Wool Matters.

The U. S Economist, of last week, says that at no period in the history of the wool trade, has the market been so excita ble as now, all over the world. No fine clothing wools can be bought ready for manufacturers' use, below $1 for the scour ed pound, and much of it runs up to $1.10, $1.25 and $1 30. Combing, delaine and carpet wools are equally high, and no one can tell where prices will stop, as the ten dency is still upward. A telegram from London March 25, represents the markets there as follows:

"Our market is agitated and higher for all kinds. It is greatly feared that we are approaching a wool famine. Clothing wools are in demand, and are firmer Combing wools are in request, and prices are still going up with some demand for America. Irish Hoggs are up to 181d., for selected. English Down Tegs have jumped up to 20d., a pound. Carpet wools are in active request, chiefly for home use-Egyptian white fleeces have risen to 15d. and 20, for good to choice. Oporto white washed wool is up to 16d., and Scotch white highland to 9d."

Private letters to the editor reveal the causes of the wool famine. Hundreds of thousands of sheep have died of "liver rot," in Great Britian, and wars in the East have caused millions of sheep to be slaugh tered. Wool growing in Persia, Turkey, Russia and India, has been almost given up on account of war and the low prices brightness and transforming her pale that have prevailed for the last five years

If this is the correct view of the situation, it indicates a brisk demand and higher prices for the coming clip of the you. Summer will soon be here with her United States. The Wool Growers' Bulle roses almost as bright as your cheeks. tin, of last week, says:

domestic wool will soon be put upon the shall soon be out in the garden to greet market. The "ball" has already opened you-to-morrow perhaps! I was just on the Pacific coast, by the production of planning how I should arrange my flowers the spring clip of California. It opens with some excitement. Last year it was described as one "wave of excitement" this year, when you peeped in Are my lillies up yet?" "Yes, your lillies are up; I have just been warming them. I have described as one "wave of excitement" tired you," said the sunlight, as he noticed from California through the Southern the wearily drooping eyelids; "I will come States, Kentucky and spreading through again to morrow if you are not in the gar-Ohio, Indiana, and then over into Michi- den"-and silently withdrew, leaving the gan, when all at once its strength seemed hours later the moonlight stole softly gone, only to be retained later in the sea through the silken curtains, which were son through the Eastern markets, where it gently rustling in the night breeze "How has been sweeping ever since, with con | cold !" said the moonlight, as she touched stantly increasing strength. In fact, such an unexpected advance in prices from one year ago, has never been known in the wool history of our country. It can It is the old, old story of consumption. Scarcely be possible that history will re peat itself this coming season; yet there are indications of this. Already in Ken Statistics show that one-third of mankind tucky, we hear of their unwashed wools die of this disease, and of these, far the selling for 40 to 45 cents, delivered on greater part are young persons between board cars. The situation indeed presents the ages of fifteen and twenty five, in the something of the "ragged edge" view.

The Promotion of Personal Holiness.

rom the Examiner and Chronicle.]

The term "personal holiness," much abused as it has been by a certain class of camp meeting enthusiasts, nevertheless stands for a very real and essential thing, and one which every disciple of Christ is under obligation to "promote" in his own case to the utmost of his ability. Indeed, the professed Christian whose life shows no signs of progress in personal holiness as the years go by, has good reason to doubt the genuineness of his conversion. The grand object of Christian endeavor is to become more and more Christlike. But To bless and guide my darling boy to the bright if at the end of a year, or ten years, a nominal discipline is still as unlike Christ as when he began his course, either he was egregiously mistaken in supposing himself a converted man, or he has woefully neglected the means of spiritual growth provided in the gospel.

This is a subject of the highest practical importance. The Churches of Christ suffer constant approach on account of the unworthy lives of members who have failed to make due progress in spiritual Your father, John, is growing old, his days are graces. "The lives of Christians," it has been said, "are the world's Bible." But a Christian who in his daily life is "no you; But it will go to rain soon, and poverty will better than one of the wicked" is a sorry If you keep hitching Dobbin up to drive into the Bible for unbelievers to make a study of. Like the spurious Gospels of early times, they bear some resemblance to the genuine

When one makes a profession of faith in Christ, his relation to the world undergoes a radical change. He is God's witness to Turn back again, my boy, in youth, stay by the truth. Such a man is not at liberty to consider himself alone. If he is impure in thought and speech, if he is not scrupulously honest and straightforward in all sions merely-that would be a comparativelp small matter-but the Lord whose name he bears. And men of the world are as quick to read these "living epistles" now as they ever were, and as apt to draw conclusions which may, if the teaching be a bad one, bring eternal ruin upon their souls From this tremendous responsibility no Christian can escape. Even if not known to men as a Christian he cannot elude the scrutiny of Him who searches hearts, and is a silent witness of every act

It is, then, of the utmost importance that Christians should give earnest heed to this great matter of growth in personal holiness. And there is need, especially in the case of young disciples, of clearer instruction, both from the pulpit and in private converse, with regard to this sub ject. From the hour of their conversion, believers should be taught that it is both their privilege and their duty to make constant advances in the Christian life toward that perfect manhood in Christ which the Scriptures admonish every child of God to seek to attain unto. And this should be done, not for their sakes only, but for the sake of those who may, for good or ill, be influenced by their ex-

The Old Story.

The morning sunlight looked in through the silken curtains, lighting the room as with an angel's smile, suddenly enveloping the face of its occupant with a strange brown hair into waves of glistening gold. Said the sunlight: "Maiden, I missed you from the garden where I used to find you every morning, and I came here to seek Are you ill?" "O, no," responded the "By estimate, 230,000,000 pounds of maiden, warming her thin, bloodiess hands in the sunbeam, "only a little weak; I fair slumberer alone in the gloom.
