BY SANDERSON & CORNMAN.

CARLISLE:

THURSDAY, JULY 4, 1839.

OUR FLAG.

"Now our flag is flung to the wild wind free,
Let it float o'er our fatherland,
And the guard of its spotless fame shall be,
Columbia's chosen band!"

FOR PRESIDENT IN 1840,
MARTIN VAN BUREN,
AND AN INDEPENDENT TREASURY.

An Independent Treasury, whose officers responsible to the people, instead of privileged corporations, shall guard the people's money. Democracy asks in vain, what claim have the banks to use this public treasure as their own, again to convert it into an engine of ruinous expansions and contractions of the currency, and of new political panics and pressures, to enforce submission to the Money Power.—Hon. James Buchanan's Toast.

COUNTY MEETING.

The Democratic Republicans of Cumberland County are requested to meet at the Court House in the Borough of Carlisle, on Monday the 12th of August next, (Court Week,) at early candle light, to adopt measures preparatory to the ensuing general election. A general attendance is requested. MANY DEMOCRATS.

To a Correspondent.—"Philip," on the subject of a "Village Celebration," came to hand too late for insertion this week. We shall give it a place with pleasure in our next.

We are compelled to omit most of the Volunteer toasts drunk at the different celebrations this week, for want of room. We shall "bring up the rear-guard" in our next.

HON. WILLIAM S. RAMSEY'S SPEECH.

We invite the attention of our readers to this truly able and pertinent address, a copy of which has been furnished for publication at the request of the Committee of Arrangement. It is worthy the author, not only for its masterly composition, but also for the excellent republican sentiments it contains—and must place him high in the affections of all his constituents. During the delivery, which occupied about an hour, Mr. R. was listened to with the most marked attention and with evident feelings of satisfaction by the vast assemblage, and sat down amid the reiterated cheers of the company.

Read it, one and all; and then judge for yourselves. It is published on the first page.

Democratic Celebration.—We have but little room for remarks in reference to the celebration on Thursday last, which was the largest and most respectable assemblage of democratic freemen we have ever witnessed on a similar occasion. It was truly gratifying to see so many of our substantial farmers and mechanics from all sections of the county in attendance, and the spirit and zeal with which they were animated. It was indeed such a display of the "bone and sinew" of the county as has already carried terror and dismay into the discordant and distracted ranks of the piebald federal factions, and given them a prelibation of what they are to expect at the hands of the people on the second Tuesday of October.

Between 2 and 300 persons (voters) were in attendance, and partook of an excellent dinner provided for the occasion by Mr. George Heckman. Among those present we were happy to perceive several individuals who have heretofore acted with the opposition, but whose honesty and intelligence would not permit them any longer to associate with a corrupt federal faction entirely destitute of principle and unworthy the name of Americans. There were also present a number of young men; just starting in the political world, who give promise of usefulness, and who by their noble remembrance of principle and will be gratefully remembered to the community. The utmost harmony and good feeling prevailed throughout, all perfectly satisfied with this auspicious commencement of the campaign, we were all able to "row our own oars up Salt River" the next general election.

The "paper bullets" fired on the occasion will doubtless occasion considerable flutter in the tattered party; but that is neither here nor there. The democratic need is, that "to speak his thoughts is every free man's right"—and if any of the wounded evince more than ordinary sensibility, it is no fault of ours. This may be looked upon as only a discharge of small arms—next October we shall bring the big guns of democracy to bear upon the enemy—and we intend to rout them, too, "horse, foot and dragoons." Don't forget and "stick a pin there," my sweet fellows!

The federal bank abolition amalgamation party, to the number of about 40 or 50, all told, celebrated the 4th at Henderson's Grove. We understand that, notwithstanding the paucity of numbers, it was composed of the most discordant materials—federalists, anti-masons, blue light Hartford Conventionists, apostate democrats, non-descripts—in short the "fag-end of all factions." As Buzzard would say, it was a real "Omni-gatherum"—a "compounded compound" of unprincipled demagogues and their suppliant tools, who have no principle in common to bind them together, other than bitter and malignant hatred to the democratic party and our republican institutions.

