

CARLISLE:

THURSDAY, MARCH 17, 1842.

We have a lot of rescally paper on hand at the present time, which is as annoying to us as it must be Mr. Van Buren—and we know of no change of public displeasing to our subscribers. If they will bear with opinion since, in his favor, which would increase his us a few weeks, the evil shall be remedied, as we have taken measures to have a supply of good material on hand, as soon as the present lot is exhausted.

Will our Democratic friends remember; that the every man of them will turn out and vote the Demo cratic ticket that was formed last evening.

Will our country friends see to it, that they also attend their respective township elections, and secure the Judges. It is a matter of considerable importance.

Fine !- We regret to learn that a destructive fire occurred at Mechanicsburg, on Saturday morning last, by which property to the amount of probably from $1500 to $2000 was destroyed. The fire commenced in a Cabinet Muker shop occupied by Messrs. George Wunderlich and Isaac N. Hyers, and before it could . occupied by Mr. Robert Wilson. Another house, acalso considerably damaged.

RESUMPTION BILL. This salutary bill, which passed both branches of the Legislature by such overwhelming majorities, received the sanction of the Executive on Saturday last, and is now the law of the land. But what avails statutes or laws, when the Banks set themselves above all law, and proudly arrogate to themselves the right to judge of the constitutionality or unconstitutionality of the enactment ! Henceforth the SERVANT becomes the MASTER, and the CREATOR superior to the CREATOR !-The people willed a resumption, and their Representatives in the Legislature carried out their will. Govcrnor Porter signed the bill, and it is now upon our statute books-but it is there only as a "dead letter" reason of Bank incolence mandate, and set the popular will at defiance.

Well may she be tormed the Bank-ridden, Bankmanacled State. While the surrounding States have nearly all in some measure at least, coerced a resump-, tion-she is destined, it appears, to be a by-word and reproach in this confederacy of Republics!

How long this state of things is to continue, Heaven only knows. But the avenging hour will comeand sooner or later MUST the will of the people be cbeyed. It is a dangerous experiment to tamper with -the public will. Let the Banks take warning in time and retrace their steps as speedily as possible.

The Carlisle Bank, refuses to pay specie for its notes, on the ground, we understand, that the resumption law is unconstitutional-so far as the Banks that accepted the law of last year are concerned. We regret that the Directors have thought proper to take this course—inasmuch as we believe the institution to be perfectly solvent, and as able to resume as any Bank in the Commonwealth. Besides, we know, that it has heretofore enjoyed a very large degree of public confidence—and a disposition generally existed in this community to sustain it in a resumption. We trust, therefore, that the Bank will at once retrace its steps, and thus regain the confidence which we know it has lost by a refusal to resume.

Of Up to the time our paper was put to press on sesterday, we had heard nothing definite with regard to the course taken by the generality of the Banks on the question of resumption. Rumor says that the York and Gettysburg Banks have resumed, and also the Farmers Bank of Reading. The Harrisburg and Chambershurg Banks refuse to resume, -and the Pennsylvanian of Tuesday morning says, that on the previous day, some little specie was paid out by the Banks that did not accept the law of last year; but that the "Relief Banks," as they are called, refused to resume, on the ground of the alleged unconstitutionality of the present law.

Nothing-absolutely nothing-is doing in Congress. Falk-talk-talk. "All talk and no cider," appears to be the order of the day with the Federal majority. The Domocratic hembers take very little part in the MA meeting was recently held at Harrisburg, at which Col. Richard M. Johnson, of Kentucky, was ominated for the next Presidency. We look upon his movement as a strange proceeding. For, although we yield to none in admiration of the great military and civil services of the old patriot-yet we do not be lieve that he has the least chance for a nomination from the National Convention, which must finally determine; the claims of all the aspirants-and even if he were nominated, is it certain that he could be elected? It will be remembered by most of our readers, that in 1836 Col. Johnson failed in an election by the people, and that he owed his election to the Vice Presidency to a vote of the Senate. In 1840 he also run behind

He is now the most promise Borough election comes off to morrow. We hope individual in the Republic for the high station, and if the old Keystone is only true to herself and her own interests, he will be the next Democratic candidate. If Pennsylvania but shows an unbroken front on the subject, her sister States will yield to her claims, and she will no longer be stigmatized as a "hower of wood and drawer of water" to the rest of the Union.

Why, then, should any portion of our citizens prov recreant to their duty, and again seek to cheat Pennsylvania out of her undoubted right! We can conceive of no other reason than a disorganizing, factious spirit, which is ever seeking to disturb the unanimity be subclued; that building, with the principal part of its contents, was consumed—also a log house adjoining, and destroy its influence in the Confederacy.
