Senator Blaine on Election Frauds

James G. Blaine delivered the promised speech on Wednesday last, in the United States Senate, on the resolutions offered by him directing an inrestigation into alleged frauds and outrages in the meent elections, upon which occasion he said:

MR. PRESIDENT:—The pending resolution was offered by me with a two-fold purpose in view. First, to place on record in a definite and authentic form the frauds and outrages by which some recent elections were carried by the Democratic party in the Southern States. Second, to find if these heavy method by which a respective of these party in the Southern States. Second, to find if there be any method by which a repetition of these crimes against a free ballot may be prevented.

We know that 106 Representatives in Congress were recently chosen in the States formerly slaveholding, and that the Democrats elected 101 or possibly 102, and the Republicans four or possibly five. We know that thirty-five of these Representatives were assigned to the Southern States by reason of the colored population, and that the entire political power thus founded on the numbers of the colored people has been seized and approwere: "I am not guilty of the murder of Langdon; I never saw the crime committed."

South in shaping the policy and fixing the desting of this country.

Let me illustrate my meaning by comparing groups of States of the same representative strength. North and South. Take the States of North Cardina, Mississippi and Louisians. They send see enteem Representatives to Congress. Their aggregate population is composed of 1,035,000 white seem that nine were apportioned to these States by reason of their colored being mearly 200,000 in excess of the whites. Of the seventeer Representatives, the colored being mearly 200,000 in excess of the whites. Of the seventeer Representatives, the colored being mearly 200,000 in excess of the whites. Of the seventeer Representatives, the colored being mearly 200,000 in excess of the whites. Of the seventeer Representatives, the colored being mearly 200,000 in excess of the whites. Of the seventeer Representatives, the colored being mearly 200,000 in excess of the whites. Of the seventeer Representatives, the colored being mearly 200,000 in excess of the whites. Of the seventeer Representatives, the colored being mearly 200,000 in excess of the whites. Of the seventeer Representatives, the coloral other than their remote this population; and solve the coloral other the sole and absolute choice of the entire seventeer Representatives. The 1,035,000 white people had the sole and absolute choice of the entire seventeer representatives. They have a white population of 2,247,000—considerably more than double the sole and absolute choice of the entire seventeer representatives. They have a white population of 2,247,000—considerably more than double the sole and absolute choice of the entire seventeer representatives. They have a white population of 2,247,000—considerably more than double the sole and absolute choice of the entire seventeer representatives. They have a white population of 2,247,000—considerably more than double the sole and absolute choice of the entire seventeer Representative to congress, but in the other congress, but in the other congress, but in the ment of the country that 132,000 white people have in Iowa and Wisconsin.

Take another group of seventeen Representatives from the south and from the north. Georgia and Alabama have a white population of 1,158,000 and a colored population of 1,020,000. They send seventeen Representatives to Congress, of whom nine were apportioned on account of the white population. But the colored population. But the colored voters are not able te-choose a single Representative, the white Democrats choosing the whole seventeen. The four northern States, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska and California, have seventeen Representatives, based on a white population of 2,250,000, or almost double the white population of Georgia and Alabama, so that in these relative groups of States we find the white man south exercises by his vote double the political power of the white man south exercises by his vote double the political power of the white man of the north.

Let us carry the comparison to a more compression of the colored population of grown persons. Send for circular, or ask white man of the north.

Let us carry the comparison to a more comprehensive generalization. The eleven States that formed the confederate government had by the last census a population of 9,500,000, of which in round numbers, 5,500,000 were white and 4,000,000 It never fails.

