

Now, Mr. Speaker, we have got through with the cases of Mr. Hunter, Mr. Barton, and Mr. Etheridge. These cases were made the foundations of several bitter resolutions—how bitter, their language will readily attest. I do not mean to attribute malice to the movers of the resolutions; but malice there is, somewhere, and it has been poured down like a meteoric shower upon the head of this officer.

Yes, sir, and this House has been made the instrument—the conduit pipe through which this accumulation of atrocious matter was to be poured forth upon him. Why, sir, his accusers have even gone so far as to accuse him of having trampled under foot the laws and regulations of our Navy, because he imported into the United States—What? A variety of animals and seeds and plants, in order to promote agriculture in our country. And for this you find him accused of setting aside the laws of our Navy. Sir, at that time the law authorizing him to do these things was as broad as the face of the noon-day sun.

But, at a time when we were at peace with the universal world, shall this be made an accusation against him? Shall he be brought up here, paraded before the eyes of the nation, on the floor of Congress, because he had shipped from Asia, Africa, and all the foreign coasts which he visited, rare animals and plants and specimens of antiquity, and with an elevated generosity, presented them to our colleges, our academies and our institutions of various kinds, reserving not one for his own benefit? So far from this being made matter of accusation against him, was he not acting for the public benefit? Was he not subserving the interests of his country? Was he not acting in conformity with the law of the Department which was framed with a view to enhance our agricultural resources? Sir, I think that he was doing all this. And if gentlemen will reflect a little more maturely, I think they will discover that they ought not, at all events, to denounce him for his endeavors to promote the literature and the agriculture of our country.

THE NORTH-EASTERN BOUNDARY WAR.

An Extra from the office of the Bangor Whig, dated Sunday evening, gives the following interesting information. Maj. Gen. Isaac Hodson, of the 3d Division of the Militia of Maine, embracing Penobscot county, has been ordered by the Commander in Chief to detach one thousand men from the Division under his command, and proceed at the earliest possible moment to the place occupied by the forces of the command of the Land Agent, to aid him in carrying into effect the resolve in relation to the trespassers on the public lands.

& quibblings of the British government, by which a settlement of this vexed question has been so long deferred, arise from a knowledge that the United States are correct in their assumptions, and from a belief that by procrastination a compromise will be at last effected, which may leave to the British that convenient over-land communication in winter between New Brunswick and Quebec, which is so important in a colonial government maintained by the force of the bayonet. But while admitting all this, and making due allowance for the exasperation of the people of Maine at the intolerable delay of over fifty years in bringing this disputed point to an adjustment, the question arises as to how far she is justifiable in her recent movements.

The messenger from Sir John Harvey brings intelligence that Mr. McIntire, the Land Agent is at Fredericton, and that he will be detained there by order of the Provincial Government. The messenger from Sir John Harvey brings intelligence that Mr. McIntire, the Land Agent is at Fredericton, and that he will be detained there by order of the Provincial Government.

THE KEYSTONE OF THE FEDERAL ARCH.

Pennsylvania, thou noble State, Thy name is growing truly great, Who can tell thy boundless worth? Or call one half thy treasure forth? Thou art the proudest of the stripes, Thy fame the brightest star benighted, Thou art Columbia's brilliant star, Outshining all the rest by far.

THE KEYSTONE OF THE FEDERAL ARCH.

Two thousand men have been ordered out, which number promptly volunteered, from among the best material for troops to be found in the country. The number will be raised to ten thousand if necessary. Large purchases were made in Boston on Tuesday, of beef, pork, bread, blankets, and other articles for the service.

The people of Maine are excited to desperation on this subject, and seem to have relinquished all hopes of a satisfactory and peaceable settlement of the question for that the disputed territory belongs absolutely to the United States, is as capable of positive proof as that Boston belongs to Massachusetts.

A correspondent of the Portland Advertiser writing from Augusta, 17th inst. says: "I learn that orders will be sent out to-morrow to each Major General in the State, to have one thousand men drafted in each division, to hold themselves in readiness to march when called for to support the forces already sent."

The Kennebec Journal, in speaking of this subject, uses the following language: "If after Mr. Rogers has an interview with Gov. Harvey, he shall not immediately release the Land Agent, or if he shall attempt to repel the American force by British troops, let us have the issue at once. Let the sword be drawn, and let the scabbard be thrown away, and if the General Government at Washington will not sustain us, let us call Massachusetts to our aid, and beat up for volunteers in all the other States. We have suffered indignities and insults enough. If our Land Agent cannot be sent to protect the property of the State from thieves, without being seized as a culprit, and put into the Fredericton jail, it is time that we showed a little of the spirit of '76, and not only rally to defend our own territory, but peradventure demolish the prison at Fredericton, which has for years been an standing monument of our disgrace."

The messenger from Sir John Harvey brings intelligence that Mr. McIntire, the Land Agent is at Fredericton, and that he will be detained there by order of the Provincial Government.

FOR THE VOLUNTEER.

To D. R. Porter Governor, I your humble servant, sir, A citizen of Cumberland, Say Heaven bless you where you stand; And so enable you to rule Your native state, not like a fool! As did your predecessor late, And bring upon it shame and woe, But may you rule in righteousness The people all, that they may bless The day they did you elevate. To rule our glorious Keystone State, Sir, by the neighborly hand, The Judgeship will become a trade Which when a man begins to know, Then turn him out and let him go. The time is coming fast about When half the old ones must go out, And one of those who's time is spent In morals good, yet with the folk Can freely give and take a joke, And show the greatness of his mind, By always being free and kind; He does not snuff nor chew nor smoke, Nor hap religion with a cloak, Nor at his neighbor's hearth grade, He's just the man should be our Judge, Carlisle his place of residence, And there he's styled a man of sense, From Huntington 'tis said he came, And Samuel Hepburn is his name; He is a democrat forsooth, Of Porter stand, who loves the truth, Commission him the people say, And they in duty bound will pray.

FOR THE VOLUNTEER.

The Keystone of the Federal Arch. Pennsylvania, thou noble State, Thy name is growing truly great, Who can tell thy boundless worth? Or call one half thy treasure forth? Thou art the proudest of the stripes, Thy fame the brightest star benighted, Thou art Columbia's brilliant star, Outshining all the rest by far. Poud does thy name o'er ocean slip On the Pennsylvania battle ship; While long and loud her cannons roar Along some far and distant shore. Thy cities, both in east and west, Are greater too than all the rest; Thy rivers and thy splendid plains, Are not surpassed in earth's domains. Thy hills and valleys all complete, Afford a summer's glad retreat; And woodlands, with their lofty trees, Send forth a pure and healthful breeze. Thy temples and thy schools conspire To raise thy fame and glory higher; Thy rail roads and thy engines too, Old England and old France outdo. Thy rulers are the best of men, The people's rights they will defend, Like statesmen; with unerring skill They carry out the people's will. Thy soldiers are both true and brave, They rally when their banners wave, And march when e'er their ruler calls, To "defend the Legislative Halls!" Wit thou oh Penn thy honor stain, And renege the soldier's honest claim, Carlisle, Feb. 25, 1839. J. H.
