A solemn reflection here presents itself to the minds of those who are left behind: As friends depart, we must all follow after. No angel's glittering ægis can shield us from Death's fatal shaft. Though crowned with magnificene and glory, humanity is destined to pass through the silentcity of the voiceless dead—the narrow gate-way to Nature's eter-nal empire—and though we finally snatch imdead—the narrow gate-way to Nature's eternal empire—and though we finally snatch immortality from the grasp of Death, and move on in living grandeur through the wasteless centuries of eternity, yet the dark river and the cold, cheerless grave await our exit from the bivouac of life, to the fair fields and shining shores in the final homestead of the dead departed.

May ours, at last, be like the peaceful, quiet slumber of our friend—at rest, at peace with all mankind.

The brief race of time well and patiently run, So let me pass away, peacefully, silently, Only remembered by what I have done.

Gladly away from this toil would I hasten,
Up to the crown that for me has been won;
Unthought of by man in rewards or in praises, Only remembered by what I have done Up and away, like the odors of sunset,
That sweeten the tw:light as evening comes on

THE CLIMAX OF MEDICAL SCIENCE.

SANDALNE The culminating achievement of Modern Medical Science needs no props to sustain its claim to public patronage. In the radical cures it has effected, in not only acute but chronic cases of diseases involving the and Genital Organs, it tells its own true and eloquent story. During a long residence in India as Departmental Surgeon and Consulting Physician, I saved thousands of lives, while the catalogue of cases, abandoned by eminent practitioners, permanently cured in the clies and hospitals of Paris, London, Vienna, St. Petersburg, Amsterdam, Berlin, Brussels, Rone, Madrid, Calcutta and Constantinople, constitute a record which crowns Sandaline with imperishable renown. Sandaline, and both will do just as recommended, used as directed, or money refunded.

ELNR GSANDALNE is intended, by special combination with certain ingredients, to co-operate, in the Portal System, with the vital juices, and, by a gentle eathartic tendency, to throw off the effect matural purity, resupply the wasted tissues. It builds up the system, debiliated by overstrain or constitutional maladies, and, by permeating the porces of the body, recuperates the entire system. In connection with Sandaline it will be found a powerful adjuvant, and, operating in sympathy with each other, will dandruff and making the hair grow luxuriantly where it is scattered and scant. It imparts glossiness to the hair, and, by its strengthening properties, prevents any tendency to premature "falling out." Persistently used, it is a safeguard against Baldiness, and, where Baldiness exists, will supply the loss with an ontgrowth at once full and permanent. During my residence in India, witnessing the natives bathing their heads in the crude juices of Sandaline, in order to develop the growth of beautiful hair that subsequently adorned them, the idea, which I have matured, was ortginally conceived. As will be seen by my portrait, my hair is growing out luxuriantly, and I soon hope to have a head of hair, as in my youthful days. Will do just as recommended, used as directed, or money refunded.

EAU COLOGNE do SANDALINE is the concentrated essence of the Sandal Tree, to which is supersided the odor of the most fragrant flowers. Discarding the formulas of the most renowed preparations, wherever and whenever used a most salutary perfume. It is put up in tely engraved, and covered with rich Satiu, handsomely labelled. It has it also of Europe, and received the indorsement of the Crowned Heads heralded to the continental potentates by Eugénie in the palmy days. the regime of Napoleon III.
