

W. L. FOULK, Agent of the Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia Press Association.

Is the only person in Pittsburgh authorized to receive advertisements for the JOURNAL. He has our best rates.

Official Daily Report of the Board of Health.

The physicians report the following number of cases in this borough, under their care, for the week ending Thursday morning, 24th inst.:

Table with columns for Small-Pox, Measles, Chicken-Pox, and Cholera, with corresponding counts for each day of the week.

Geo. Wells (colored) died at half past two o'clock, a. m., on the 18th; a son of Mrs. Samuel Heck died at 7 o'clock on the 19th.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

Brief Mention—Home-made and Stolen.

Business is still dull. Look out for swindlers.

Huntingdon had a quiet Sabbath. The public welfare season is near.

Chambersburg wants a baby show. See report of the Board of Health at the head of this column.

There are forty-one prisoners confined in the Blair county jail.

"Midnight omithology" is the latest scientific name for a chicken thief.

On Monday afternoon the court granted license to all applicants.

Huntingdonians are not welcome visitors just now in other places.

Huntingdon has had four midnight funerals within the past two weeks.

"A Dhrum," by "Dennis O'Rafferty, esq.," has been crowded out this week.

In Blacklick township, Cambria county, wolves are playing havoc among the sheep.

At Mann's ex factory, in Millin county, $3,000 axes were rolled in a week recently.

Ex-Governor Critchfield delivered his lecture on "Russia," in Tyrone, on Monday evening last.

Chief-of-Police Westbrook "knows how to do it," what it is more, he has the nerve to do it.

Two traps occupied the lockup on Saturday night, but they left town early on Sunday morning.

Much interesting reading matter will be found on the first and fourth pages of to day's Journal.

We learn from the Times that four hundred and fifty persons have signed the temperance pledge in Mt. Union.

There is quite a perceptible falling off in railroad travel to and from this place within the past two weeks.

John A. Lenton, of Hollidaysburg, has been elected one of the vice presidents of the State Agricultural Society.

Advertisers will bear in mind that the circulation of the JOURNAL exceeds that of any other paper in the county by a hundred and fifty per cent.

Col. Jim Milliken turned up at Cairo, Egypt, with fair prospects, he writes, getting a position under the Khedive.

We see it stated that W. H. Schwartz, local editor of the Hollidaysburg Standard, is to be the localizing on the Altoona Daily Tribune.

A successful religious revival is in progress in the M. B. Church at Manassas, under the management of the pastor, Rev. C. M. Robbins.

A policeman who is too cowardly to bite the or of his chief is unfit for the position, and the powers that be should get with his head.

Everybody, "and all their relations," should take the JOURNAL, the handiwork and best printed paper in this county. Only $2 per annum.

Remember that the JOURNAL Job Room turns out the handiwork, most attractive and cheap Seal Bills in the county. Send us your order.

Large numbers of citizens visited the hospital during its erection, but since its occupation their visits are like angels' wings and fair between."

N. B. Corbin, of this place, made an assignment on Tuesday last, for the benefit of his creditors. K. Allen Lovell, esq., was selected as his assignee.

George Wells, a highly respected colored citizen of this place, died of small-pox on Friday morning last. He leaves a wife and two small children.

Some of our citizens get vaccinated every few days, and propose to do so during the prevalence of small-pox in our midst. A pretty good idea, we opine.

A shooting-match will come off in this place, on the 22d prox, for a valuable prize, free to the market of this and adjoining counties. More anon.

We understand that the family of James Carroll, who died of small-pox, in Patterson, a week or so ago, are down with the same disease, though in a mild form.

Joseph O'Kain, of Walker township, came to town on Monday afternoon, full of whisky, behaved badly, and for his misconduct spent the night in the lockup.

Judge Watson of Bucks county, is presiding this week in the Blair county court, and Judge Perkins of Schuylkill county, is presiding the fourth week of the present term.

The old hen that scattered "chicken-pox" throughout this community a few weeks ago, has gone to roost. An article appearing in the "Journal," did the business for her.

Ed. McHugh, of Huntingdon, put in an appearance this week, but he didn't wait to be interviewed on the prevailing topic of Huntingdon—what is it?—Oscola Recelle.

A lady who lives in the Thirty-third ward, Pittsburgh, has had the small-pox for a couple of weeks. The other day she gave birth to a babe, which had the disease when born.

Billy Dunn's shanty, at the base of Cemetery Hill, was fired, on Saturday afternoon last, by the Board of Health, and together with all it contained, entirely destroyed.

A lady in West Huntingdon says that "confused chicken-pox" since the Journal made its bold and gallant fight for the safety of the masses.

Our old friend, Capt. A. S. Harrison, of this place, was sorry to hear that a strike with apple-ox on Monday night, and is now lying in rather a precarious condition at his residence in West Huntingdon.