We learn that one of their orators, who occupied a somewhat elevated position (we don't mean Wilson's garret) during the "Buckshot War" indulged in a strain of low, obscene, profane blackguardisms against the democratic party, which would have been more than a match for the billingsgate of a fish-woman in any of our large cities. The crowded state of our columns this week prevent us from paying that attention to the impotent ravings of this infuriated madman that he deserves; but we may probably hereafter take a more general notice of his highly seasoned dish of federal slang-whangery, and furnish the author with a "text" from which he may discourse to his political friends as long as he pleases.

We attended the celebration of the Semi-Centennial Anniversary of the Union Philosophical Society of Dickinson College, held in the First Presbyterian Church of this borough, on Thursday evening last. The house was crowded to overflowing, and the exercises generally passed off to the gratification of the audience, although the delivery of some of the speeches was not in the very best style. There were, however, one or two addresses delivered, which, although spoken very well, were far from deserving of public approbation. The second, in particular, by G. W. Coffey, merits the condemnation of every intelligent citizen in the community for its political and partisan bearing. The public, without distinction of party, are invited to attend upon such occasions—and we think it due to that courtesy and respect for each other's feelings which should always characterize the proceedings before a mixed assembly, more particularly when the exercises are conducted by the members of an Institution that professes to eschew party politics from its walls, to refrain from saying any thing calculated to wound the feelings of any portion of the audience.

We speak not in anger, nor with a view to injure the College in the estimation of the public, when we say that the speech in question reflects neither credit on the head or heart of the author, nor on those who had it in their power to control the actions and disposition of the beardless scion of aristocracy who, upon the occasion referred to, gave vent to feelings which could only have proceeded from total ignorance of the true character of the people, or a depraved and corrupt imagination.

We have no idea of permitting the democracy of the country to be vilified and stigmatized by every petty upstart, as an "ignorant rabble" incapable of judging for themselves, and such like slang—nor will we, so long as we have the control of a free press, permit any individual or individuals to heap such gross and unmeaning insult upon us or the democratic party, with impunity. We are friendly to institutions of learning, so long as they are conducted on proper principles; but the proceedings of Thursday night have been far from leaving a favorable impression on our mind or on that of the community, with regard to the above mentioned institution.

We hope, for the welfare of the College, that those having the control of it, will not hereafter permit any under their charge to disembody their fish-woman-slang, at least upon such an occasion. If principles like these are imbibed in our Colleges and Academies—if they are to be converted into hot-beds of Aristocracy—those immediately interested may find, when it is too late, that the sovereign people whom they so much despise, have the power to prostrate them in the dust. Institutions of learning can only prosper and thrive in accordance with the popular will; and whenever they are converted into political manufactories, they must necessarily lose that character and standing in the community which is of vital importance to their very existence.

It is scarcely necessary to apologize our readers for the lack of variety in our columns this week. The proceedings of the Celebration have excluded almost every thing else.

The Governor has not yet signed (and it is believed will not,) the Improvement Bill which was passed on the last day of the session, on account of some objectionable features in it. If he withholds the Executive signature, he will doubtless, be able to give satisfactory reasons to the people for his course. This much we are sure of, that, so long as he holds the reins of government, this great Commonwealth will never be placed at the mercy of an over-grown, stock-jobbing money power, which seems to have been the design of some of the federal whigs who voted for the bill.

President VAN BUREN is every where greeted with the highest marks of respect. Upon his landing at New York on Tuesday week, salutes were fired from the shipping in the harbor, and from the different forts in the neighborhood. A procession was formed to escort him to his lodgings, consisting of about 6000 volunteer troops, the municipal officers of the city, and an immense number of citizens. The concourse of persons present has been variously estimated at from one to two hundred thousand. Such is the homage of a free people paid to their virtuous and patriotic Chief Magistrate.

