The undersigned would most respectfully inform the citizens of Carlisle and its vicinity, that they have opened a in Carlisle, in South Hanover street, a few doors south of the Court House, and nearly opposite A. & W. Benz's store, where they will be happy to wait on those who may favor them with a call. Having purchased a large stock of Marble, they are determined to sell lower than any other shop this side of Philadelphia. They have some most beautiful designs for and every thing else in their line of business, which they will be pleased to show to any person that may be wanting them.

Marble Yard

They are also the authorized agents of Mr. Robert Wood, of Philadelphia, and will furnish for the manufacture all varieties of Iron Railings for the enclosure of Graves lots and all other purposes, at the shortest notice and at Philadelphia prices.

They will also furnish or manufacture all kinds of building work, such as Sills, Sleeps, and Platforms, &c., at the shortest notice and on the most reasonable terms.

Having had great experience, and being employed in the best shops in Philadelphia, they are therefore enabled to manufacture the most fashionable work and respectfully ask a share of the patronage of Carlisle and the surrounding country.

AGENCY.

W. V. B. PALMER, Editor, authorized agent for receiving subscriptions, and making collections for the American Volunteer, at his office, No. 11 W. corner of Third and Chestnut streets, Philadelphia.

For the American Volunteer,

KNOW THYSELF.

In all ages of the world it has been one of the most prominent characteristics of man, to judge and pass opinions, not so much upon his own actions, as upon those of others. There has always been something repulsive and forbidding in the thought of self-examination. There exists in the human heart a strange, mysterious power, which seems to deny all entrance to its possessor. The mind of man loves to roam over the broad fields of fancy.

And bending a pinon for the upper sky To mate with the pure essences of heaven."

It loves to burst beyond the massive chains that bind it to the dull and uninviting present, and wander sweet converse with the unconquered sites of departed greatness; to hark to the low moan of the tempest as it sweeps through the deserted halls of some moss covered castle; to lovel to rob time of his prey, and snatch from his destroying hand the relics of the past; to pry into the secrets of the dark and misty future; to bend itself, with untiring zeal; yet, it would tear from it that wondrous, mysterious veil that screens the destiny of nations; it would read the thoughts of the Everlasting, and understand the intentions of Jehovah himself.

But mark you, with what reluctance it stoops from its eagle flight to enter the world within, to examine its history, and to proclaim its thoughts. There are those who, with a view to the advancement of their knowledge, would sink quietly away into dark and silent oblivion; we love not the memory of those past but tormenting scenes, it seems but to render our existence more miserable; the mind of man remembers such scenes, rises before it, like the phantoms that will not down, recall back upon him self and startles as if at destruction.

It has been said that the man who would be eminent, must first know himself. It is not true, however, that he must not only know himself, but he must also know the world. It is not sufficient for him to have a perfect knowledge of his own mind; he must also have a perfect knowledge of the world he lives in. It is not sufficient for him to have a perfect knowledge of his own mind; he must also have a perfect knowledge of the world he lives in.
