THE Pennsylvania Editorial Association held its annual session at Cresson last week. Wednesday afternoon Col. McClure, of the Philadelphia Times, delivered an address on the Power, Influence and Mission of the Newspaper Press, which is said to have been a masterly production. At the conclusion of the Colonel's address, Eugene H. Munday, esq., editor of the Philadelphia Proof Sheet, read an original poem.

THAT ANTI-WAR RESOLUTION. The Monitor does not deay that the Democratic State Convention adopted a resolution in 1861, declaring that the Union could "never be maintained by force of arms" and that the Democrats would "not take up arms :" nor does it attempt to justify the action of the convention or of Mr. Dill. who was a member of it, but palliates or excuses it by saying that "Mr. Scott and Mr. Cessna did the same thing." We have not examined the proceedings of the convention to see whether the statement of the Monitor in regard to the latter gentlemen is correct or not, nor do we consider it material. The power of the Government to maintain itself was a question of fact about which persons of very good judgment may have differed, and even patriotic people may have doubted the ability of the nation to suppress such a gigantic rebellion as was then impending. We do not know the extent to which Mr. Scott and Mr. Cessna may have doubted, if they investigation. It was through the Sherdid so at all. The fault was not so much in doubting, if subsequent events did not show that the wish was father to the thought. That part of the resolution relating to the taking up of arms by the Democrats was a declaration as to what their future conduct would be, and no the 10th of June, 1877, he said, "Now, member of the convention could be held responsible for the declaration unless he afterwards showed his approval of it by adhering to it and carrying it out in his actions. This Mr. Scott and Mr. Cessna did not do, for the reverberations had scarcely died away from Charleston harbor before both of them took the strongest grounds in favor of maintaining the Union by force of arms or in any other way that might be necessary, and encouraged and assisted the arming of the people for defence against rebels from whatever quarter they might come. Notwithstanding the management, the Grand Central Hotel, Democratic convention of 1861, they were New York, has very cleverly turned the Democrats who took up arms, like Scott and Cessua, soon severed their political as- its excellent management. sociations. Dill remained a Democrat during all the years of the war, taking an active part in opposition to the efforts of Scott and Cessna and other Republicans Mrs. Jenks turns out not to be very revto suppress the rebellion. The thing is flat, ic ticket, Judge Ross, who was a delegate to the convention that adopted the latter resolution. The difference between Mr.

THE CAPTAIN'S WIFE.

Mrs. Jenks is the Captain's wife. That fact has been developed by the Potter investigation. But whether or not her husband is the celebrated commander of the horse marines" is a matter about which nothing has been elicted by the committee, and is therefore left to conjecture. We can only say that she would be a fit companion for such a hero. She is the only Louisiana woman who has ever proved herself an overmatch for General Butler, but it may be said in extenuation of the General's present discomfiture, that he has not the same advantages on his side now that he had when he subdued the sex in New Orleans. We can scarcely believe that Mrs. Jenks was there at that time. for her heroism seems to be of such a character as to make itself felt even under the unfavorable circumstances that then existed. His administration in that city was then, as she is now, a Republican. The Captain's wife is a kind of political at the right time to look after the country's little skillful managing, it was her hand ocratic State convention, aiding in the atthat controlled them and led them in the right way. How they might have been tempted to forget their official integrity had she not restrained them when Democratic money was ready to be used in carrying the State for Tilden. And when a "guarantee" was required that those Supervisors, Anderson and Webber, would be taken care of by the incoming adminis tration, it was the work of but a few moments for her to furnish it. She did not need to see John Sherman, from whom Anderson and Webber desired it. She Anderson and Webber desired it. She was equal to the emergency, and performed her part in Parlor P., of the St. Charles Hotel, where the "visiting statesmen" were sitting in close consultation, not observing her, and while Mr. Sherman was in another part of the house, to which she was not shown or given access. But she delivered to Webber a paper of the kind he and Anderson asked for, it answered the same purpose as if genuine, and even now she exculpates Anderson from all knowledge of its real character. Who would have subject of enlarging the JOURNAL is unwrong that he was not guilty of! Anderson was deceived, but according to Mrs. Jenks' ethics, "the end justifies the means,

If there is criminality in the ocument, or political dishonor attached to it. I alone know the alpha and omega of it, son, and although I may deem him (Anderson) one of the most magnificent and sublime scoundrels, at least in the matter of the guarantee, he has been sincere, and I award him all due merit. He has al-

He removes such offers, and in writing to a friend on what has become of that paper? If we can get possession of it, we will make this administration hump." Without getting it, Congress undertook, through the Potter committee, to do what Anderson hesitated about, and since it has been proved that he was fooled, and cheated, and deceived by a designing woman, and that he in turn led Congress upon a wrong track, let it be frankly acknowledged that this is a 'C'omedy of Errors," and let it end.

