

J. A. NASH, Editor. HUNTINGDON, PENNA. FRIDAY, JULY 16, 1880. Circulation LARGER than any other Paper in the Juniata Valley.

Entered at the Post Office at Huntingdon, Pa., as Second Class Matter.

Republican National Ticket.

FOR PRESIDENT: Gen. JAS. A. GARFIELD, OF OHIO.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT: CHESTER A. ARTHUR, OF NEW YORK.

FOR JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT: Hon. HENRY GREEN, OF EASTON.

FOR AUDITOR-GENERAL: Hon. JOHN A. LEMON, OF BLAIR.

Republican County Convention.

The Republican voters of the several boroughs, wards, townships and districts in Huntingdon county, Pa., are respectfully requested to meet at their respective places of holding elections, on SATURDAY, AUGUST 14th, 1880.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 17th, 1880, at 10 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of nominating...

Table with 2 columns: Name and District/County. Lists candidates for various offices like State Senator, Associate Judge, etc.

Republicans, the issues involved in the coming election of your county ticket, after being nominated by the delegates who may be chosen by you...

REPUBLICAN RALLY!

At a meeting of the Garfield and Arthur club, held at Penn Street Hall, on Saturday evening last, a committee of five was appointed to report a permanent organization and call a meeting to be held on SATURDAY EVENING, JULY 17th, at 8 o'clock P. M., at the COURT HOUSE.

The committee would earnestly request a full turnout of all the members of the Club, all who desire to become members, and every man who desires the election of our candidates and the vindication of principles which have stood the test of storm and battle for twenty years.

A full list of officers will be submitted at the time and place above named, and speakers will be present to open the campaign in earnest.

It is a pitiable sight to see a good Union soldier at the head of the rebel forces. W. H. BARNUM has been re-elected chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

COL. INGERSOLL calls the Democratic Presidential ticket "the indigo and butter-nut combination."

DURING the week of the meeting of the Cincinnati convention seventy six thousand kegs of beer were sold in that city.

No laboring man in Pennsylvania, be he Democrat or Republican, can afford to support the Free Trade platform adopted at Cincinnati.

JOSEPH R. CHANDLER, the oldest newspaper editor in the State, died at his home, in Philadelphia, on Saturday evening, at the ripe old age of 88 years.

THE "Clearfield statesman" still insists that Hancock will carry Pennsylvania. His chances of carrying it are about equal to Wallace's return to the United States—and he has no ghost of a chance.

In another column will be found Gen. Garfield's letter of acceptance. It is a brief but clear and strong review of the situation, and its sentiments will find a hearty response from all Republicans.

JUDGE BLACK, the gentleman who wrote the celebrated "Order No. 40," which nominated Hancock, and so eloquently rebel that he went into convulsion fits, is now on the other side of the pond, and the query presents itself, who will write Hancock's letter of acceptance?

THE Peace Commission of the Democratic party, appointed by the late State Convention to adjust the differences existing amongst the Philadelphia Democracy, met in that city last week, but it was unable to heal the feud, and the war factions go on. Carry the news to Wallace.

THE Democrats are making much ado over Hancock, as the "favorite son of Pennsylvania." By birth he is a Pennsylvanian, but by the army register he is a Missourian, and by residence a New Yorker. He owns a residence in St. Louis, and as he left the State at the age of sixteen never paid one cent of taxes in Pennsylvania. How are you, "favorite son?"

"WHEN JOHNNY COMES MARCHING HOME."

Colonel Farney has at last made the discovery that "the partition between the two parties is very thin." To such political weather-cocks as Farney, Curtin and McClellan it makes but little difference what the principles of a party are unless it happens to serve their own selfish purposes.

If the purposes and legacies of James Buchanan had been more to the mind of Col. Farney on a certain occasion he might never have left the Democratic party, and now it is not strange that he should remain its first love. But how "thin" is the partition between the parties? At the present day? It is thick enough to keep the rebel brigadiers and unrepentant traitors of the South on the one side, and the great heart of the loyal North on the other.

It is thick enough to draw the distinction clearly between free speech and a free ballot on one side, and intimidation, violence and murder on the other. It is thick enough to make a clear distinction between protection to home industry, and "a tariff for revenue only," a system which would break down American manufactures by encouraging a ruinous foreign competition.

It is thick enough to render one party repugnant to the common sense and self-interest of the Northern people. It is thick enough to prevent the iron workers of Pennsylvania from voting the broad words of their own mouths by endorsing the Cincinnati platform. It is thick enough to cause the leather-workers, silk weavers, and potters of New Jersey to repudiate the party that is arraigned against, and to support the party which supports their industries.

