Young and old—the vigorous and decrepid—women and children, were all huddled together perfectly frantic at the horrible doon that awaited them—the still small hope that the Delaware would arrive to reader them assistance, served only to prolong the sofferings of those who clung to the beat to perish by the devouring clement.

sofferings of those who clung to the devouring element.

At one time the rigging of the vessel was completely crowded by those who sought refuge from the flames and smoke; the fire spreading rapidly, agon reaching the rigging the whole was in one instant a perfect blaze and those who still clung to their last hopes, dropped like the seared and yellow leaves before the chill blast of winter. This was the addest sight of all; sickening even to contemplate.

A NOVEL CASE IN COURT.—At the last October term of the McUracken Circuit Court, a novel case in the history of jurisprudence came on to be tried. It was an action on the case brought by a son-in-law against a father-in-law, for fraud in concealing from the son-in-law the fact that the young lady was officed with ulcers and running sores, the effects of white swelling, and for falso representations said to have been made by the father-in-law before marriage, taken to the young lady's laureness. The counsel have been made by the lattier in law before marriage, relative to the young lady's lameness. The counsel in defence demurred to the declaration, and, in support of the demurrer, assumed the position that such an action was against the policy of our law, and the marriage relations forbid such an inquiry as must ily ensue, if the case was tried on its merits occessfuly cashe, it the case was true on its interior he learned judge presiding suggested to defending punsel that the case was entirely new in American aisprudence, and he would prefer the case should before the jury, and the question presented for the algrent of the court on demurrer could be determined, as well in arrest of judgment as if it should mined, as well to arrest of judgment as it it should be rendered. Upon the suggestion of the court, the demurrer was withdrawn, a plea of not guilty was filed and issue joined to the country. After the evidence was all heard and the organizate of the counted, the jury, without a moment's deliberation, brought in a verdict for the defendant.—Paducah Kentuckian.