If the Monitor had omitted the above nisstatement from its last issue, the Jour NAL would have been mentioned once less in its columns than it was. We have never called Mr. Dill a carpet-bagger, nor referred in any way to his migrations from one State to another. The credit of having driven the Democrats to a defense and explanation of that part of his record does not belong to us. They have defended and explained so weakly, however, that we have been tempted to say something upon the subject. We are told that he was born in Maryland because his father was sent there as a Methodist preacher. But was it the father's calling that took the son to Alabama after he became a man and brought him to Pennsylvania within a had come across her, unless indeed she year before the rebellion? What better service could he have rendered to the rebel cause than just what he tried to do after coming North? He did not make any mistake in his purpose when he came, and if the South had sent others like him, the Union army would have had that many more of the en. emy in its rear. A Pen Picture.

A few months, or even weeks, since, ber A rew months, or even weeks, since, her palid countenance was the very type of ruddy health—the delight of the school and the pride of the household. She was always welcome wherever duty or pleasure led her. Diligent, punctual, and exemplary, in the class room, obedient and loving at home she won the hearts of all. But alsa! those glowing cheeks and lips are now blanched by consumption. The voice once so enchanting in laugh and song is feeble, husky and broken by a hollow cough. Let us approach her couch and gently take her bloodless hand in our own. Do not shudder because of its feeble passionless grasp. The hand once so warm and plump shows its bony outlines, while the cords and tortuous veins are plainly mapped upon its surface. The pulse that bounded with repletion, imparting beauty, vivacity, health and strength, to the system, is delicate to the touch. The enervated heart feebly propels the thin, scanty blood. Must we lose her while yet so young and so fair? No. There is relief. But something more is required than the observance of bygienic rules, for palid countenance was the very type of ruddy ed than the observance of hygienic rules, for enfeebled nature calls for aid and she must enfeebled nature calls for aid and she must have it. Administer this pleasant medicine. It is invigorating. It allays the irritable cough, improves the appetite and digestion, and sends a healthy tingle through her whole being. The blood is enriched, nervous power increased, and the heart bounds with a new impulse. Her face brightens—the blood is returning, her voice is clearer, and her requests are no longer delivered in that peevish, fretful tone so deadening to sympathy. Her step is still faltering, but strength is rapidly returning. Let us take her out in the warm, life giving sunshine. In a few weeks she will go without our aid and be able to join her companions in their pleasant pastimes and feel think she is sweeter and nobler than ever before. And the medicine which has wrought this transformation, we look upon as a blessing to humanity, for there are other loved ones to be rescued from the grasp of the insidious destroyer. We own and control the Railway lands of TREGO CO., KANSAS, about equally divided by the Kansas Pacific R. R., which we are selling at an average of $3.25 per acre of easy terms of payment. Alternate sections of Government lands can be taken as komesteads by actual settlers. These lands lie in the Great Limestone Belt of Central Kansas, the best winter wheat producing district of the United States, yielding fom 20 to 35 Bushels per acre. The average yearly rainfall in this county is mearly 33 inches per annum, one-third greater shan in the much-extolled Arkansas Valley, which has a yearly rainfall of less than 23 inches per annum in the same longitude. Stock-Raising and Wool-Growing are very reanmentive. The winters are short and mild. Stock will live all the year on grass I kinking Streams and Springs are unmerous. Pure water is found in wells from 20 to 60 feet deep. The Healthiest Climate-in the World! No fever and ague there. No muddy or impassable roads. Plenty of fine building tone, lime and sand. These lands are being rapidly settled by the best chass of Northern and Eastern people, and will so appreciate in value by the improvements now being made as to make their purchase at present prices one of the very best investments that can be made, aside from the profits to be derived from their cultivation. Members of our firm reside in Wa-KEENEY, and will show lands at any time. A pamphlet, giving full information in regard to soil, climate, water supply, &c., will be sent free on request.
