thus say unto the manly heart that is struggling in thy bold breast: bold breast:

What though the field be lost?
All is not lost; th' unconquerable will,
And study of revenge, immertal hate,
And courage never to submit or yield;
(And what is clse not to be o'ercome?)
That glory never shall his wrath or might Extert from me, to bow and see for grace
With suppliant knee; and dufy his power,
Who from the terror of this arm so late
Ooubled his empire.

A STANDAND OF WISDOM.—We did not make the world—we may mend it and we must live in it,—world—we may mend it and we must live in it,—we shall find that it abounds in fiols who are for dult to be employed, and knaves who are too sharp. But the compound character is the most common, and it is that with which we shall have most to do. As he who knows how to put proper words into proper places evinces the freest knowledge of books, so he that know's how to put parsons in fits stations, evinces the truest knowledge of men. It was observed of Edizabeth, that she was weak herself, but chose wise counsellors; to which it was replied, that to chose wise counsellors; to which it was replied, that to chose wise counsellors was, in a prince, the highest wisdom.—Lacon.
