Common Sense in Kitchens.

Somebody has said that "one-half of the world does not know how the other balf lives," and this truism might reasons bly be supplemented by saying that half the world does not know what is killing itself and the other half. It is scarcely more than three months since several per sons were poisoned in New York and Brooklyn by eating lemon meringue. Yet within forty eight hours the inmates of a Brooklyn boarding-house, and several private families besides, have been made very former case the poison was found to be ascetate of copper, formed during the preparation of the meringue in copper vessels. The use of copper culinary utensils, save for the heating of water, ought to be prohibited by law. It is a practice which has not a leg of reason to stand on, is a whim of certain cooks who judge of cverything by the appearance it presents to the eye. Copper vessels make a rich appearance in a kitchen and copper is comparatively cheap, and easy to take a polish. But is never clean, after all. An imperceptible oxide forms on its surface at once, not sufficient to poison a family, perhaps, but quite equal to the work of deranging the digestive apparatus.

When common sense enters a kitcher every copper saucepan and kettle must take its eternal leave. Utensils of iron cannot, under circumstances, contribute to a poisonous brew. It is objected to iron that it readily forms an oxide in the process of cooking, and turns the edibles dark color. Even this is not true when iron utensils are kept in good order. Bu even were it true, a dark pottage yet in nocuous is to be preferred to a light pot tage which suggests death in the pot .-However, cooks are not reduced to such straits at all. Tinned iron is now as common as iron itself, and for persons who can afford it there are porcelain-lined vessels in every respect better than any metal.

It is much to be regretted that few peo ple care to take the trouble to know how their food is prepared. The cook—and we mean the guild of cooks—judges every thing by sight and flavor, and pays very little attention to the appliances of the kitchen. Of course clean utensils are demanded, not because dirt is at all shocking to most people, but because it interfers with flavors. It took a long time to dis place the ancient appliances and replace them with porcelain vessels. Porcelain will crack, it is said, and so it will. But a cracked lining to a kettle or pan is ever so much better than a dose of verdegris, or worse. The baker who buys poor flour and disguises it with alum is a sort of universal murderer, but without malice. Not so much can be said of the pie baker who uses copper vessels in which to stew acid fruits. He is a deliberate poisoner. Since there is no law to reach him, the public should refuse to purchase his wares. It is the nearest route to his conscience .-North American.

Coloring Recipes.

Brown on Cotton or Woolen .- For ten pounds of cloth or yarn, take two pounds of cutch, put into cold water sufficient to cover the goods, heat until dissolved; then add one fourth pound blue vitrol, previously dissolved. Put in the goods and scald one hour or more, wring from the dye. Dissolve six ounces bi-chromate of potash in hot water, put in the goods, let simmer fifteen minutes and boil five minutes, stir ring constantly. Dissolve the cutch in iron and the bi-chromate in brass. Rinse thoroughly in clear water or in suds.

Yellow on Cotton .- Dissolve one-half pound of sugar of lead in hot water, and one-fourth pound bichromate of potash in cold water-both in wooden vessels. Dip first in lead water, wring out. Repeat until the desired shade is obtained. This is for five pounds of goods.

Orange on Cotton .- Take a lump of lime as large as your first, pour onto it a pail of boiling water, let it settle, pour off the water and while boiling, dip in cloth colored yellow as above, and you will have a beautiful orange.

Blue on Cotton .- Take two ounces oxolic acid; two ounces Prussian blue and dissolve in separate pails of hot water. Dip the goods in the acid, then in the blue. Wring dry and repeat until the color suits. For Green.—Dip blue into a yellow dye

as above, and it will produce green

To Dye Scarlet.—To every pound of yarn take one gallon of soft water, one ounce of pulverized cochineal; two ounces cream of tartar; one ounce solution of tin. When the water boils put in the cream oftartar, then the cochineal. When dissolved add solution of tin; put the yarn in stirring it all the time, let it boil fifteen minutes, air it once or twice, rinse in soft water, and you will have a splendid color. Salmon on Cotton .- One pound copperas; one-half pound saleratus, dissolve in hot water. Dip first in copperas and air five minutes, then in saleratus, and dry in the hot sun .- Mrs. E. M. Dutton in Country Gentleman.

DON'T PARE AWAY THE FROG .- Some horsemen seem to take a delight in paring away the frog of the horse's foot until there is hardly any of it left. This should never be allowed. The trog is placed there by nature to act as a cushion to protect the foot of the animal when he plants it suddenly on any hard substance, and should never be touched except to remove its raged edges. Another fault, equally as objectionable, is making the corks or the heels fof the horse's shoes so high that, with no toe-piece to correspond, the foot is continually thrown out of shape, and thus lameness is often occasioned. The horse's shoe should be as nearly level at the bottom as possible, only rather heavier at heel than at toe. Even in case of ice it is only necessary to draw out some of the nails and put in others with heavier and rougher heads as occasion may require.

