The Story-Teller.

My love is the law of the school.

To traverse its threshold no more; Ah, how shall I sigh for the dear ones

That meet me each morn at the door

he group on the green, and the flowers That are brought every morning to me.

Their song in the school and the street shall miss the low hum of their voices,

And the tramp of their delicate feet.

To bid me good night and be kissed!

When the lessons and tasks are all ended,

And Death says: "The school is dismissed

shall miss them at noon and eve,

shall miss the "good-nights" and the kisses, And the gush of their innocent glee,

I shall leave the old house in the autumn,

"The Children."

BY CHARLES DICKENS. When the lessons and tasks are all ended,

And the school for the day is dismissed,

And the little ones gather around me,
To bid me good-night and be kissed;
Oh, the little white arms that encircle
My neck in a tender embrace!
Oh, the smiles that are halos of heaven,

Shedding sunshine of love on my face!

When it wakes to the pulse of the past

Ere the world and its wickeness made me

Oh, my heart grows weak as a woman's, And the fountains of feeling will flow, When I think of the paths steep and stony

Of the tempest of fate blowing wild; bh, there's nothing on earth half so holy

As the innocent heart of a child.

Where the feet of the dear ones must go; of the mountains of sin hanging over them

And when they are gone I sit dreaming,

Of my childhood too lovely to last of love that my heart will remember

When the glory of God was about me, And the glory of gladness within.

Out of this number the Superintendent of Public Instruction has just selected 141 as entitled to favorable consideration. Nearly nine tenths of the remainder of the applications do not come gan by order of the Spanish government up to the requirements of the law. The Superintendent says: "If the children of soldiers applying for admission under present laws were admitted with as little scrutiny as they were under former laws, in the early history of the system. the cost would be $500,000 instead of $360,000."

The cost of the Orphan School system since its establishment in Pennsylvania has been $6,682,095.21. The Superintendent says frequent inquiries are made as to the cause of the long duration of the system. He answers that under the original law there would be no schools, but supplemental legis ation has perpetuated them. The conditions now are : The children must in all cases be under 16 years of age and in destitute circumstances. Their fathers, if dead, must have been killed in the war of the rebellion, or died of wounds or disease contracted under it. Their father, if living, must be suffering from wounds or disease contracted in the war, and unable to earn a livelihood for their families or themselves. Fully two-thirds of the children now in the schools are orphans.

children are reasonably well provided for in all respects. Childish Terrors.

I want to plead with mothers in behalf of their sensitive and timorous children. There are strong, healthy boys and girls who have no fear of the dark, who are continually free from physical cowardice, and who receive much praise for their bravery. There are others in whom the nervous sensibility so predominates that they endure, night after night, tortures quite beyond their powers to express. Oh, the horror to these poor little creatures of the dark! Its mystery compasses them The present generation in England and about.
