CARRIER'S ADDRESS

TO THE PATRONS OF THE

lmerican Volunteer,

JANUARY 1, 1841.

Good morning, kind patrons-good morning I say; How fare ye all; friends, since the last New Year's day? Has the year 1840, which is now past and gone, Been a pleasant one to you! if not, let me introduce '41. But while you're perusing my budget of news, Slip your hand in your pocket, and welcome the muse With a high diddle, ho diddle, high diddle dec, And a little of the "needful" in the shape of a-FEE.

To commence with myself, then-in snow and in storm, Through rain and through mud-in cold and in warm, I've faithfully serv'd you, with regularity and despatch, And informed you of every thing-not forgetting Sam Patch. I've told you of Hard Cider-of Coon Skins, and Gourds-Of Log Cabins, and Balls-of Rams-horns and Swords-Of Wars and Commotions-of Buckshot and ball-Of Murders and Suicides-Feds, Demos, and all.

But to vary their rhyme poets have license, they say-And I'll aleastry my hand as I stop by the way

For Tippecanoe and Tyler too; For Tip-up-a-canoo and upset it too, Dan, Dan's a forsaken man.'

By singing and shouting, by drinking and swearing-By lying and "pipe laying," by ripping and tearing-By stories of gold spoons, and * mugs, not a few, Martin Van was defeated by old Tippecanoe.

But the Democrats won't stay beat-aye, there's the rub, They'll rally anew for the fight, and they'll at it and scrub The Federalists from power, as they did in days of yore, And Democracy will triumph in the year FORTY FOUR.

should tell you of Penrose and Stevens, and pretty old Joe-Of Tapeworms and Backwindows-of Burrowes and Co .-Of Traitors and Conspirators-Speculators and Blacklegs-Of Old Nick and his minions—the "Buckeye" and rotten eggs. But time, to rehearse all I know, would me fail, And I therefore pass on with the rest of my tale; It's sufficient to say that 'tween Stevens and Penrose A feud exists about office, which will bring them to blows; But as the old adage has it, which is appropriate and true, "When rogues have a quarrel, honest men get their due."

I've now told you all 'bout the politics of the year, And related the truth without favor or fear-Old Tip will be President de jure, as the lawyers would say, But the Executive defacto will be old Webster and Clay. And they'll lead him, and guide him, and direct all his actions, And mould him as was Ritner by Stevens and his factions But there'll be squealing and squeaking, and laughing and glee, When the "spoils" are divided by the "Committee of Three."

Who railed out against office-holders before the election, Are now anxious to assist in governing the nation. But a deal of grunting and groaning, and puffing and swearing, And yelping and yowling, and ripping and tearing, And swearing and cursing, I very much fear, Will have to be recorded through the ensuing year. The Feds will curse the Anties, the Abolitionists the Quids, The Tories the Conservatives, and the Bluelights the Feds; And they'll be ripping all round from beginning to ending, Till the new administration will soon doubtless need mending.

Meanwhile the Democrats are preparing to pack up their duds and be flitting

In an expedition up Salt River, to its head waters, if fitting; And to make all things secure for a four years' navigation, Governor Boggs, of Missouri, recommends an appropriation. And the Democrats from nineteen States, Will passage take at the lowest rates-

A jolly looking, jovial crew, With singing and dancing, with mirth and fine glee, They'll ascend for a season, just by way of a "spree; But after exploring the country, and settling arrears, They'll descend in a lifty at the end of four years.

I've told you of Europe and Asia, not neglecting Algiers-Of England and China-of France and her Minister Thiers-Of Russia and Austria, and Prince Metternich, Of Norway, of Sweden-of movements near the Baltic: But not neglecting things at home, I have news from Arcostook From Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, as true as a book-Of Seminole Indians I've warned you, and of their murderous doing, And how Florida has been brought to the brink of ruin.

And now, having emptied my budget, permit me to say, We're promised fine times since Old Tip's got the day; Hard Cider by the acre, and Wheat by the ton, Money by the bushel, and whole oceans of fun; Men can live without working, and children without eating," Women without scolding, and Parsons without meeting; Doctors without patients, and Lawyers without clients. Girls without beaus, and boys without sweethearts; Chimneys wontesmoke, nor walls need a whiting, Floors wont need sweeping, nor cupboards need righting; Neither caps, hats, or shoes, nor clothing will be worn, In the huleyon days of Harrisonian reform.

And now, kind patrons, here's wishing you a happy New Year, May you have turkeys and roast beef, and plenty good cheer; But remember that I, poor unfortunate elf,

Am as poor as a church mouse without some of your pelf. Then shell out your quarter, your levy and fip, Or e'en a shin plaster, sooner than go upon tick; And if you are liberal I'll lay you a wager,