One of Ritner's Judges Disgraced!—We learn from Harrisburg, that the Supreme Court have given a decision of ouster in the case of Judge Collins, of Lancaster, who, our readers will recollect, resigned, and was re-appointed shortly before Joseph Ritner went out of office, expecting, by this contemptible trick to add two or three years more to his official existence. Like the dog in the fable, in grabbing for more than he was entitled to, he lost what he had. The same decision would doubtless have been made in the case of Judge Darlington, had not his sudden death precluded the necessity. What will old Joe and his advisers now think of their own base conduct? If they had the least spark of sensibility left they would blush for their own degradation.

FOURTH OF JULY.

Agreeably to notice given, a very large and highly respectable number of the Democratic Republican citizens of Cumberland county, met at the grove of Simon Wunderlich, Esq. one-half mile east of Carlisle, on Thursday last, to celebrate the sixty-third anniversary of American Independence.—After partaking of an excellent dinner provided for the occasion, and the cloth being removed, the following officers were appointed:

The Declaration of Independence was then read by Hugh Gaultagher, after having made a few appropriate remarks suitable to the occasion. When the reading of the Declaration was gone through with, the meeting was addressed by Mr. Samuel R. Hamill, of Shippensburg, in a speech of about half an hour, which reflected great credit upon the speaker, and was highly interesting to the audience. The following toasts were then read by James H. Graham, Esq. accompanied with appropriate music of the occasion by the Manager, and repeated cheers from the multitude present.

REGULAR TOASTS.
1. The Fourth of July, the natal day of our liberties—may its influence ever awaken in the breasts of freemen a proper estimate of the blessing conferred by the event which we have this day assembled to commemorate.

2. The memory of George Washington, who was first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen.

3. The memory of Thomas Jefferson, the great Statesman and founder of practical democracy.

4. Andrew Jackson, the Hero and Statesman who conquered on the plains of New Orleans the glittering legions of Britain, and at Washington drove back into their "dens and caverns" the pampered troops of the United States Bank; may his few remaining years be as tranquil as those that are past have been glorious.

5. Martin Van Buren, President of the United States, a distinguished Statesman of the Jefferson school—the confidant of Jackson—the people approve of his Administration of the government, and will again elevate him to the Presidency of this great Republic by their free suffrages.

6. The Governor of Pennsylvania, Genl. David R. Porter; a well tried and faithful servant in the ranks of Democracy. His elevation to the first office in the gift of the freemen of this Commonwealth is the triumph of principle over corruption and misrule.

7. Hon. James Buchanan, the talented and indefatigable representative of Pennsylvania in the Senate of the United States.—The Keystone state will, in 1844, claim from the Democracy of the Union his nomination for the Presidency, as her best, her last, and only choice.

8. Hon. Wm. R. King: The bold and fearless champion of Democracy in the South; his firm adherence to Jeffersonian principles endear him to the people—His legislative experience—and services entitle him to the second office in the Union.

9. Hon. William S. Ramsey. [For Toast and Speech see first page.]

10. Our late Representatives in Congress and our State Legislature, Hon. Charles McClure, Col. James Woodburn and Wm. R. Gargas Esq. Honest and fearless politicians—They have faithfully represented us in times too trying and in seasons too alluring for the integrity of doubtful politicians.

11. Gen. Thomas C. Miller, our Democratic Senator—As a member of the committee of Safety he foiled the treason of conspiring traitors; at the ballot box he was sustained by the suffrages of honest men against the slanders of Stevens, and the votes of his rail road mercenaries. His election in this district, the residence of the two principal actors in the scene of the Buckshot war, and which was formed by them to secure their political existence, is a solemn admonition to political conspirators.

12. The Banks—Our licensed gambling shops—a powerful Banditti who have set government and law at defiance—and who will ere long, if not placed under more wholesome restrictions, destroy every vestige of liberty.

13. An Independent Treasury—whose officers are responsible to the people, instead of privileged corporations, shall guard the people's money. Democracy asks in vain—What claim have the banks to use the public treasure as their own—again to convert it into an engine of ruinous expansions and contractions of the currency, and of new political panics and pressures, to enforce submission to the money power?