It is so thick that the thriving manufacturers of Connecticut will be swift to condemn the attempt to break down the present tariff system. It is thick enough to compel the enormous manufacturing interests of the great State of New York to rebuke the infamous attempt of the Democratic party to destroy them, and turn many thousands of voters into the Republican ranks who have never been before.

It will be thick enough, at the critical contest in October, to drive away votes enough from the Democratic ticket in Indiana, with its many forms of protected industries, to enable the Republicans to carry the State and thus secure the vote of a solid North as against that of a solid South, and thus elevate to the first place in the gift of the nation the man who is the representative of freedom, of equal rights and protection to American industry, the gallant soldier, the tried statesman and the pure patriot and friend of the toiling masses who earn their daily bread by the honest labor of their own hands.

A QUESTION OF VERACITY. It is not very important whether the Hon. R. Milton Spear, of Huntingdon, endorses the "integrity" of General Garfield or not; but in regard to his denial that he used certain language attributed to him by the press of this city, in the speech which he delivered here on his way home from the Cincinnati Convention, we have this to say: He may not have meant to use the word "integrity," but that he did use it can be attested by scores of Republicans, were it worth while. He does not even now repudiate his words of heavy commendation, but he wishes to make one little correction in the record. He was reported as having spoken thus:

"This is my first public utterance since the Chicago nomination, and I desire to say right here that I served four years in Congress with Gen. Garfield. I know him well, and I honor him for his honesty, his integrity, his ability, his breadth of character, and his upright character."

Now he says through his paper, the Huntingdon Monitor, that the exact language used by him was the following:

"As this is my first public utterance since the Chicago convention, I wish to say that I served four years in the House with General Garfield, and I know him well. He is a gentleman of fine culture, broad information, and undoubted ability."

Mr. Spear, we understand, is a candidate for Congress in his district, and his endorsement of General Garfield has displeased a number of his party friends. Hence his desire to have the record altered. This cannot be permitted. He said just what he reported to have said, and the language in precisely the same form was telegraphed to leading Republican journals, east and west.—Pittsburgh Commercial.

A LUNATIC ON HIS TRAVELS. Gen. James B. Weaver, the Greenback candidate for the Presidency, is either a natural born fool or else he has been driven into the first stages of lunacy by his association with Kearney and other adulated advocates of the Greenback heresy.

He is on a stumping tour through the South, and spent Sunday last in Chattanooga, Tenn., where he was interviewed by a Times representative. He is confident of his ability to carry Alabama, Tennessee, Texas, Mississippi, West Virginia, Missouri and Arkansas, and says he will make heavy gains in Maryland, Iowa, Michigan and Minnesota. He says that if he does not receive a majority of the electoral votes neither of the other candidates will, and the matter will again go to the house of representatives, and if thrown into the House he will stand an equal chance with the rest.

De La Matry, he claims, has no concessions will be made by his partisans favorable to either democrats or republicans. In the event no agreement is reached then the matter will become a constitutional question and it shall be with the senate what disposition will be made of it. He says will stamp every State he can before the election, but will confine himself to no section. Kearney, he says, will lend him all support and give him California beyond a doubt.

We suggest a straight jacket for Gen. Weaver.

THE Republicans of Mercer county have instructed their nominees for Senator and Representatives to Support Hon. Galusha A. Grow for United States Senator. If this thing goes on at this rate Mr. Grow will have a walk-over to a seat in the Senate.

"RAIN for Garfield, the soldier statesman."

Brick Pomeroy's Opinion of Garfield.

Brick Pomeroy has started a new paper at Denver, Col., called the Great West, and in his second issue he pays the following just compliment to the next President:

"The less Democrats have to say about Garfield's dishonesty, the more sense will they exhibit. He took the back pay, but handed it back into the Treasury of the United States. We do not believe him dishonest, or that he has even pocketed pennies of political perquisites, where his assailants have stolen dollars, either from the public or their private friends. If the Democrats, or others, select leaders with as clean a record as has Garfield, they will do well."

