sist him to descend. Do you see that poor miserable boy, whose tattered clothes scarcely shield him from the inclemency of the weather?—Mark with a beseeching look he colicits the rich man to purchase a pencil or a card of pencils; and behold, how contemptuously

The once poor boy stands in the pride of manhood, active, intelligent, rich. A lovely woman, his wife, leans upon his arm .-Grace in every expression, and affluence smiles in his unostentatious adornments .-The tottering step, the threadbare garments, and the rainful expression that fret in every feature, denote a man of want and wo. Better to be dead! than thus to diag a miseráble existence. This may at the first blush appear to ome an improbable ramance. It is truth. In a country like ours, there is no man, however poor, if aided by industry, economy, and virtue, but may rise from the lowest rank of succesty to the highest. The knowledge of this fact is a blessed incitement to the young, and cheers them to struggle nobly in the paths which lead to onor and independence, despite the thous.

by extravagance, and lax morals, may not fall from his high estate, and close his days

Let no man despise the moor because of their poverty; let no one flatter the righ bepoverty. Wealth may subdue us. All men of equal virtue, are equal. If one man possess more intelligence than his fellows. though that of itself may not elevate him in the ranks of the good, yet it brings him add-ed respect, and wins a willing admiration of all men:
