EARLY IMPRESSIONS - The Monks of the Middle EARLY INTERSECTORS — The Monks of the Middle' Ages had a way of eracing the succent writings from parchment, that they might substitute the legend of a saint for a Book of Livy. But there 'is no srt of monks, no device of chemists, no icars of repentance even, which can blot from the child's mind the early impressions received in the school from They strike through like the red letters on a bank bill."

A looker on it a gaming table having observed The observed have a gaining that having observed to be player very growsly cheating another, took the 'pigeon' saide and said, 'Good heavenst have you' not observed how villations that man has been packing the cards?' The other smillingly answered, 'Pray don't be under the least concern about that; I intend to pick his pocket as soon as he has done playing."

What an be more honorable than to have courage o execute the commands of reason and c enough to execute the commands of reason and con-science, to maintain the dignity of our nature, and the station assigned us, to be proof against poverty, pain and death itself, so far as not to do anything that is secondalous or sinful to avoid them, to stand advecuity under all shapes, with deconcy and resolu-tion 1. To do this is to be great above title and for-ture. This argues the soul of a heavenly extraction, and is worthy the offepring of the Deity.
