Farm and Household.

The happiest men who live by toil
Are those who cultivate the soil.

Corn Bread.

Two cups of Indian, one cup wheat,
One cup sour milk, one cup sweet,
One good egg that well you beat,
Half a cup molasses, too,
Half cup sugar add thereto,
With one spoon of butter new,
Salt and soda each a spoon;
Mix up quickly and bake it soon;
Then you'll have corn bread complete,
Best of all corn bread you meet.
It will make your boy's eyes shine,
If he's like that boy of mine.
If you have a dozen boys
To increase your household joys,
Double then this rule I should,
And you'll have two corn cakes good.
When you've nothing nice for tea,
This the very thing will be;
All the men that I have seen
Say it is of all cakes queen—
Good enough for any king
That a husband home can bring;
Warming up the human stove,
Cheering up the hearts you love;
And only Tyndall can explain
The links between corn bread and brain.
Get a husband what he likes,
And save a hundred household strikes.

Harrowing Wheat in Spring.

AN EXPERIMENT FOR HUNTINGDON COUNTY FARMERS TO TRY.

The Country Gentleman publishes an article on the above subject from Mr. Franklin Sherman, of Ash Grove farm, Fairfax county, Va., which is of particular interest. Mr. Sherman says: "P. Y. wanted to know if wheat or rye would be benefitted by harrowing in the spring, if it was sowed broad-cast and covered either with the harrow or shovel plow? If I have not heretofore occupied too much of your space on this subject, will you allow me to say to him that it will not hurt either the wheat or the rye, however sowed or howevever covered. Only two precautions I have found desirable to observe. Do not harrow when wet; and harrow before the stalk is formed.

"I have no hesitation in offering P. Y this advice, as I have done the same thing myself, and with only good results After experimenting sufficiently to satisfy myself on this point, I (two years ago) harrowed a field of wheat and rye which had been sowed broadcast and covered partly with the harrow and partly with shovel plows. The result was most satisfactory.

"One other item is of importance—harrow thoroughly, lap sufficiently to break and pulverize the whole surface. Advice given by the editors of a paper like this should, above all other things, be safe; and in this case as in others, that given P. Y. is eminently so; when you say provided such a harrow is used as will not injure the plants. Will you allow me to say to him, and to all others thinking of harrowing their fall grain this spring, is it not necessary to get a 'smoothing' or sloping-tooth harrow to do this work

"A proper harrow for the purpose is a sharp, upright, square toothed one, of medium weight, with teeth three-quarters of an inch of one-inch iron, and projecting six to eight inches below the frame. If found too light for thorough work it can be weighted enough to do it. I mention this kind first because it is the one I have used, and which has served me well; second, the sloping-toothed harrows These have been so widely recommended and advertised for this special purpose as to need no words from me. I have, however, seen grain fields so crusted in the spring that an ordinary smoothing-harrow would not thoroughly break up the surface, and it is just at this time that a thorough harrowing is most beneficial.

"The fact I would like to impress is, that harrowing need not be omitted for lack of a certain kind of harrow. Nine times in ten the same harrow used to prepare the ground for sowing the grain will be equally useful in cultivating the grain in the spring. The proper time for this work is approaching, and if every farmer could be induced to harrow the land across his wheat field and note the result carefully, I think the practice would become universal in two years."

The Profits of Large Farms.

The experience of the last few years has shown that the cultivation of large farms in the West, where they are almost entirely owned, has been anything but lucrative. They have been proved in the main both injurious to individuals and the country; the failure of colossal farmers in Illinois being examples of the untoward fate attendant upon gigantic enterprises of this kind. Farming on a grand scale, even with the assistance of improved machinery and implements, is a dangerous experiment here, and usually terminates disastrously. The majority of agriculturists who have made money on small farms have lost it on large farms, and this experience has been repeated in Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, Nebraska, and Dakota. The trouble is our big farmers undertake far more than they can accomplish, and their grand ambition ends in partial or slovenly cultivation. It is estimated that the money sunk by large farmers during the last ten years amounts to more than $100,000,000, and it is thought that their failures have taught them a valuable and much needed lesson. Much of the success of France has been ascribed to the sub-division of the country into small farms, which, thoroughly tilled, support a large population. Although we do not usually regard France as agricultural, she produces more wheat, it is said, than the whole of the United States Her crops for 1868 is represented as 350,000,000 bushels, while ours for the same year was only 240,000,000 bushels. Wines, silks, laces, oil and fine fabrics of divers kinds are not her sole supports; she sends enormous quantities of grain, butter, eggs and other household products to Great Britain Two thirds of the entire area of France is under cultivation, while one-third—if so much—is under cultivation in this country, and her farm yield on an average, per acre, three or four times what the broad regions of the West do.

CLEAR fields and smooth roads are necessary when machinery is used. All work to this effect done now will be doubly repaid in saving of time, labor, and repairs in harvest time, or in the preservation of the machines.

Around the Fireside.

Ready.

BY CAROLINE MAY.

From the New York Observer.]

"Be ye also ready; for in such an hour as ye think not, the Son of Man cometh.—MATT. 24; 44.

O to be ready for the time
When Jesus Christ shall send
An angel from the upper clime
To tell me life must end.

So ready—that all petty cares
Shall cease to agitate;
And sorrow melt off in the airs
That blow beyond heaven's gate.