Even the revenges which would have leaped into life with many who despised the negro were buried out of sight with a magnanimity which the "superior race" fail to follow and seem reluctant to recognize. I hear it in many quarters and read it in the papers that in the late exciting election in Massachusetts intimidation and bulldowing, if not so rough and rancorous as in the south, were yet as widespread and effective. I have read, and yet I refuse to believe, that the distinguished gentlemen who made an energetic I have read, and yet I refuse to believe, that the distinguished gentlemen who made an energetic but unsucceesful canvass for the Governorship of that State has endorsed and approved these charges, and I have accordingly made my resolution broad enough to include their thorough investigation. I dare assert that in the late elections something, I dare assert that in the late election in Massachusetts, or any of her neighboring Comin Massachusetts, or any of her neighboring Com-monwealths, it will be impossible to find even one case where a voter was driven from the polls, where a voter did not have the fullest, fairest, freest opportunity to cast the ballot of his choice, and have it honestly and faithfully counted in the

make a white man's vote in the south doubly as powerful in the administration of the government as a white man's vote in the north.

In a memorable debate in the House of Commons, Mr. Maccaniay reminded Daniel O'Connell, when he was moving for repeal, that the English Whigs had endured calumny, abuse, popular fury, loss of position, exclusion from Parliment, rather than the great agitator himself should be less than a British subject; and Mr. Maccaulay warned him that they would never suffer him to be more. Let me now remind you that the government under whose protecting flag we sit to-day sacrificed myriads of lives and expended thousands of millions of lives and expended thousands of millions of lives and expended thousands of millions should remain citizens of the United States, having equal personal rights and equal political privileges with all other citizens. And I venture, now and here, to warn the men of the south, in the exact words of Maccaulay, that we shall never suffer them to be more.

I know something of public opinion in the north. I know a great deal about the views, wishes, and puposes of the Republican party of the nation. Within that entire great organization there is not one man whose opinion is entitled to be quoted that does not desire peace, and harmony, and a patriotic and fraternal union between the north and the south. This wish is spontaneous, instinctive, universal throughout the northern States; is and yet, among men of character and sense, there is surely no need of attempting to deceive ourselves as to the precise truth. The war with all its costly sacrifices, was fought in vain unless equal rights for all classes be established in all the States of the Union. And now, in words which are those of friendship—however differently they may be accepted—I tell the men of the south here on this floor, and beyond this chamber, that even if they can never permanently maintain the inequality of white men in this nation; they can never permanently maintain the inequality of white men in this nation; they can never permanently maintain the inequality of white men in this nation; they can never permanently maintain the inequality of white men in this nation; they can never permanently maintain the inequality of white men in this nation; they can never permanently maintain the inequality of white men in the south doubly as powerful in the administration of the government as a white man's vote in the south doubly as powerful in the administration of the government as a white men's vote in the south doubly as powerful in the administration of the government as a white men's vote in the south doubly as powerful in the administration of the government to the south doubly as powerful in the administration of the government as a white men's vet in the north. tofore found difficulty in getting waited upon at our crowded counters.

The price of everything is guaranteed to be absolutely the lowest.

Our success in filling the wants of those wanting an outside covering is not one of luck, but o study, constant inquiry and long experience in the making as well as selling these garments. No part of our house requires such untiring watchfulness, no kind of merchandise is so worthless when out of style as a cloak—no department is more active in the season of selling.

The materials used this season are Diagonals, in various widths, Matelasse, Fur Black Beavers, Silk Matelasses and Plain Silks; also, a rough-faced material called Camel's Hair, which is new, but not very pleasing to the eye.

The articles used for Trimmings are Velvet, Gros Grain, Grass Fringe, Fancy Gimps and Braids.
As to shapes, the new things are of the Mantle order, but with a sleeve much more comfortable and yielding than garments of this character have been heretofore; the general effect, too, is more graceful and pleasing. The Sacque, though, retains its old popularity, and is bound to be the leader with the majority. In shape it differs but little from last season.

CHILDREN'S CLOAKS, from the smallest size up, have our best attention. They are made of Blue and Brown Beaver, Matelasse and Fancy Cloths, and cost from $4.00 upward.

noveities, in this line ever shown in Philadelphia—including even the rich fabrics of India, where years are often occupied in producing one Shawl.

No department has received more personal attention than the Shawls, the buyer having visited Europe during the summer, and not only bought very largely of ready-made, but ordered made many styles which could not be procured otherwise. Those having a taste for the novel as well as beautiful in Shawl's, should look through our collection.
