IMPORTANT TO AGENTS. -THE LIFE OF-

GENERAL JAMES A. GARFIELD against General Garfield, and it was certa nly never in any shape before the Supreme Court. I had, therefore, neither occasion nor opportunity to express any judicial opiuion upon the subject. It is not stated where any case in which General Garfield was concerned is reported. My confident impression is that I never heard of such a case before. General Garfield is a personal friend of mine and I have the highest confidence in his in-tegrity. The statements in The World are an en-tire fabrication and without a particle of truth to sustain them." ULINTAL JANILS A. UANTILLY By his personal friend, MAJOR BUNDY, Editor *N. Y. A pretty maid did live, Who was determined never Her heart and hand to give To a living human creature, Unless almost divine; Chiess almost divine; She had a poor opinion of The gender masculine. First a young mechanic asked her If she would be his bride, "No! I'll wed no poor mechanic,". She hengbrily renied She haughtily replied. "I was born for something better, I'd have you understand : You are bold in your presumption To ask of me my hand !" Then a beardless dandy wooed her;

He had an oily tongue, But as no mustache had started, Because he was so yourg. She gave him such a gentle hint, As led him to infer That he must raise some whiskers ere, He raised his eyes to her. Overwhelmed with disappointment, And almost in despair, That his chance to win the maiden

Hung on a single hair, He went off and took a julip : In that he drowned his woe; He did not blow his brains out, for He had no brains to blow. Then there came another suitor To win the maiden fair;

He was not a bear-faced wooer. But muzzled like a bear ; He had a five imperial, Moustache, and whiskers, eurled, And a lordly air about him, As if he owned the world. 'Twas said he was a foreign count,

Twas said he was a forcign count, Incognito while here, And had at home a shady park, With room for one more dear. He thought the maiden of our song Would find herself in luck

For, wedding him, the happy dear Would get a fine young buck. They met, and when the fair one gazed Upon his whiskers fine, She feit that she had found at last

The paragon divine. They courted through the summer mo And married in the fall; She gave her heart and hand, and he Gave beard, moustache, and all.

One night they passed in pleasant dre A happy wedded pair; But ah, alas! the next morn's light Brought sorrow and despair. The count arose and washed his face, But fear o'erwhelmed his soul; The glue had started, and he left His whiskers in the bowl. The wife looked up, she saw his face

Smooth as a new-mown lawn; Save here and there a single hair, His whiskers all were gone. She swooned and fell upon the floor, The count secured her jenelry, And left for parts unknown. Then, ladies, dear, don't let your hearts

Be wrecked by foolish pride, In spurning any honest hand By labor dignified. Mechanics are our noblemen-They clothe at Towner HALL-

Wed them and shun the foreign counts, Of no account at all.
