Open air temperance meetings are held in Lewistown on Sunday afternoons, and we know of no better way to spend a Sabbath afternoon than listening to a plain temperance talk. Meetings of this kind would do no harm in Huntingdon, and we move that the friends of the cause inaugurate and continue them during the summer.

A breeder of fancy fowls and a successful raiser of "spring chickens," of Harrisburg, believes in the use of campbor diluted in water to prevent "gapes" in young chickens. He avers that small pellets made of bread and camphor will drive the mischievous thread like red worms from the throats of young chickens and prevent the "gapes."
