DR. MITCHELL'S REPLY TO 'CIVIS.' Mr. EDITOR :- Under the above caption pication of over a column from Rev. Thompson Mitchell. It would perhaps be discourteous to the Reverend gentleman to refuse at least a passing notice of so ponderous a docunent, the product of two long months of in-ubation, and one on which so much time, alent thought and brain power have been expended, and I should perhaps have answered it sooner, but for two or three consideraions, one of which has been already mentioned, and as Ben. Butler said on a certain occasion. I sometimes use such things by way of mental recreation. There is one other reason which I will not mention except sub rosa to ou, and one which the public need not read. It is embraced in an old French proverb which runs somehow in this way : Le jeu n'en vaut pas la chandelle.

But, satis verborum, let us get down, as the lawyers would say to the corpus delicti, and ascertain what has called forth this mighty, this stunning, this almost incomprehensible intellectual effort. Infandum renovare dolorum, is never a pleasant duty, but on referring to the minutes of the last session of the Central ennsylvania Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, I find the following Preamble and Resolution :

of all pain. These are results which truly deserve to be brought to public notice; but they are not exceptions, as will be seen by the nufense, and Hine illæ lacrimæ. The difference Mr. D. M. Jones, of Saxton, has received the United States. It should be the duty of every fact that I have sought to expose and thereby prevent the desecration of the Sabbath, in which I have the sympathy and co-operation of the moral and religious sentiment of the community, including, it seems, a very large and respectable majority of his own religious denomination. Mr. Mitchell seems to take for granted at least three things: First, that I own or run a Sabbath school; second, that I have affinity with some church, and, third, that this church is in debt, and this being the case he proposes o go a little money on his own credibility. A ittle good sense would indicate at once the fallacy of his proposition. First, it is not likely that any preacher would be willing to imperil his appointment by any such admission, and second, as I have never owned a Sabbath school, although a Sabbath school worker, as risburg, on the 15th inst. The literary interest of the number is strong. The concluding half of Mr. E. C. Stedman's critical study of Bayard Tayleris given. A paper beth curious and charming given. A paper both curious and charming is contributed by John Burroughs, under the title "Nature and the Poets," the topic being the accuracy of carelessness of the poets observation of nature, and many instances being cited from leading American poets. A novel feature is the grouping in one collection of twenty "Poems by American Women," including many of the most prominent writers. These, with a humorous (illustrated) poem by Mrs. Elizabeth Allen, it is thought will afford a fair idea of the range, variety and limitations of the poetry written by the women of this country. Scholarly reviews of "Blanid" and Baird's "Rise of the Huguenots," and notices of other books appear in the "Culture and Progress" department.

It would certainly add to the cheerfulness of the town, and allow more room for worshippers, who could give thanks in a way acceptable to themselves, and would no doubt increase the number of worshippers, as all members at least, are supposed to prefer their own mode of worship. Please sift out the origin, and tell us if we are not right in supposing this to be the reason: That if A did not feel like going to give thanks publicly for his many mercies, that his absence would not be discovered if B went. We would like to have the different pastors look into the matter a little, and see if filling their own pulpits would not be a help towards filling their own churches, and so be a new cause for Thanksgiving.