14. The Internal Improvement System—the pride, glory, and boast of our country—the debt is cancelled, provided the works be worth the expenditures.

15. The Democracy of Pennsylvania—the tenth legion in the great Republican Army of the Union—The first in war, the first in peace, and the last to submit in silence to an infringement of their rights. The annals of "the Buck-shot war" will admonish future conspirators to beware how they handle the lion's mane.

16. The Army and Navy of the United States.

17. The Farmers and Mechanics—The main pillars of society; a nation's strength in peace and war—the true conservators of correct principles in politics, morality and religion.

18. Proscription—Oblivion to our enemies who administered to themselves; but a most soothing medicine for the Democrats when whiggery happens to be triumphant.

19. Hon. Jesse Miller. The patriotic, fearless and honest servant of the people—during his official career he has won golden opinions from his political friends, and even the respect of his enemies.

20. The fifty six democratic Representatives—whose firmness and integrity saved this Commonwealth from revolution and blood-shed, meditated and threatened by an official band of desperadoes and traitors, whose sworn duty it was to support the constitution and laws.

21. Our Democratic Senators—we thank them and the people thank them for their defence of the principles of their party, when assailed in the name of liberty and patriotism by traitors and enemies to our republican institutions.

22. Messrs. Butler, Sturdevant and Montelius.—The patriotism of John Gaulting, David Williams and Isaac V. Wert, rescued the American Nation from the treason of Benedict Arnold—the patriotism and moral integrity of Messrs Butler, Sturdevant and Montelius saved our beloved Commonwealth from the treasonable stratagems of Stevens and his accomplices, and their names will be remembered by every republican with feelings akin to those associated with the capture of Andre, while those of Stevens and his associates will be consigned to infamy and oblivion as marked and merited as that attached to the name of Benedict Arnold.

23. The Committee of Safety of December 1838, and the committee of safety of July 1776—both organized to resist the march of tyranny and oppression. Both successful in defeating the plans and machinations of the enemies of human liberty.

24. Our amended Constitution—so far it works well and proves that the people are capable of self-government.

25. Our Harvest.—The husbandman is promised a ten-fold return for his labors, in the abundance of his crops. May the annual recurrence of this anniversary bring with it the same cheering hopes for the farmer—the same bright and smiling faces—and the same gladdening influence of contentment and plenty.

26. The Ladies, Our Mothers, Our Wives, Our Sisters and our Sweethearts: God bless them!

By the Company. The Committee of Arrangement for their diligence, the Reader of the Declaration of Independence, the Orators of the day, and the readers of the Toasts, have the thanks of the company.

VOLUNTEER TOASTS.

By the President. General Andrew Jackson—one of our best patriots, one of our best statesmen—a friend to liberty, an enemy to tyranny: his veto of the United States Bank, hath given him a name above every American, which will continue as long as the democracy remember to celebrate this day.

By Joseph M. Means, V. P. Farmers, Mechanics and Laboring men—The "bone and sinew" of the Republic—let purse-proud aristocrats beware how they attempt to trample upon their rights.

By George Wise, V. P. Penrose's New Mill—Twenty thousand substantial reasons in favor of the re-charter of the U. S. Bank.

By Samuel Woodburn, V. P. Hon. Amos Kendall, Postmaster General. An able, fearless and talented officer of the General Administration. His recent conduct in sweeping from office his federal deputies in the county of Cumberland proves him worthy of the confidence of the democratic party.

By John Agnew, V. P. Hon. James Buchanan: His course in the Senate of the U. States has given him an enduring popularity with the people: A higher destiny awaits him, and when the proper time arrives, Pennsylvania will not be backward in pressing the claims of this eminent statesman to the chief magistracy of the Republic.

By Frederick Wise, V. P. David R. Porter, our present worthy Governor—the people's choice in opposition to the malignity and vile slanders of corrupt foes. Long may he continue the incorruptible friend of democratic institutions, and the foe to overgrown and dangerous monopolies.

By John Harris, V. P. The democratic citizens of Millin township, the real friends of Andrew Jackson, David R. Porter, and, in a snowy day, Gen. T. C. Miller—may they not all be forgotten by the committee next fall.

By Leonard Wise, V. P. Penrose's retreat through the back window of the Senate chamber—the "Biddle-blood" must have run confounded fast that time, the "thorn bushes" to the contrary notwithstanding.

By Peter Gutshall. Hon. Wm. R. King: A republican in whom is no guile—a statesman of the first order—Pennsylvania would delight to honor him.

By John Stuart, V. P. The Hon. James Buchanan, the talented son of the Keystone State—the democratic party is proud of such a son: he is second to no man in the nation; higher honors await him.

By Peres Howard, V. P. Gov. Ritner & his two farms—wonder if his bank farm is related to the United States Bank.

By Philip Spangler, V. P. The President of the U. States: The union of firmness and moderation so far displayed in his administration, is the best security for his faithful discharge of the high trust committed to his hands.

By Christian Keimard, V. P. General T. C. Miller: His majority of 700 in Cumberland at the special election, is an evidence of his popularity—next time he runs we can give him 1000.

By James Lamberton, V. P. Ireland—The land that gave birth to the father of the Honorable James Buchanan senator of the U. States, the worthy representative from Pennsylvania.

By William Westheffer, V. P. May the democracy of old mother Cumberland, put in nomination for office none but unbending and uncompromising democratic republicans to be supported at the ensuing election.

By Michael Mishler, V. P. May all mankind be as firmly united in supporting and defending the cause of Temperance, as the committee of safety and democratic members of the Senate and House of Representatives were in their speedy suppression of the Buckshot war, and their successful support and defence of the constitution and laws of our beloved Commonwealth, and the liberties we this day enjoy.

By Simon Wunderlich, V. P. Charles M'Clure, the plain, worthy and efficient representative, the honest and consistent defender of the people's rights—her richly merits the continued confidence of the democracy of old mother Cumberland.

By James Williamson, V. P. The Buckshot war: The last desperate act of an expiring federal administration—the projectors and prime movers of this Quixotic enterprise, will find their reward in the exorcism of an intelligent community.

By Edward Armor, V. P. The American Navy: The pride of her country, and a terror to all nations.

By Geo. Bectem, V. P. David R. Porter, Governor of Pennsylvania: May the suit at Allentown be a caution to his political enemies.

By Andrew Roberts, V. P. Martin Van Buren like Thomas Jefferson—determined to oppose the public treasure going into the possession of irresponsible corporations.

By William Mater, Sec. The day we celebrate, may its name be enshrined in the memory of every American.

By Samuel Fought, Sec. Hon. Charles M'Clure, plain and affable in his manners, firm and consistent in his democratic principles, his services in the cause of democracy will not be forgotten by the people.

By Samuel Stough, Sec. "Throw conscience to the Devil," says Stevens—save me from my internal foe," cries Penrose—oh, master, have mercy on me, cries Dan, the ugly big Butchers will eat me! "Devil take the hindmost," yelled Burrows, as he was streaking it down capitol hill.

By Wm. Campbell, Sec. The Anti-masonic, Piebald, Buckshot, party, celebrating the day at Henderson's Grove: A heterogeneous compound of Federalists, Anti-masons, Hartford Conventionists, Tories, now Modern Whigs, &c.; their opposition to republican men and measures, is perfectly consistent with their aristocratic principles. By A. G. Miller, Sec. Col. Chas. M'Clure: A good and faithful representative, his services in the cause of democracy will long be remembered by the democracy of Cumberland, Perry and Juniata counties.

By John Hamilton, Sec. Democracy has recently passed triumphantly through two wars—the one a war against Federalism, the other, the "Buckshot war"—may she be as successful in the third grand Presidential campaign in 1840, to preserve the liberties and the institutions of our country pure and uncontaminated.

