MR. MAY.

We perceive that Mr. May, of Lawrenceville Ill. whose mysterious disappearance caused such painful excitement, has returned to Philadelphia. The United States Gazette gives the subjoined explanation of the circumstances which led to his directly the opposite point of the compass.

A description of the sublime spectacle which ensued is beyond the power of language to convey. At the moment of the concussion large masses of seeming white spray was precipitated to the earth, followed by a roaring of the wind as if old Eolus was there guiding and directing the storm. Houses were dismantled of their roofs and then almost immediately levelled to the earth. The air, was filled with bricks and large pieces of timber, and even large ox cart's were upliftwised and thrown hundreds of vards from their mr. May on the track. Boyer was pursued by Mr. May, and several other persons, into Canada, and all others, will find it to their advantage by and there caught, after a regular chase. He was searched, and Mr. May's money—that which he rought with him, and the proceeds of the drafts—vere found in his belt. And there were also found in his belt. And there were also found in him, found the work also found in him found the work also found the work also found in him found the work also were found in his belt. And there were also found on him, four thousand dollars besides, out of which he agreed to pay the five hundred dollars to the landlady, and all the expenses attending his cap-ture; so that Mr. May returned to New York without the loss of a dollar.

We give these rather disconnected hints of the story, in the expectation that Mr. May will prepare a full account, as due to himself, and those gentle men who interested themselves for his safety:

Fatal Accident .- On the 22d ult. the teamboat Green River capsized in the river of that name, in Kentucky, by which nine persons were drowned-five females and 4 men. Four young girls were drowned in the cabin. There were twenty four on board and only fifteen of the number were rescued.
