The happiest men who live by toil Are those who cultivate the soil

Sow. Sew, and So.

Sow sow, sow,
So the farmers so!
Busy, busy, all the day,
While the children are at play,
Stowing, stowing close away
Baby wheat and rye in bed,
So the children may be fed,
So, so, so, So, so, so.

Sew, sew, sew.
So the mothers sew!
Busy, busy all the day,
While the children are at play, Sewing, sewing fast away,
So the children may have frocks,
Trowsers, coats, and pretty socks,
So, so, so.

Sow, sew, so So they sow and sew; S, and O, and W.
This is what the farmers do;
Put an E, in place of O,
This is how the mothers sew,— So they sow and sew for you,
So without the W,
So, so, so.

Keep the Barns Well Painted.

Hon. George Geddes, not long ago startled many of those who have great confidence in his opinions by declaring against painting barns and stables as a waste of money, the preservative effects of the paints not nearly returning its cost It is not likely that Mr. Geddes "practices what he preaches" in this respect, or acts consistently in regard to it. For if it is a waste of money to paint a barn, it is equally a waste to paint a house, and would he have farmers to leave their wooden houses all unpainted and looking wretchedly, or are his own barns bare and unpainted? It is not always that we should thus consider expenditures. If we are to measure the mere money value of a thing, we should come down to first principles, and do nothing at all unless we could see the money profit in it. We should, to act consistently, return to log cabins and bark camping places, and eschew soap and good clothes, because they cost money, and filth is cheap. We cannot carry any such prineiples into execution. The mere worry and loss of self respect to a man who has a rough, unpainted house and farm buildings, and the sense of shame and inferiority to the neighbors which his family must feel would considerably outweigh the money cost of the painting. I would have all buildings painted. My hay barracks, even, are painted, post and roof boards, and the paint pays for itself; for the roof boards have not curled up, do not warp or shrink and swell alternately, as if unpainted, and the small cost is a trifle compared with the comfort and the profit. Red is too conspicuous a color, and although it is now extremely fashionable in country places for garden and piazza furniture and ornament, yet it is too prominent and glaring to suit a refined taste. So with the red barns; a much more agreeable and appropriate color is the rich brown so nearly matched by the brown rocks, brown soil, and brown bark, which are natural and complimentary to the green verdue. The color is cheap, durable and fire proof. It is the brown oxide of iron, made from the earthly iron ore known as hematite. which is ground fine, and, when mixed with linseed oil, oxidizes with it and forms a hard, durable coating. It spreads and covers well, and one coat will last many years. Any farmer's boy can learn to paint, and as the paint costs but $1,50 per one hundred pounds, and oil is cheap, every farmer should paint his own buildings, even to the pig pen and hen roosts .-

Cor. New York Times. Fall Plowing.

The better the preparation of the ground the better crop. The high average yield of the English farm is no doubt largely due to the thorough preparation of the ground before seeding. Our climate is superior to that of England for wheat growing; yet a yield of sixty-four bushels per acre is not at all frequent among good farmers there, while here forty bushels per acre is an unusual yield. Two plowings, several harrowings and in many cases rolling or crushing, and the excellent preparation of the soil by a previous root crop must have a much better effect upon the soil, than one plowing, very poorly done, because of the hardness and dryness of our soil in midsummer, and very imperfect harrowing. It might be well for us to lay out more labor on our wheat crop, and so prepare the ground better, and raise our average from twelve to at least twenty bushels per acre. The difference in the amount of wheat at harvest would pay for a good deal of extra work in plowing, etc., and yet leave a profit; besides the soil would not forget the generous treatment in one year nor two.

Cows.

Treat them generously and kindly but do not keep them fat, unless they are to be turned off into beef. A cow is a machine, a laboratory for converting raw materials into milk. If little be given, little will be received. All animals should have exercise, especially those kept for breeding. Some of them are naturally lazy, but they will be better for stirring about in the open air. It is cruel to keep animals tied up or shut up for days at a time. They need light too. Direct sunshine exerts a powerful influence for good on animals as well as on plants. Do not overlook a good supply of pure water two or three times a day, or good ventilation and proper cleaning of stables. When the ground is frozen and covered with snow, it may be well enough, on pleasant days, to scatter the fodder and allow the stock plenty of room to pick it up; but when it is muddy, no one but a sloven will fodder on the ground. Good racks should be made for the sake of convenience and economy. ABOUT the last of March, says W. D. Philbrick in the American Cultivator, the ground is sometimes in order for early planting of such hardy seeds and plants as are not injured by frost, such as onions, peas, radishes, dandelions, beets and lettuce. There is nothing gained by working the ground before it is dry enough to be mellow, but as soon as it will work well it is desirable to get this part of the planting done, so as not to have it interfere with other things later in the season.

I Blot Out a Day.

I keep on a desk before me a calendar of the year, with the day of each week by numerals. When the day is past I draw my pen across a figure or the figure repreenting a day. It is gone, and I blot it out. So far as the column of numerals is concerned, I can do so.

But I am startled by the words, "I blot out a day." A day is a wheel in the great machinery of life-a link in the chain of my probation. It is as truly a part of Perfectly NO EQUAL Harmless vital and essential being as a year or a century. The day is given.me. Will it vanish at my bidding? I did not originate it; I only received it. I have no power to blot it out than to bring it in.

It was a gift. How should I treat the giver if I could and would blot it out? It came as a proof of the love of the Giver. To many that day came not. It was on its way, but the chain broke. But Divine kindness would not allow me to be the loser. Shall I not honor the Giver ?

A day of sadness perhaps! Blot it out for that reason? If my sins made the sad ness of the day, then let the day stand-a memento of and reminder of my folly. That day is worth saving that brings such a voice of reproof. Perhaps the day was a voice of reproof. Perhaps the day was the Cheapest, Parest and Best Family Medicing in the World. it ought to stand lest, blotting it out, offence be given to him who afflicts "for profit that we might be partakers of his holiness.'

A day of gladness, perhaps-the sky bright, the air balmy, joy in friends and JESSE R. AKERS all worldly comfort-above all, joy in the Lord and gladness in his salvation. Shall I mar such a beautiful picture? Shall I blot out such a day? As I erase the figure with a pen shall I drop it out of my mind as if there had never been such a day? Is this the kind return?

A day! That day just erased from my calendar, how much could have been accomplished in it! What a noble river of holy emotions might have rolled through my soul in that one day ?-what fervor of love, ardor in prayer, and workings of faith, bringing the light and joy of heaven unto the soul!

There hangs my calendar. I cannot blot out much longer. The last day of the year is at hand. The symbols of what remains may be erased by my driving pen, but these links of life-these waymarks of the path to eternity, these gifts of God these opportunities of usefulness-my gratitude shall welcome them, my love and zeal carry out their great design They Havana & Connecticut Seed shall aid in the grand result, that my name shall not be bloted out of the Book