By Wm. Bigley, Sec. Gen. D. R. Porter: One of the best Governors ever Pennsylvania had—more than one hundred and thirty thousand freemen attested his worth at the ballot boxes.

By Michael Calvert, Sec. D. R. Porter, Pennsylvania's sterling Governor—friendly to our democratic institutions and the mortal foe of Bank monopolies, not less distinguished for his patriotism and generous qualities than for his intelligence and accurate acquaintance with the interests of Pennsylvania.

By W. B. Mullin, Sec. The signers of the Declaration of Independence: Their names will not be lost to remembrance until man shall divest his character of its heavenly attributes, and the world forget that the votaries of liberty ever had a home.

By Thomas Craighead, Sec. Gen. T. C. Miller, our respected and fearless Senator: The venomous shafts of calumny heaped upon him by his opponents fall harmless at his feet.

(Remainder of the Toasts next week.)

MECHANICSBURG Democratic Celebration.

According to previous arrangements the democratic citizens of Mechanicsburg, and vicinity, assembled at the Sorrel Horse Hotel, at 12 o'clock, from whence they marched in procession to the place designated for the celebration. After partaking of a sumptuous repast, prepared by Mr. Thomas Bruner, the cloth was removed and the following officers appointed. Captain JACOB DORSHEIMER, President of the day; Jos. GRIER, S. RUPLEY, Geo. M'HOES, F. WUNDERLICH, Dr. A. H. VANHOFF and Dr. EDW. HELFENSTEN, Vice Presidents; and J. C. FEELEY, P. ROMAN STECK, MICHAEL HOOVER, Esq. and N. WHISLER, Esq. Secretaries. On taking the chair the President addressed the assembly in a brief but pathetic style.

The Declaration of Independence was then read by Dr. Wm. W. Dale; after which George F. Cain, Esq. arose and addressed the assemblage at some length in a very appropriate & eloquent manner, and was immediately followed by Mr. J. C. Weibley, who also acquitted himself in an interesting manner.

The following toasts were then read:

1. The day we celebrate—the day upon which was laid the cornerstone of American freedom.

2. To the memory of George Washington.

3. To the memory of Thomas Jefferson.

4. The departed heroes and sages of the revolution—"light be the sod that deck their honored graves."

5. The Signers of the Declaration, that "Spartan Band" that gave birth to liberty, 4th July 1776.

6. The heroes and soldiers of the late war: Honored for virtue and valor—the happiness of a free people is their brightest eulogy.

7. Gen. Mortier De La Fayette: America's adopted son, the independent advocate of the rights of man in the old and new world. Peace to his memory.

8. The Army and Navy of the U. States: The protectors of the free, and terror of the tyrant.

9. Andrew Jackson—"one of the few of the immortal names that were not born to die."

10. Martin Van Buren: Weak no stronger evidence of the able and efficient manner in which he has conducted the administration of the affairs of our government, than the abuse which has been so abundantly dealt out to him by his enemies.

11. D. R. Porter: The firm and unflinching democrat of the Jefferson school, his talents, worth and integrity have been testified by giving him 8000 of a majority.

12. The Union: May the cause of heaven rest upon him who by the sword of civil discord would sever the gordian knot that binds us together.

13. The Fair Sex: Practical democrats, unwilling to have any ruler but the one of their choice.

By the Company. Our Host and Hostess: We tender them our thanks, may they ever enjoy as bountiful a supply of the good things of life, as they furnished us this day.

After the toasts had been read, on motion of Dr. Wm. W. Dale, P. Roman Steck, was called upon to address them, which he did in a short and impressive manner.

(Volunteer Toasts in our next.)

MARRIED!

On Tuesday morning last, by the Rev. Mr. Thornton, Mr. Earnest A. Brady, of Baltimore, Md., to Miss Margaret C. R. Dipple, daughter of Mr. Michael Dipple, of this borough.

In Chambersburg, on the 4th inst., by the Rev. Mr. Hoffman, Mr. John Cairns, (printer,) to Miss Margaret Oyster, all of that place.