Mr. Abner Lamp, who died on Friday morning last of small-pox, was one of our best citizens, and his unexpected death cast a gloom over the entire community. He leaves a wife and eight children to mourn his death.

Six pairs of boots were stolen from the shop of Mr. Charles Kershaw, on Railroad street, on Sunday night last. An entrance was gained to the building through a door leading off a porch into the second story. No clue to the thieves.

We hear of one man, who had six vaccinations put upon his arm, and all of them taking effect. He says that although he was taking the "confused chicken-pox" if there be any virtue in vaccination that man will be proof against the contagion.

And now the editor of the Lewistown Sentinel gives a vivid description of the similarity between small-pox and "confused" chicken-pox? Such blasphemous nonsense! Who in this place has heard so much about chicken-pox that they almost gag at the sound of the words.

A FEW UNDENIABLE FACTS.

CHAMBERSBURG, PENNA., Jan. 17th, 1878.

Mr. Editor:—I have your attention called to a very lengthy article in the Local News, by one of your resident physicians, the same being a compilation or series of quotations from small-pox.

A number of eminent writers of the medical profession, and some standard authorities in this country. The writer of the article in question, however, is not a professional physician, and his quotations are not only untrustworthy, but are taken from a very different source.

The writer of the article in question, however, is not a professional physician, and his quotations are not only untrustworthy, but are taken from a very different source. He is a layman, and his quotations are not only untrustworthy, but are taken from a very different source.

Mr. Editor, I fear I have encroached too much upon your space, and perhaps upon the patience of your readers. I am, however, very interested in any article explanatory of the disease, and I am sure that you will be glad to see it.

Another matter, which I would like to have placed very fully before the members of the medical profession, is the fact that small-pox is not a new disease, but has been known since the earliest times.

Mr. Editor, I fear I have encroached too much upon your space, and perhaps upon the patience of your readers. I am, however, very interested in any article explanatory of the disease, and I am sure that you will be glad to see it.

Several requests have been sent to this office to discontinue the JOURNAL, and the small-pox in this town. This is altogether an unnecessary precaution.

Col. John R. Hunter, who has been suffering for months past, from paralysis, died at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. M. B. Massey, on Saturday morning, the 24th inst.

All of the churches in this place, with the exception of the Catholic, were closed on Sunday last. The churches were closed in consequence of the prevailing disease.

Mr. Abner Lamp, who died on Friday morning last of small-pox, was one of our best citizens, and his unexpected death cast a gloom over the entire community.

Several requests have been sent to this office to discontinue the JOURNAL, and the small-pox in this town. This is altogether an unnecessary precaution.

Mr. Abner Lamp, who died on Friday morning last of small-pox, was one of our best citizens, and his unexpected death cast a gloom over the entire community.

Several requests have been sent to this office to discontinue the JOURNAL, and the small-pox in this town. This is altogether an unnecessary precaution.

What Others Think and Say of Us.

It is not our duty to tell the world what we think and say of us.

The Local News of Friday devotes its inside pages to a letter to Dr. Weisting, in which authorities are quoted about the same way that a lawyer would quote a case.

The Local News says "all the physicians" of this town "agree that the disease (prevailing here) is not small-pox, but is a new disease, and is called 'confused chicken-pox'."

Doctors and Editors.—Dr. Geo. V. Ballantyne seems to have been the only one among the Huntingdonians who has distinguished himself by his correspondence between chicken-pox and small-pox.

Mr. Editor, I fear I have encroached too much upon your space, and perhaps upon the patience of your readers. I am, however, very interested in any article explanatory of the disease, and I am sure that you will be glad to see it.

Mr. Editor, I fear I have encroached too much upon your space, and perhaps upon the patience of your readers. I am, however, very interested in any article explanatory of the disease, and I am sure that you will be glad to see it.

Mr. Editor, I fear I have encroached too much upon your space, and perhaps upon the patience of your readers. I am, however, very interested in any article explanatory of the disease, and I am sure that you will be glad to see it.

Mr. Editor, I fear I have encroached too much upon your space, and perhaps upon the patience of your readers. I am, however, very interested in any article explanatory of the disease, and I am sure that you will be glad to see it.

Mr. Editor, I fear I have encroached too much upon your space, and perhaps upon the patience of your readers. I am, however, very interested in any article explanatory of the disease, and I am sure that you will be glad to see it.

Mr. Editor, I fear I have encroached too much upon your space, and perhaps upon the patience of your readers. I am, however, very interested in any article explanatory of the disease, and I am sure that you will be glad to see it.

Mr. Editor, I fear I have encroached too much upon your space, and perhaps upon the patience of your readers. I am, however, very interested in any article explanatory of the disease, and I am sure that you will be glad to see it.

Mr. Editor, I fear I have encroached too much upon your space, and perhaps upon the patience of your readers. I am, however, very interested in any article explanatory of the disease, and I am sure that you will be glad to see it.

