We were shown through the House, and we are free to say that we have never saw this House in better condition. The floors are clean, the bedding clean and comfortable, the rooms have none of that stench that we have been accustomed to when we have visited this place on previous occasions; the immates are all comfortable; they have all went through a washing process and some of them think Harmon believes in immersion. When we saw some of them we thought that they looked pale, but was told they had only got back to their natural color.
