Huntingbon, May 20, 1880. The following information relative to the tentiensus has been compiled, and is published to be information of the people of the district.

J. Simpson Armica,

ENUMERATORS.

The weather of Monday and Tuesday was pleasant, but rather disagreeable, owing to the gusts of wind that stirred the dust around promiscuously.

It is probable that Rev. Mr. Dill, of Lewisburg, father of Rev. W. H. Dill, will preach in the M. E. Chapel, West Huntingdon, next Sunday morning.

Excursion tickets were issued by the P. R. R. from this place to Washington city for $$9,67$, on the 17th and 18th inst, but there wasn't many takers.

John Grable, of Saxton, was robbed of his boots, watch and pocket book the other night in Johnstown. The thief entered his room while he was asleep.

And we will add that it will not only prove worse than the Cresson affair, but more of it, as we have in our mind's eye how the thing will pan out, knowing the surroundings as well as we do! Any other place than Bedford, and we can give good substantial reasons for our objections. On to Lloydsville again!

The latest in regard to the murdered man Marks, is that his body has been found in Cambria county, and that his murderers are known. The Carroltown News has it as follows: "About the 27th of December last a peddler and his brother, also a peddler, started from Indiana county, and separated to take different routes along which to sell their goods, appointing a time and place where they would again come together. The peddler's brother failed to appear, and the REMOVAL OF AN EYE -Last Saturday. Dr. W. F. Fundenberg, the well-known oculist and aurist of this city, assisted by Drs. E. H. Parsons and Geo. B. Fundenberg, operated upon Miss Laura Michaels, of Morgan county, W. Va., for the removal of her left eye. When quite young Miss M. was so unfortunate as to lose the sight of her left eye from some lye being thrown into it. Recently the sight of the other one began to get dim, which neces-sitated the removal of the injured one to save the sound one. The operation was entirely successful, the patient returning home to-day. In a few weeks an artificial eye can be inserted. CURTAIN LECTURES. BY THE BARD OF TOWER HALL. Oft we hear of curtain lectures,

And of Mrs. Caudles, too, il designed to show that woman Is a vixen and a shrew; But we have our own opinion, Which we give without reserve,
That most husbands who are "caudled"
Get no more than they deserve.
Woman has no voice in Congress,
Nor in councils of the State,

But she has a voice, and justly, When her husband stays out late. He has vowed to love and honor, And to cherish only her— By his staying out till midnight, Tell me, what can she infer? That he is at least unmindful Of the solemn vows he made When upon the bridal altar
All her hopes in life she laid,
And if he unkindly leaves her,

Sad and lonely, night by night,
If she does not "give him Jesse,"
Then she does not serve him right.
Mercy on us! must a woman
Rise with early morning's light,
But to toil in household duties From the break of day till night-Getting Bobby combed and scoured. Little Sally Ann in trim,
Mindful of her husband's comfort,
Sewing buttons on for him—
Clearing up the "helter-skelter"
That the children make at night—

Here and there and all around her Making this and that thing right—Quite as frugal as the ant is, And as busy as the bee, From the time-she takes her breakfast ill her husband comes to tea? Must she do this unrewarded,
Having no approving smile,
With no husband's voice to cheer her,
And the evening hours beguile?
If she must, and heeds no whispers

That suggest the use of tongs, hould her lips be locked in silence We will answer for the women, And reiterate the "No," Until reason, truth, and justice Lead the husbands all aright, When there'll be no curtain lectures In the "voices of the night,"
When the men will need no "dressings"
From their wives, for one and all
Will procure their clothes for dressing
At the Mannort Tower Hall.

And 'twill be indeed more pleasant— This of not a doubt admits— When no wives, but the Tower only, Shall give all the husbands "fits." Do not fail to join the immense throng who will visit Tower Hall to-day to secure good fits and great bargains in Men's and Boys' Clothing. GARITEE, MASTEN & ALLEN.
