Republicans, the issues involved in the coming election of your county ticket, after being nominated by the delegates who may be chosen by you, in connection with your Presidential and State tickets, are of the highest consideration and importance, and you are carnestly urged and requested to act accordingly. All depends upon your action and votes in securing the results of victory after the nominations have been made. Your principles and policy, which, for years past have successfully, in war and peace, guided and controlled the government of our great and growing Republic, should again win the fight. Shall your principles again win in the coming contest, ion of your county ticket, after being nomi your principles again win in the coming contest, or shall those who have always opposed them triumph over you, depends for their solution on your action and votes for Gen. The fellows who nominated Hancock at Cineinnati tried to break our lines at Gettysburg, and their effort to do so in November will be as great a failure as it was on those memorable July days when the gallant Hancock was lying wounded and bleeding from the effects of a Democratic of the great themes in their campaign. Of course, of the great themes in their campaign. Of course, of the great themes in their campaign. Of course, overstated. Although its interests must of necessing the released, there is no doubt. Hancock's election would be the triumph of principles which should place in power theme who fought to destroy it. Gen. Hancock represents the Democratic party, which was the party of the Rebellion, and is now, so far as the relies of that bloody attempt to overthrow the Republic continues to exist. So, in that, he represents ever murder that has been committed in the name of the Democracy since the war, every outrage upon the rights of freedom and citizenship, every false count and every wrong that has been perpetrated by the Democratic party.

The popular admiration of a soldier—a Union General—has been taken advantage of by the Cineinnati Convention, and no doubt will be one of the great themes in their campaign. Of course, overstated. Of course, no orator of character will seek to depreciate the of the great themes in orator of character will seek to depreciate the services of the opposing military candidate, unless their failure as a general was conspicuous. They are regarded as the representatives of a certain policy, hence it follows that personal criticism is made solely upon the ground of political sentiment or action. From this—a kind of idolatry—a very grave mischief may easily spring. A soldier, no matter how good or able, is not of necessity a good civil magistrate nor a statesman, coming as curred in that city on Monday last. The curred in that city on Monday last. We would call attention to the excellable for the military law is despotic. Now the security in many cases heretofore has been in the fact that the military heroes are only civilians having been re-absorbed into civil life when the war ended.—
Grant, it is true, had a West Point education, but was a tanner in the spring of 1861. Sherman was a banker and Burnsides was a railroad man. All hamceds. had mixed in politics, but not so with Hancock. He was a West Point graduate, and has been in the army ever since. There was indeed a strong prejudice against West Point when the warbegan, not because it was doubted that young men there not because it was doubted that young men there received a good military education, but because the rolitical influence of the school was believed to be unfavorable to the National Government.—
The influence was thought to have helped foster the silly notion that it was gentlemanly to be a rebel and indifferent to human rights. Consequently the Military Academy was a hot-bed of treason exercisely if a cadet chanced to be a Dem. some of the leading questions of the day

Quite a severe storm of wind and rain prevailed over eastern portions of the State on Tuesday afternoon, doing much damage who did not receive their education at West Point, who, as commending generals, were as successful, if not more so, than West Pointers, not only as military men, but as civilians and statesmen.—

July seems to be noted for its violent and ps, whose career, as a soldier, had not his equals, nd whose record, as a statesman, cannot be sur assed. I have reference to General James A. darfield, the Republican nominee for President of the United States.

General Garfield is a typical American citizen, EVERY person should read the manly of strong native sense, of great natural knowledge of men, and long and faithful experience as a statesman. The history of recent years abounds in evidence that in many ways and in many places—especially where their number has been great enough to endanger Democratic control—the very men by whose elevation to citizenship this increase of representation was effected have been debarred and robbed of their voice and their vote. It is true that no State statute or Constitution in so many words denies or abridges the exercise of their political rights; but the modes employed to bar their way are no less effectual. It is a suggestive and startling thought that the increased defrauded the Government out of by his part their way are no less electrian. The resumption of specie payments—one of the fruits of Republican policy—has brought the return of abundant prosperity, and the settlement of many distracting questions. The restoration of sound money, the large reduction of our public debt and of the burden of interest, the high advancement of the public credit, all attest the ability and courage of the Republican party to deal with such financial problems as may hereafter demand solution. Our paper currency is now as

The Government should aid works of internal provement national in their character, and ould promote the development of our water-urses and harbors wherever the general interests of commerce require.

