The happiest man who lives is he who is content with his lot.

The Old Barn's Tenantry.

BY E. F. TAYLOR.

The rooster stalks on the manager's ledge. He has a tail like a scimitar's edge.

A marshall's plume on his neighbor's neck. An admiral's stripe on his quarter deck.

He rules the roost and walks the bay With a dreadful cold and a Turkish way.

Two broadsides fires with his rapid wings. This sultan proud, of a line of kings—

One general laugh, four blasts of horn. Five rusty syllables rouse the morn!

The Saxon laubs in his woolen tabs Are playing school with the a, b, c, d; A e, i, o, u of All the cattle spell

Till they make the blatant vowels tell. And a half-whispering fills the stalls

When down the rack the clover falls. A dove is walking around his mate

Two charous black on his wings of state. And showing off with a wooling note

The satin shine of his golden throat— It is Oriol's "Art of Love" retold

In a binding fine of blue and gold! Ah, the buxom girls that helped the boys,

The noble Helens of humble Troy— As they stripped the husks with rustling fold

From eight-row corn as yellow as gold. By the candle light in pumpkin bowls

And the gleams that shined from fancy holes. In the quaint old lantern's tattooed tin,

From the hermit glim set up within; By the rarer light in girlish eyes

As dark as wells or as blue as skies. I hear the laugh when the car is red

I see the blush with forfeit paid. The cedar eaves with the ancient twist

The cedar eaves that the girls have kissed. And I see the flicker through which

As he twangs the ghost of "Money Musk!" The boys and girls in a double row

Wait face to face till the magic bow Shall pull the tune from the very violin

And the merry pulse of the first sign.

Maple Sugar Making.

Good Company, Number Five.]

The best sap weather is when the wind

is south-west, with fleecy clouds by day, and clear nights cold enough to freeze a little. The sap will run as long as these conditions prevail. A south wind threatening rain soon stops it; though if a soft south falls instead, it will run rapidly.

The sugar maker has no use for rain; it wets his jacket, soaks his wood pile and increases the quantity of water to be evaporated, and the water running down the trees, stepping moss and lichens on its way,

and falling into the sap, gives a dark stain

to the sugar that nothing short of chemical means will remove. In a good "run" the sap accumulates, and the fires must be kept going all night. There is no particular in this when one has gathered sap

all day, but the great store tubs must be emptied to make room for the next day's gathering; so after supper the one who is to boil till midnight wends his way to the works through the deepening twilight.

The familiar woods look solemn and mysterious in the uncertain light. The owl takes great interest in the sugar-maker's fire at night, and perched on a tree just outside the circle of light hoots loudly at intervals for hours. If you have two pans and propose to boil a large quantity of sap, you will have no leisure to speak of. You fill the "feed tub," and set the faucets at the bottom to run as large a stream as can possibly be evaporated, then you urge the fires to the utmost. The pans bubble and from; the fragrant steam rolls away in clouds. You see the light of other fires in the distant woods where other lonely waterers like yourself are at work, and after a while the waning moon comes up

Around the Fireside.

Laying Up.

In Eastern countries men lay up garments, and pride themselves in the number of their suits of apparel.

The knowledge that is best is the knowledge of God himself; and though the knowledge of His works is good, the knowledge of Himself is far better.

A scholar once turned away from a poor man, smiling at him, and saying, "He does not know the name of Plato."

It is a great thing to know God—the living and the true God; and it is a sad thing not to know him in everlasting life.

This is the true knowledge, in having which we become wise, and without which we are fools.

You are sent to school for education; and you know that education is the training of the mind in knowledge, and of the will in obedience.

A poor woman who could not read a word, once said to me, "You see I'm no scholar; but I'm Christ's scholar, and that will do." Yes, it was enough; for it made her "wise unto salvation."

The Blessed Dead.

Bishop Quintard, in a beautiful discourse on the death of Rev. C. C. Parsons, published by E. P. Dutton & Co., says:

"We know that our beloved ones are among the jewels of Paradise. They live on; for death is not the passing of the spirit into a long sleep into the unknown abode; it is blissful passage into the land of light and rest, where is the fellowship of the angels and the saints of God.

And so we cheer our hearts with that wonderful hymn, which Cyran sang to animate his flock to face with courage the pestilence that desolated Carthage and North Africa,

Yes, He is the same, yesterday, to day, and forever! What a comforting thought this fact is for the Christians, that though they may at times forget Him and bestow upon other objects the gratitude and affection which are due to Christ alone,

Jesus Unchangeable.

Time and change are busy ever. Men decay, and age moves; But God's mercy waxes never; He is wisdom, He is love."

Excessive Self-Depreciation.

Do not be so eager to disclaim personal merit that you shall fall into the tone of abjectness and self contempt. Doubtless it is only by God's grace that you stand, yet doubtless it is you who stand by God's grace.

The innocence and purity of childhood bring bitter heart pang to the sin-hardened man and worldly woman.