Mr. Editor, I fear I have encroached too much upon your space, and perhaps upon the patience of your readers. I am, however, very interested in any article explanatory of the disease, and I am sure that you will be glad to see it.

Mr. Editor, I fear I have encroached too much upon your space, and perhaps upon the patience of your readers. I am, however, very interested in any article explanatory of the disease, and I am sure that you will be glad to see it.

What Others Think and Say of Us.

It is not our duty to tell the world what we think and say of us.

The Local News of Friday devotes its inside pages to a letter to Dr. Weisting, in which authorities are quoted about the same way that a lawyer would quote a case.

The Local News says "all the physicians" of this town "agree that the disease (prevailing here) is not small-pox, but is a new disease, and is called 'confused chicken-pox'."

Doctors and Editors.—Dr. Geo. V. Ballantyne seems to have been the only one among the Huntingdonians who has distinguished himself by his correspondence between chicken-pox and small-pox.

Mr. Editor, I fear I have encroached too much upon your space, and perhaps upon the patience of your readers. I am, however, very interested in any article explanatory of the disease, and I am sure that you will be glad to see it.

Mr. Editor, I fear I have encroached too much upon your space, and perhaps upon the patience of your readers. I am, however, very interested in any article explanatory of the disease, and I am sure that you will be glad to see it.

Mr. Editor, I fear I have encroached too much upon your space, and perhaps upon the patience of your readers. I am, however, very interested in any article explanatory of the disease, and I am sure that you will be glad to see it.

Mr. Editor, I fear I have encroached too much upon your space, and perhaps upon the patience of your readers. I am, however, very interested in any article explanatory of the disease, and I am sure that you will be glad to see it.

Mr. Editor, I fear I have encroached too much upon your space, and perhaps upon the patience of your readers. I am, however, very interested in any article explanatory of the disease, and I am sure that you will be glad to see it.

Mr. Editor, I fear I have encroached too much upon your space, and perhaps upon the patience of your readers. I am, however, very interested in any article explanatory of the disease, and I am sure that you will be glad to see it.

Mr. Editor, I fear I have encroached too much upon your space, and perhaps upon the patience of your readers. I am, however, very interested in any article explanatory of the disease, and I am sure that you will be glad to see it.

Mr. Editor, I fear I have encroached too much upon your space, and perhaps upon the patience of your readers. I am, however, very interested in any article explanatory of the disease, and I am sure that you will be glad to see it.

Mr. Editor, I fear I have encroached too much upon your space, and perhaps upon the patience of your readers. I am, however, very interested in any article explanatory of the disease, and I am sure that you will be glad to see it.

Mr. Editor, I fear I have encroached too much upon your space, and perhaps upon the patience of your readers. I am, however, very interested in any article explanatory of the disease, and I am sure that you will be glad to see it.

New Advertisements.

New A.

GOOD NEWS! GOOD NEWS! CUNNINGHAM'S CORNER ALIVE! ONE PRICE ONLY!

WE have the agency of the best 1 gal. Patent Coal Oil Can every brought before the public. It won't break, won't ding, won't spill, and is convenient, non-explosive, and is just the thing.

COFFEES—Roasted, 25c to 28c; Green, 20 to 25c; Sugars, 9, 10 and 11c; Granulated, 2 lbs for 25c.

COFFEES—Roasted, 25c to 28c; Green, 20 to 25c; Sugars, 9, 10 and 11c; Granulated, 2 lbs for 25c.

COFFEES—Roasted, 25c to 28c; Green, 20 to 25c; Sugars, 9, 10 and 11c; Granulated, 2 lbs for 25c.

COFFEES—Roasted, 25c to 28c; Green, 20 to 25c; Sugars, 9, 10 and 11c; Granulated, 2 lbs for 25c.

COFFEES—Roasted, 25c to 28c; Green, 20 to 25c; Sugars, 9, 10 and 11c; Granulated, 2 lbs for 25c.

COFFEES—Roasted, 25c to 28c; Green, 20 to 25c; Sugars, 9, 10 and 11c; Granulated, 2 lbs for 25c.

COFFEES—Roasted, 25c to 28c; Green, 20 to 25c; Sugars, 9, 10 and 11c; Granulated, 2 lbs for 25c.

COFFEES—Roasted, 25c to 28c; Green, 20 to 25c; Sugars, 9, 10 and 11c; Granulated, 2 lbs for 25c.

COFFEES—Roasted, 25c to 28c; Green, 20 to 25c; Sugars, 9, 10 and 11c; Granulated, 2 lbs for 25c.

COFFEES—Roasted, 25c to 28c; Green, 20 to 25c; Sugars, 9, 10 and 11c; Granulated, 2 lbs for 25c.

COFFEES—Roasted, 25c to 28c; Green, 20 to 25c; Sugars, 9, 10 and 11c; Granulated, 2 lbs for 25c.