Under him the road has grown to be one of the most formidable on the continent. Its influence penetrates to almost every county in the United States. It has proved itself to be the benefactor of millions of our people, and it would be strange indeed if some evils did not grow out of such a formidable aggregation of wealth and power, but these can be remedied without changing the head or in any way affecting the elective efficers of the road. The Pennsylvania Railroad is a Pennsylvania institution that has given caste and character to the old Keystone, and as a Pennsylvania institution that has given caste and character to the old Keystone, and as a Pennsylvania we are proud of it, and we feel that a change of the head of it any gurs no good for our grand old Commonwealth. HARRISBURG, March 10, 1878. The legislative mill has ground during the week some valuable grist. That it has ground it "exceeding fine," I dare not venture to assert, but it has beyond a doubt, ground very "slow." The most attractive points of the week's session have been the various legislative movements upon the Philadelphia Recorder's bill, the bill creating a State banking department, the new county bill for Luzerne, and the new county bill for Crawford and smaller counties.

Bell, of Georgia, Yeates, of North Carolina and Phillips, of Kansas—6. And against it, Messrs. Hardenbergh, of New Jersey, Eames, of Rhode Island, and Crittenden of New York—3. Mr. Hart, of New York was absent. Mr. Fort, of Illinois, did not vote. The text of the bill is as follows:

Be it enacted, etc. That coin certificates of the denominations of $10 and multiples there of up to $1,000 may, in the mode herein provided, be exchanged by the several Mints and assay offices of San Francisco, Denver, Bois city, Carson city, Philadelphia, New York and New Orleans for the net value of silver bullion deposited thereat, and the bullion so received in exchange for said coin certificates in silver. The silver thus deposited shall be computed in said exchange at its coining value, at the eart will inflict upon a deserving class of people, merchant dealers and shop-keepers, by imposing on them inconveniences and unwarranted taxes in the form of fees.

This resolution was read in the Senate on Tuesday, but seems to have had but little effect upon that august body, as the bill was passed through the series of the council of that city the Legislature is urged not to pass the bill. In its preamble this resolution recites that the Recorders bill is a measure originated evidently for the benefit of the pervisions, and such other persons as may enrich themselves from the patronage which this bill will confer, and that the massure is distasteful to the people of Philadelphia in every way, and for which they have not petrian the feet upon the same day that the first was triumphantly passed through in their fortunes. A bill of general interest now pending in the House is the one prohibiting shows and exhibitions

but its appearance in the House was followed by petitions from on every hand asking its passage.
It has already met with one defeat, but the vote
by which it was defeated has been reconsidered, and it now stands ready for another brush with