Dr. Nichols, who has made a series of dieteic experiments on himself, has arrived at the conclusions that if the stomach is allowed to rest, any case of dyspepsia may be cured; that the diet question was at the root of the disease; that pure blood can only be made from pure food, and if the drink of a nation were pure and free from stimulating qualities, and the food was also pure, the result would be pure

SALT FOR BEDBUGS .- To get rid of bedbugs, wash the room and the furniture of the room they frequent with salt water, filling the cracks with salt, and you may look in vain for them. Salt seems inimical to bedbugs, and they will not trail through it. I think it preferabe to all ointments, and the buyer requires no cer tificate as to its genuineness. An easy cure for colds in the head if done early, is to dissolve a tablespoonful of pulverized borax in a pint of hot water; when tepid, snuff some up the nostrils two or three times a day; or use the dry pow.

CHILDREN TO INDENTURE.

A number of children are in the Alms House who will be Indentured to suitable parties upon application to the Directors. There are boys and girls from two to eleven years of age. Call upon or address, The Directors of the Poor of Hunting or address, The Directors of the Poor of Hunting lone county, at Shirleysburg.

Indian Depredations.

The fair reader shudders when she thinks f the settler's wife watching, from the door of her rude hut, the retreating form of her husband going out to his daily labor —going out perhaps to return not again, for before nightfall a savage hand may have laid him low among the prairie grasses. Or it may be a child, a bright-eyed daughter, is snatched away in an unguarded moment, to grace the next war dance. When we read the heart-rending details of these savage depredations, we are apt to blame the government for not taking more strict Perfectly NO EQUAL Harmless precautions to insure the settler's protection. But we daily read of the depredations of that arch fiend, consumption, will scarcely a thought of the terrible inroads its is making in human life. Tens of thousands of homes are annually desolated by consumption to one by Indian outrage. Like the Indian, consumption often comes stealthily, and no danger is apprehended until the victim suddenly finds himself hopelessly ensnared, and death's fatal ar row ends the scene. Dr. Pierce's Golden Discovery, a powerful alterative, or blood purifier, and tonic, has restored thousands of consumptives who have tried every other remedy recommended to them, without obtaining any relief, and are willing to testify to its remedial powers.

The Mile Stones of Life.

Do those of us who nearing and passing ome of the latter mile stones of our earth ly journey, ripen well? Is there an in creasing sweetness; a brighter mellowness of life and character? Have we more of the gentleness of Christ' more of the atmosphere and glow of heaven as we near our home? On these points, an extract from the letter of a dear ministerial friend, is too good to be kept private: "Well, I am with you on the heaven side of sixty, having just 'crossed the line' as sailors I thought sure I should feel like an old man, that the grace of age which comes, they say, for early piety and such devoted manhood, would fall all over me, and I should feel myself benignly glorified. But I don't see as I am materially improved by passing this big milestone—though I think I can see some improvehave bothered me, though, alas, not all—
I think I have more patience and pity, larger sympathies, higher hopes and a more chastened joy. I think I love Christ better and holds my friends dearer; that life was never so full and sweet; the gospel never seemed so rich and blessed; and the work of the ministry never so delightful. You, I am sure, can say though I think I can see some improvement since I was forty. I think I have conquered some of the bad things that have bothered me, though, alas, not all—

The Lord's Prayer.

The following is a paraphrase of the Lord's Praver, attributed to St. Bernard : Our Father—by right of creation, by bountiful provision, by gracious adoption; Who art in heaven—the throne of thy glory, the portion of thy children, the temple of thine angels; Hallowed be thy nameby the thoughts of our hearts, by the words of our lips, by the work of our hands; Thy kingdom come—of providence to de fend us, of grace to refine us, of glory to crown us; Thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven—toward us without resistance, by us without compulsion, universally with-out exception; Give us this day our dailg bread—of necessity for our bodies, of eter nal life for our souls; And forgive us our trespasses—against the commands of thy law, against the grace of thy gospel; As we forgive those that trespass against us— by defaming our characters, by embezzling our property, by abusing our persons; And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil-from overwhelming affliction, of worldly enticement, or error's seduc tion, of sinful affections; For thine is the

The little head sinks contentedly on the pillow, for all is peace and happiness within. The bright eyes close and the rosy lip is reveling in bright and sunny dreams of innocence. How to Read Your Bible.

You read your Bible regularly of course; but do you try to understand it, and still more, to feel it. Read more parts than one at a time. For example, if you are reading Genesis, read a Psalm also; or, if you are reading Matthew, read a small bit of an epistle also. Turn the Bible into Prayer.

Thus, if you are reading the first Psalm,
