VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

THE TRAMP SIDE OF THE STORY. EDITOR JOURNAL-Dear Sir :- We see almost daily accounts of impositions practiced on people by tramps, as they are called, and while this is in a great measure true, still, there are two sides to this story. Tramps are not all highwaymen or robbers, as some would represent them. We be-lieve many good, honest men are traveling over our country at this time of necessity, out of employment, and out of money; they have either to turn out in this way or starve, and just as soon as they get out of the bounds of their acquaintance they are classed with the tramps or highwaymen, so it is impossible for them to get employment. A poor man of this class recently gave a little history of his trials as a tramp, that certainly is touching. He showed a number of wounds that he had received from men for merely asking for semething to eat or drink. Although he had never done injury to any newer of the produced statistics. to any person, or property, he produced statistics to show that he was looked upon as a human er as he entered his gate only to ask for a drink of water. Sear number two was received when a how time flies as well as any one else?" He proceeded with his story. On the knee here is where a teamster stabbed me with a hay fork, because I halted him and inquired the road to wealth.
He thought I was making fun of him but I was not. I was honest in my question. If any man on earth wants to find that place I am the man.
He took off his old shoe and showed that his big too had been split in two by a man throwing an ax at him, all because he had asked his wife for sometifing to eat. He then struggled out of his when it was raining hard, I crept into a cow stable to rest and have a quiet hour to call up my childhood days, and think of a once happy home and a kind mother. But I had scareely lain down when a couple of chaps began slashing me with corn cutters, and here are the scars from that night's work that I will carry to my grave, as proof of the truth I tell you."

We have now given an outline of the wounds and sufferings this poor man had to endure as a tramp, and we have no doubt of its truthfulness, and it is no isolated case. A young man, who recently passed through our county on his way from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh, tells quite as sad a tale as the one mentioned above. This young man had saved enough money to starta little stationery wood, washed $\frac{\partial Double of the wounds a trained the property of the world of the wounds and the property of the world of the wounds are trained to the world of the wounds are trained to the world of the wounds are trained to the world of the wore tale as the one mentioned above. This young man had saved eneugh money to starts little stationery store with a partner in Philadelphia, but by some bad management of his partner, they were sold out, and he was left with only $30 in his pocket. This he spent in paying his board bill, and in trying to get employment in Philadelphia, but without success. He had a rich friend in Pittsburgh whom he thought would start him in business if he could get there, and as he had no money he thought he would steal a ride on a freight train, but he was compelled to jump off the car by one of the train hands drawing a pick handle over him, when the train was under full speed, and in jumping he fell and cut a terrible gash in his forehead, baring his skull, and also had his nose broken. After gaining strength enough to walk, he went to the comand offered to load his wagon if he would give him something to eat, or a place to sleep that night, but the man refused, said he could load his own bark, and would have nothing to do with him. We have now briefly told the tale of this young man's sufferings in coming from Philadelphia to Huntingdon county, as related by himself. He wore very good clothes, and had all the appearance of a truthful gentleman. We are happy to say here, that he met with a friend or two in this county who had souls large enough to give him money to take him to his friend in Pittsburgh.

We have told the tale of this young man's troubles to show how cruelly poor men are treated,

We have told the tale of this young man's troubles to show how cruelly poor men are treated, who are under the necessity of traveling without money, especially by the rich, and we think publishers of papers should be careful how they publish anything calculated to lead people to treat this class of men badly, as no one needs any encouragement in this direction. Their condition is pitiable enough now. And to those who have sons, we would say, when you drive the poor tramp from your door, hungry and cold, and perhaps deny him the privileges of a place in your barn to rest his weary head, think of your own sons. What assurance have you that they may not be cast rest his weary nead, think of your own sons. What assurance have you that they may not be east upon the public penniless, like the young man mentioned above. True, you may be rich, and this may seem to you impossible. But remember the words of the wise man, "riches certainly make themselves wings and fly away." On the day before the great fire in Chicago men walked its streets worth their millions, and it would have been an open insult to them to have intimated, that they might ever come to want, yet the next day found them paupers, without a penny. "Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest be BEAUTIFUL HAIR .- From J. A. AN ASTONISHING FACT A large proportion of the American people are to-day dying from the effects of Dyspepsia or dis-ordered liver. The result of these diseases upon the masses of intelligent and valuable people is most alarming, making life actually a burden instead of a pleasant existence of enjoyment and usefulness as it ought to be. There is no good reason for this, if you will only throw aside prejudice and skepticism, take the advice of Druggists and your friends, and try one bottle of Green's August Flower. Your speedy relief is certain.

Millions of bottles of this medicine have been undersold. [may3-4t.]
