the human system, and such is the devoted of the adherents to that erroneous doctine, that they content themselves with the simple possession of this fallacious opinion, without enquiring int the primary sources from whence Life. Health, and Vigor emanate, and, vice versa pain, sickness, disease and death. Not so with Dr. Hunr, whose extensive research and practical experience so eminently qualify him for the profession of which he has been one of the most useful members. He contends—and a moment's reflection will convince any reasoning mind of the correctness of his views—that the stomach, livcorrectness of his views—that the stomach, liver, and the associated organs are the primary and great regulators of health, and that the blood in very many instances is dependent on these organs, and that unless medicine reaches THE ROOT OF THE DISEASE, the superficial anodynes usually prescribed, serve but as foils to cover the ravages of deep-rooted maladies.—Under these convictions, at the expense of ye. ra of close application, the doctor has discovered a medicine whose searching powers are irresistible, and in prescribing, it is with a knowledge of its being a radical cure in the various diseases already cummerated, even if applied in the most already counterated, even if applied in the most critical cases, but he does not pretend to ascribe

Mr. Wim. Tucker, having lately been restored to a sound state of health, through the efficacy of Da. The passage of the teeth through the gums produces troublesome and dangerous symptoms. It is known by mothers that there is great irritation in the mouth and gums during this process. The gums swell, the secretion of the saliva is increased, the child is seized-with-frequent and sudden fits of crying, watching, starting in its sleep, and spasms of peculiar parts; the child shrieks with extreme violence, and, thrusts its fingers into its mouth. If these precursary symptoms are not speedly allevlated, spasmodic convelsions, universally supervene, and soon cause the dissolution of the infant.
