LAMENTABLE SUICIDE .- The Baltimore Amerion has the following account of a lamentable su- Davis Ino side in that city, on Tuesday :

cide in that city, on Tuesday:

A respectable married lady residing with her insthand, in the south-western part of the city, committed solicide at an early hour yesterday a rining, under circumstances of the most lament. In ming, under circumstances of the most lamentwhile character. She retired to rest with her husbe and the previous night, in her assal health and spirits; sometime after midnight they were disturbed by a young child which was in the room, and to mother gri up for the purpose.

The child was quieted, and the husband fell into a sleep, from which he was awakehed sometime afterwards by a relative livting in the house, who informed him that she heard a noise in the room over that in which she had been sleeping, and that she feared, some one had obtained entrance into the house. The hus want tirred to awake his wife, but was alarmed at finding that she was not in the room. A light band turned to awake his wife, but was alarmed at finding that she was not in the room. A light at finding that she was not in the room. A light was then procured and on entering the room in which the noise had been heard, the unfortunate lady was found on the floor, slimest deluged with the rown blood, and nearly lifelys. A razor was lifting by with which she had cut a terrible gash through the fleshy part of the left arm, just above the elbow, severing all the large, blood vessels in that part of the body. A physician was instantly dummoned, but before his arrival she had ceased fo brentle. The melanchely act is entirely than the deferment of any other supposition than that the deferment in any other supposition than that the deferment any other supposition than that the deferment in any other supposition than that the deferment in the state of the left was footh loved and esteemed.
