimed, and with some show of justice, that the President ought to have in place those who can co-operate with him in harmony.