So ready—that I crave no more
Life's joys or gifts to claim;
Ev'n friendship's balm, or scholars' lore,
Or poet's heart-won fame

So ready—that no fear of sin,
May shake my steadfast faith;
Feeling that Christ my heart within,
Destroys the sting of death.

So ready—that no voice most dear,
No face beloved, may come
To intercept the vision clear
Of my approaching home.

So ready—that to live alone,
And all alone to die,
May make the Saviour more my own,
More close in soul-knit tie.

I would my "house in order" set;
That no entangling thrall,
No broken vow, no grudge, no debt,
May fright me at his call.

For at His voice—that unknown day,
I would as gladly run,
As children hasten out to play
When all their tasks are done

The Swearing Woman.

In 1828 my brother engaged my service to help him to move to Defiance. It was in the month of December we set out Having gone half way, it blew up cold and froze a crust on the mud. I and a young man took the goods by water down the Auglaize to their destination. He and his wife traveled to Defiance on two horses. His father-in law returned with the team, leaving me on foot. The first night snow fell six inches in depth. It continued to snow all day, and reached a depth of twelve inches. I started early next morning, and called for breakfast at a house where a wagon and two horses were standing. I went in and found a woman and two boys just finishing breakfast. The woman I thought as handsome as any I had seen They soon left. I had breakfast prepared and ate, and found they were going the same road that I was. The oldest boy drove the team, but often the wagon fell into deep ruts. I had often heard men swear, but never had I heard such oaths from a woman. Was it the same pretty face, or was it another than the one I had so admired! I could then see nothing but distorted features there. It is strange what impressions are made from habit I began to ask myself is the right allowed man to swear, he being as noble a creature as God ever made—the guardian of woman, her promised protector, whose example should stimulate to virtue, morality and religion, and be a safeguard to his own ever imitating offspring. Descending to low profanity is monstrous for any person.

Once in Urbana, two men were talking—one a stranger, the other an acquaintance. The stranger called God to damn his soul if he didn't do a certain thing. I asked him if he had children. Yes, he said, but I don't allow them to swear. Example being more forcible than precept, what right had he to correct a child for a habit taught by his own example? How can a man whose high office it is to hold sacred the moral character of his children, and give them the best example and precept in his power, become a profane swearer?

Once in my boyhood days I attended a campmeeting. One evening a crowd of persons, mostly young, were listening to a man of some years, burlesqueing the exercises in low vulgarisms. I asked him if he had children. Yes, he said Then said I how would you like for them to hear you talk so? As the Frenchman would say, he vamosed

Pope says:

Immodest words admit of no defense,
For lack of decency is want of sense.

But Franklin makes this correction:

Immodest words admit but this defense,
For the want of decency is for the want of sense.

He that is denied rational powers is to be excused, but they that are blessed with a good amount of intelligence are highly culpable when they descend to vice and vulgarism at any time.—Urbana (O.) Citizen

Somebody's Child.

Somebody's child is dying—dying with the flush of hope on his young face and an indescribable yearning to live and take an honored place in the world beside the companions of his youth And somebody's mother is thinking of the time when that dear face will be hidden where no ray of hope can brighten it—when her heart and home will be left desolate—because there was no cure for consumption Reader, if the child be your neighbor's, take this comforting word to the mother's heart before it is too late. Tell her that consumption is cured, that men are living today, aged, robust men, whom the physicians pronounced incurable at the age of twenty-five, because one lung had been almost destroyed by the disease. Dr Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the most efficient alterative for separating the scrofulous matter from the blood and lungs, and imparting strength to the system It has cured hundreds of consumptives.

The Turning Point.

A Missionary of the American Sunday School in North Carolina visiting the mission school in Cabelltown, dropped into a drug store, where he handed to the clerk a little Sunday school book, "The Turning Point for Boys and Girls," requesting him to read it through. Recently, in the street at Raleigh, he was accosted by a young man whom he did not recognize at first, until he reminded him of the incident related above. The young man then said: "I read that book, first for your sake, and then for my own; and to it, by God's blessing, I am indebted for the happiest 'turning point' in my life; for it turned me from my wild wandering in sin into the Sunday scool, and to seek salvation for my soul; and for two sessions I have been at college, preparing to enter the ministry of the gospel."

Let any one take a Concordance and he will be astonished and instructed to see how much the Bible makes of the word "Turn."

OH, what a wretched thing it is to be unkind! I think, with the thought of the precious blood, I can better face my sins at the last day than my unkindness, with all its miserable fertility of evil consequences.—F.

Patents

obtained for Inventors, in the United States, Canada, and Europe at reduced rates. With our principal office located in Washington, directly opposite the United States Patent Office, we are able to attend to all Patent Business with greater promptness and despatch and less cost, than other patent attorneys, who are at a distance from Washington, and who have, therefore, to employ "associate attorneys." We make preliminary examinations and furnish opinions as to patentability, free of charge, and all who are interested in new inventions and Patents are invited to send for a copy of our "Guide for obtaining Patents," which is sent free to any address, and contains complete instructions how to obtain Patents, and other valuable matter. We refer to the German-American National Bank, Washington, D. C; the Royal Swedish, Norwegian, and Danish Legations, at Washington; Hon. Joseph Casey, late Chief Justice U. S. Court of Claims; to the Officials of the U. S. Patent Office, and to Senators and Members of Congress from every State.
