But the misrepresentations of the writer ries. But the misrepresentations of the writer will be more apparent, from the subjoined state-ment and certificate. It will be recollected that the Prothonotary, Clerk of the Courts, and Register, are alleged to have been assessed at a valuation, that the valuations are actually $1200, $1110 and $800-high enough, one should suppose, in all conscience. It will also be borne in mind, too, that a lugubrious howling is made about the injutice of taxing young lawyers so high. In the ta-ble below, three members of the bar are placed in juxtaposition* with the three County Office Hol-Juxtaposition what the inter County Unite noi-ders, to show the enormous amount of tax paid by these interesting young men! My reason for se-lecting these three, who "have all received and expended their first fee," will be understood by themselves, and the community will understand it too, when they are informed that they are the only lawyers I know of who complain of the ine-quality of the tax. No "minister of the gospel" has been heard to grumble: they have too much good sense to render themselves ridiculous, as the two Herald lawyers have done. "People who live in glass houses ought not to throw stones"-and if some folks are not sick of this malicious attack upon the Commissioners of this malicious attack upon the Commissioners before they are done with it, I shall be very much mistaken. If the tax assessed upon the two law-yers who manage the Herald be too high, why did they not prefer their complaint at the proper time and in a proper manner? They doubtless had notice of the amount of their valuation, and of the time and place fixed upon for holding the of the time and place fixed upon for holding the Appeal—why then did they not embrace the op-portunity, and get their tax reduced below $175, if they really consider it too high? The reasen is obvious: This attack upon the Commissioners a-bout the inequality of the assessment, is an after-thought, out of which the authors expect to make little attack of the assessment alter-REMAINS OF GEN.
