WRITTEN AT MY MOTHER'S GRAVE.

BY GEORGE D. PRENTICE.

d The trombling dow-drops fall Upon the shatering flowers—like souls at rost The stars shine gloriously—and all Save me, is blest.

The violet with its blassoms blas and and Wayo p'er thy head—when shall it wayo Aboye thy child ? "Tiss sweet flowor-yet must Tis bright leaves to the coming tempest bow, Dear mether-tisthine emblem-dust Is on thy brow !

And I could love to dia-To leave untasted life's dark, bliter streams, By theo, is real in childhood, lie, And sharo thy dreams.

And must I linger here To itain the planage of my sinless years, And mourn the heres to childhood dear With bitter tents ?

Ayo, mail I linger here lonely branch upon a blasted tree, Whose last frail loaf untimely scre, Wont down with thee?

On from life's withored bower, In still communion with the past I turn, And muse on the only flower and in the memory's arn.

And, when the evening pale, Bow like a mourner on the dim, blue wave, I stray to hear the night wind's wail Around thy grave.

A Word to Mothers on Baby Talk. It is a fact, which must have been noticed, that ev-ary child has a foolish and babish dialect till it is siz or seven years old. Almost every word it niters, is spoken in a lisping or an affecting manner. This is-not the [proper way of talking, and there, must be some universal. (The cause, it appears to the is word) below. Almost every mother instructs here infaul-to speak baby talk, as the asying is. When a baby first begins to lisp 'pa and ma' instead of ondeavor-ing to instruct it pure English. the parents think it a snepty manner. (Itile ony tony, 'Killy dear,' welk alony, 'kieser mana,'talend astali,' &c.-Every mother knows a thousand and one of these baby expressions. Now, as a mother, I protest ing to instruct. It is all nonsense to insent the bad habits meredy to have then corrected by school teachers when they arire at a more mai-ture age. Will parents think of this, and teach their childron pure English at first.-- A Mather.--
