THE LAST CHANCE, AND LAST NOTICE.

For two months we have been making an effort to effect the settlement of the accounts standing on the books of the late firm of J. R. Durborrow & Co., but up to this time but a very small number of those to whom we have sent bills have responded. These accounts must be settled. From those who are unable to pay the cash we are willing to take their notes, for a limited time. On the first of August we had intended placing our books in the hands of an officer for collection, but we will extend the time to the first of September, at which date all unsettled accounts will be collected by due process of law. If you would save costs and annoyance, give this notice your attention. We are averse to this mode of collection, but when no attention is paid to our bills and appeals for payment, there is no other plan left for us to pursue. Don't compel us to add costs to your accounts.

We care not which horn of the dilemma they may take. There will be in this county a square fight between the old parties. The Nationals have already deserted their ticket. They are falling back into the old ranks. Instead of capturing them, Speer has separated them into a thousand flying columns, seeking shelter and safety under the protection of their former friends. He will bring the same disaster upon his own party when he attempts to rally it around the ticket the the hours of 3 and 8 o'clock, P. M., of said Nationals have deserted. In these days when Democrats are champ

They then bitterly opposed the legal tender act, denouncing it as unconstitutional, as they did every other act or measure designed to aid in the suppression of the rebellion. We have collected a number of extracts from speeches of their leading men, Senators and members of the House of Representatives, delivered when "That hereafter the apportionment of delegates to the Republican nominating convention in Huntingdon county shall be based upon the Republican vote polled in the respective Boroughs, Wards, Townships, and election districts for the candidate for a State or County office having the highest respective the county of the last preceding general. gentlemen mentioned, were representative Democrats, the leaders of their party, and expressed the sentiments of the Democracy. If they had been successful in their fight against the greenbacks in Congress and before the people, we would have neither a government nor a National party to-day. And yet the Nationalists are assisting to place in power the very men who would not only have embarrassed the government, but who would have destroyed at the outset the theory for which the new party is
