It is more than probable that Turner, the Clearfield wife murderer, who has been granted followed in quick succession by three or four more fatal accidents, would not be a matter of wonder. Even to day if such a feeling is indulged by our people it need scarcely be a matter of surprise, for the history of the past six months would seem to verify it. A short time car within a posicious of a week no less time ago, within a period of a week, no less than four men were accidentally killed, and we have two more horrible deaths to chronicle within the past five days. The death yesterday of Isaac Ettien is shadowed with mystery. While it occurred on the railroad there is a question as to whether it can be credited to the list of casualties caused by connection with railways. There was no projection by which he could have been struck along the line of the road between the place where blood

But to the particulars, as near as it has been able to ascertain them: Isaac Ettien was a brakeman on the First National line freight, and the train left this place for the east about 4 o'clock yesterday morning. About an hour and a half later, when the train stopped at Spruce Creek, blood was noticed upon the bumper of a car, and it was then that Ettien was missed from his post. An investigation was commenced, when it became known to the authorities in this city, under the direction is a live and progressive paper, and we trust of James H. Cramer, despatcher. BOLD ROBBERY!

The Hawn Brothers Robbed in Daylight!

$4000 Worth of Mortgage Bonds Stolen

Another of those hold and daring attempts at robbery, involving personal violence and outrage, which so often shock the community, outrage, which so often shock the community, was perpetrated on Wednesday, the 19th inst., in Juniata township, within six miles of this place. The victims of this dastardly attempt were the Hawn brothers, residing at Hawns' bridge, on the Raystown branch, well-known for their peculiarities of life and habits, and being reputed to be wealthy. It has been supposed, with some good reason, that for several years past they have kept their money, or a part of it, in their house, being distrustful of banks and the other usual depositories. It was the reputation they acquired in this respect that placed both their lives and wealth in copardy.

The Hawn family consists of four bachelor brothers, all of them aged men, the youngest not much under seventy and the oldest approaching or over ninety, and a hired man and a woman named Katie Bush. One of the brothers has been insane since early in life, and has not been visible to the public for more than fifty years.

At the time the robbery was attempted, John, the oldest, who is in very feeble health, and Isaac, who has been sick for two mouths past and was just recovering, and Katie Bush, were in or near the house. Between 1 and 2 o'clock on the day mentioned, two men made their appearance at the door, not being observed until they entered. They at once attacked John, knocking him down and kicking him, and, while not inflicting serious injury, Harrisburg on the Atlantic express train at doing such damage as, in his weak condition, to entirely disable him from making resistance. One of them, after some words with Katie, caught hold of her and had with her a violent scuffle, and although Katie says, "he was strong and I was strong, too," he succeeded in throwing her to the floor, her head striking with some force. The other, who was not then engaged in looking after the inmates, had proceeded to search the house indicate that he had lain upon the car, the blood flowing from a wound probably received at the door by the one with whom Katie had Cramer says the tramps often stone the train hands. hausted by their long run, could not follow further with safety, and the two men were oon lost from sight in the woods.

The effort to obtain money was an entire failure. Boxes and bureau drawers were ransacked, both down stairs and up. They found in one place down stairs about nine dollars in greenbacks and a small bag containing a few dollars in silver. These were taken up stairs by the one who went to that part of the house, and thrown upon a bed, whilst further search was being made. FORT WORTH, TEXAS, JUNE 12th, 1878—MR. NASH—Dear Sir :—As I have been here long enough to take a limited survey of the surroundings of this part of Texas, I thought I would drop you a few lines in regard to things generally. Well, as regards the chances for making money here, they are good in comparison with the east; I mean persons with a small capital, say a capital of from $1,000 to $1,500. This amount of means will start a man in this country so that he can become in-dependent if he invests it in land. This is the most beautiful country that man ever set eyes upon; you can raise anything you plant. I was out in the country yesterday, as I am every day except Sabbath, and I was astonished is a black loom, sandy soil from three to eight feet in depth, and it will never wear out. In place of saving the straw for fertilizing, as the farmers do in the east, they burn it up to get it out of the way. They have been eating new corn and vegetables of all kinds here for weeks back. This is the country for farmers. You can get land here as level as the levelest streets in Huntingdon, and not a stone on the one hundred acres. The farmers here do not use barns; they thrash the grain out in the field and put it in granaries. They never put up feed for cattle or stock of any kind but let he stock run and feed on the grass on the prairie.

Now as regards the people. I always thought that to take the people of Huntingdon, as a general thing, they were as fine a people as you would meet with anywhere, but the people in this part of Texas are equally as nice as they are in Huntingdon. There is good society here, fine churches and schools. This part of Texas is settled principally with eastern peo-ple, and as a general thing they are very so-ciable. This is considered as fine a county, both for its rich land, fine, healthy climate, and good society, as there is in north-western Texas. This town or city now has 9,000 inabitants according to the census just taken filed out of the chapel into the church, many of them dressed in white, with small boquets in their hand, the sight was one that gladden ed the heart of the beholder. The speaker referred to the lessons of God's wisdom, skill, goodness, power and glory, as taught by the flowers, and dwelt upon the fact that they also reveal God and his great love to human kind. In the evening he preached from the text "I am the rose of Sharon." The exercises were interspersed with singing of appropriate