Four years ago, as now, the Nation stood at the threshold of a Presidential election, and the Republican party, in soliciting a continuance of its ascendancy, founded its hope of success, not upon its promises, but upon its history. Its subsequent course has been such as to strengthen the claims. course has been such as to strengthen the claims which it then made to the confidence and support which it then made to the confidence and support of the country. On the other hand, considerations more urgent than have ever before existed forbid the accession of its opponents to power. Their success, if success attends them, must chiefly come from the united support of that section which sought the forcible disruption of the Union, and which, according to all the teachings of our past history, will demand ascendancy in the councils of the party to whose triumph it will have made by far the largest contribution.

There is the gravest reason for apprehension that exorbitant claims upon the public Treasury, by no means limited to the hundreds of millions already covered by bills introduced in Congress within the past four years, would be successfully urged if the Democratic party, should spaceed in urged if the Democratic party should succeed in supplementing its present control of the National Legislature by electing the Executive also.

There is danger in intrusting the control of the whole law-making power of the Government to a party which has in almost every Southern State

FOREIGN COUNTS VERSUS HOME

In a far-off Eastern city A pretty maid did live Her heart and hand to give To a living human creatur. Unless almost divine; She had a poor opinion of

The gender masculine.

First a young mechanic asked ker
If she would be his bride,

"No! I'll wed no poor mechanic,"
She haughtily replied.

"I was born for something better,
I'd have you understand;
You are bold in your presumption

You are bold in your presumption
To ask of me my hand!"
Then a beardless dandy wood her.
He had an oily tongue,
But as no mustache had started,
Because he was so young.
She gave him such a gentle hint,
As led him to infer

That he must raise some whiskers ere, He raised his eyes to her.

Overwhelmed with disappointment, And almost in despair,
That his chance to win the maiden

on Water street and extending back 74 feet to an aliey, bounded on the east by lot F. H. Harrison, on the south by an alley, and on the west by Morrison's heirs, having thereon erected a two-story FRAME DWELLING HOUSE and KITCHEN, Hung on a single hair,
He weat off and took a julip:
In that he drowned his woe;
He did not blow his brains out, for
He had no brains to blow.

Then there came another suitor
Then there came another suitor
To win the maiden fair;
He was not a bear-faced wooer,
But muzzled like a bear;
He had a fine imperial,
Moustache, and whiskers, curled,
And a lordly air about him,
As if he owned the week.

And a lordly air about him,
As if he owned'the world.
'Twas said he was a foreign count,
Incognito while here,
And had at heme a shady park,
With room for one more deer.
He thought the maiden of our song
Would find herself in luck
For, wedding him, the happy dear
Would get a fine young buck.
They met, and when the fair one gazed
Upon his whiskers fine. Upon his whiskers fine, She felt that she had found at last She fact her bard found at last
The paragon divine.
They courted through the summer months,
And married in the fall;
She gave her heart and hand, and he
Gave beard, moustache, and all.

One night they passed in pleasant dreams
A happy wedded pair;
But ah, alas! the next morn's light
Brought sorrow and despair.
The count arose and washed his face,
But fear o'erwhelmed his soul;
The glue had started and he The glue had started, and he left

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE

Presiding Elder of the St. Albans District.

St. Albans, Vt., Jan. 20th, 1880.—Dr. B. J.

Kendall & Co., Gents:—In reply to your letter I will say that my experience with "Kendall's Spavin Cure" has been very satisfactory indeed. Three or four years ago I procured a bottle of your agent, and with it, cured a horse of lameness caused by a spavin. Last season my horse became very lame and I turned him out for a few weeks when he became better, but when I put him on the road
he grew worse, when I discovered that a ringbone was forming, I procured a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure, and with less than a bottle cured him so that he is not lame, neither can the bunch be found.
Respectfully Yours,

P. N. GRANGER.

PERSEVERANCE WILL TELL.

PERSEVERANCE WILL TELL. STOUGHTON, MASS., March 16th, 1880.—B. J. Kendall & Co., Gents:—Injustice to you and myself, I think I ought to let you know that I have removed two bone spavins with "Kendall's Spavin Cure," one very large one, don't know how long the spavin had been there. I have owned the horse eight months. It took me four months to take the large one off and two for the small one. I have used ten bottles. The horse is entirely well, not at all stiff, and no bunch to be seen or felt. This is a wonderful medicine. It is a new thing here.

is a wonderful medicine. It is a new thing here, but if it does for all what it has done for me its Respectfully Yours, Chas. E. Parker. KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE is sure in its effects, mild in its action as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reachevery deep-seated pain or to remove any bony growth or other relargement, such as spavins, splints, curbs, callous, sprains, swellings, any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or rheumatism in man, and for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast. It is now known to be the best liniment for man are used action, which are liniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects.