A DEMOCRATIC soldier writes the following "bold comfort" to the Philadelphia Times. He expresses the sentiments of the soldier boys when he says: "I see by your independent journal that a great many Republicans are going to vote for Hancock and his election is sure. We have heard the same thing on two occasions before, namely: McClellan and Greeley; but when the time came for voting they all fell into line, the same as they will again for Garfield, and voted the Republican ticket. And the Grand Army of the Republic are going to vote for Hancock! Why, do the people believe this? I hope not. Why the first thing that the Democratic party did was to discharge every member of our order and put rebels in their places. Where, 's one will ask? Why, in the House and Senate of the United States. Do the Democrats think we have forgotten so soon? No, nor are we blind to the real intentions, with the name of General Hancock to help them through. We do not want our pensions reduced and the rebels pensioned, or these reasons ninety out of every one hundred Grand Army men and soldiers will vote against the Democratic party. Although we love Hancock, who is a good, honest soldier, we will, when the time comes, cast our votes for our comrades General Garfield and Arthur, and don't you forget it."

SENATOR J. D. METZGER, who is staying at the White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia, has written a letter to L. Montgomery Bond, esq., of Philadelphia, in which he says: "As far as my health will permit, I will do all I can to keep in power the Republican party; but, as to taking the chairmanship of the National Committee, that I cannot do, for the reason that I am physically unable to undergo the labors which necessarily belong to the position. I found myself, after the adjournment of Congress, very much broken down, and I was, therefore, compelled to abandon all my business affairs—although they had been neglected during the entire session of Congress—and come here with the hope of having my health restored."

I am obliged, under the advice of my physician, to remain here for several weeks. Therefore you see that it is impossible for me to do as you, as well as many other friends, think that I ought, during the coming canvass. You may rest assured, however, that as soon as I am well enough I shall give my entire energies as a member of the committee to the great work which is before us."

WALLACE is having a serious time with the rank and file of his party in his own county. During the dark days of the war he and Backeul had educated them to hate every man who wore the blue, to oppose the war and to resist the draft, even if it so successfully required the crime of murder. Now he wants his old followers to turn in and shout for Hancock, but remembering their early lessons in treason to their country, as taught them by Wallace, they refuse to throw up their hats for the "man on horseback." He attempted to get up a ratification meeting at Du Bois, in his county, a few evenings since, but he could not get the faithful to turn out, and there was no meeting. The coffee-pot manipulator will have some trouble in undoing his dirty work during war times.

MCCLELLAN, taking his cue from that "pirate of the press," Dana, of the New York Sun, in a recent issue of the Times published a column of silly stuff about the withdrawal of Gen. Garfield. These independent Democratic editors can rest their souls in peace, for we assure them that the only "withdrawing" that Gen. Garfield intends to engage in will be on the 4th of March next, when he will "withdraw" from his Congressional labors to assume those incumbent upon the President of this Republic, a position to which the loyal people of the North propose to elevate him.

THE Democrats, in order to give their candidate more honors than he deserves, in a war which they all denounced as "a nigger war," have descended to the tomb of the lamented Meade and attempted to steal the chapter of victory from the brow of the hero of Gettysburg. Gen. Hancock is entitled to all honor for the part he played in that fierce battle against the Southern Democracy, but he is not entitled to wear the stolen honors belonging to Gen. George G. Meade.

"ROUNDHOUSE" PEARSON, of Pittsburgh, the coward who abandoned the Philadelphia troops to their fate when they were shut up in the burning round-house in that city, during the baron riots of 1877, has come out in favor of Hancock, and his fellow citizens cry in chorus, "good riddance to him!"

HON. MARSHALL JEWELL, of Connecticut, has been selected as Chairman of the Republican National Committee, which is a guarantee that the campaign will be ably conducted. Ex Senator S. W. Dorsey, of Arkansas, was chosen Secretary.

A GREAT ENTERPRISE.—The Hop Bitters Manufacturing Company is one of Rochester's greatest business enterprises. Their Hop Bitters have reached a sale beyond all precedent, their fame having spread throughout their way into every household in the land.—Graphic, July 21.

It is a fact that horse dealers are buying horses with ringbones and spavins because they can make money by using Kendall's Spavin Cure. Read the advertisement.

THE VOLTAGE BELT Co., Marshall, Michigan, will send their celebrated Electro-Voltic Belts to the afflicted upon 30 days trial. Specially cured guaranteed. It means what they say. Write to them without delay. Nov. 21.

A LOONY physician, named Tanner, is attempting to fast forty days in New York city.

GARFIELD ACCEPTS.

The following is the speech made by Gen. Garfield at the dedication of the soldiers' monument at this place yesterday:

"I should like to respond on such an occasion, in sight of such a monument, to you know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour, in the presence of this monument, which is a world of memories, a world of deeds and a world of tears and a world of glories. You know, thousands know, what it is to be a citizen of this country. It is a privilege and a duty to stand here, at this place, at this hour