- BY JAMES RUSSEL LOWELL. A race of nobles may die out,
  A royal line may leave no heir;
  Wise nature sets no guard about
  libr pewter plates and rooden ware,
- But they fail not, the kinglier breed, Whose starry diadems attain; To dungeon, axe, and stake succeed Heirs of the old heroic strain.
- The zeal of Nature never cools, Nor is she thwarted of hot ends; When gapped and dulled her cheaper tools Then she a saint and prophet souds.
- Land of the Magyars! though it be The tyrant may relink his chain, Already thine the victory, As the just Future measures gain.
- Thou hast succeeded, thou hast won.
  The deathly travail's amplest worth;
  A nation's duty thou has done,
  Giving a hero to our earth.
- And he, let come what will of woo,
  'If as saved the land he strove to save;
  No Cossipk hordes, no traitors blow,
  Can quench the voice shall haunt his grave.
- I Kossuth am; O Future, thou That clear'st the just and blot'st the vilo, for this small dust in roverence how, Remembering what I was crewbile.
- "I was the chosen trump wherethirpugh Our God sent forth awakening breath; at deanne chains I came death I the strain he blow on U Sounds on outliving chains and death."

The recoption of Kossuth at Charleston was worthy of the remembrance of the place. The monumint was decorated with a line of flags on two sides from the summit to the ground, at so me yard from the base; at the top were American flags and the base; at the top were American flags and the flags on two sides suith. He reviewed briefly the history of Bunker Hill, polited out spots where great events have than place as its rightful Governor When the Mayor concluded three cheers were given for Kossuth. He speke to at least 15,000 people. This allusions to his country, and to his mother and sisters in the grasp of Austrian tyranny, brought items to many cyps, and several members of his suite, especially Kolopeza and Hisywin, sobbed aloud—all weept.
